Halt in Plant Reparations Held Unwise By Marshall

Backs Industrial Dismantling in Germany Despite Reds' 'Malfeasance'

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Marshall yesterday said it would be unwise to halt dismantling German industrial plants for reparations despite Russia's "malfeasance" in disregarding the Potsdam agreement.

Marshall's views were contained in a letter to Chairman Vandenberg (R., Mich.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and answered frequent demands that this type of reparations be stopped. With the letter was a memorandum supporting his views.

This memorandum left the impression Russia might get no more German machinery from the United States zone until the Soviet began shipping food, fertilizer, coal and other commodities to western Eufope in conformity with agreement. Meanwhile, he pointed out, such shipments have been stopped except for remnants of three small plants already largely dismantled and shipped.

Major reasons given by the Secretary of State for continuing to dismantle German plants were:

1. Plants transferred from Germany to other European countries already were contributing to their economic recovery and "may be expected to reduce the cost of the American contribution to European aid."

2. Great Britain and France were opposed to any modification of the program and felt themselves entitled to and expected to receive their share of the plants selected for dismantling.

3. Halting dismantlement would be interpreted as United States abandonment of the reparation program and would leave this country in sole opposition to the other 17 nations participating in its provisions.

4. Such an interpretation probably would be followed by renewed demands for reparations out of current production and "the principles for which we have contended so vigorously would thus be placed in jeopardy."

"Instead," Marshall went on, "of being able to dispose of the reparations problem in short time and at relatively little cost we will be thrown back into a situation similar to that which followed in the wake of World War I, with general disagreement and long drawn-out wrangling among the victorious Allies, and particularly among those nations in western Europe among which unity of purpose and feeling is essential for European recovery."

5. "Unfortunate" political consequences would result in western Germany from a halt in dismantling followed by a resump-

Friendship Food Hit by Italian Youth Official

Genoa, Italy, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Bert Williams, secretary of the World Federation of Democratic Youth, today denounced "foreign imperialism" and said "friendship ships are sorrowfully accompanied by warships."

Williams, an Australian made his remarks before the Communist-sponsored Youth Congress, they were interpreted as a slap at the United States, which has sent "friendship" food ships to Italy, and whose Mediterranean fleet has visited Italian ports.

Fourteen thousand delegates defied the government's objection to uniforms by wearing red neckerchiefs, berets and the red-starred outfits of wartime partisans. Foreign delegates represented Australia, France, Hungary, Yugoslavia and Poland.

[At Milan Pietro Nenni, leader of the pro-Communist Socialist Party, said Italian leftists will not revolt if they lose in the national elections April 18. Nenni said the popular front "does not aim at civil war. It will accept the verdict of Italian people."]

Europe Sees Promise of Big Harvests

London, Feb. 8 (AP).—A mild winter has tempered European misery and given promise of bumper crops in repayment for last year's suffering.

Nowhere has there been the intense hardship of last winter, the worst Europe experienced in this century.

Abundant rainfall accompanied abnormally high temperatures. The moisture raised prospects for harvests that in some countries may equal those of before the war. A survey today showed:

Germany — Despite the food shortage Germans experienced nothing like the suffering of last year. Berlin's death rate this year dropped to about 16 per 1000, less than half of last year's. No frost damage reported and flood damage was slight.

France—One of the best harvests since before the war is expected. Spring wheat is past danger of frost damage.

Britain—London's mean temperature, representative of all Britain, has been the highest since 1943. Fields are green.

Italy—The weather man says winter may be just about over. Winter wheat is 6 inches high. Fruit trees blossom in orchards outside Rome.

Russia—Some areas report the warmest weather in 50 years. Pravda disclosed today the Soviet has called for a 35 per cent increased sowing of spring wheat. The planted acreage must be hiked 15 per cent over last year. An increase in livestock also was demanded.

Arab Troops Put at 15,000 In Holy Land

Units Appear Massed To Cut Proposed Jewish State in Two

Jerusalem, Feb. 8 (AP).—Approximately 15,000 uniformed and equipped troops from the Arab states have crossed into Palestine, according to reliable estimates here today.

One or two truckloads of the Syrian-trained troops cross the frontier daily—300 to 500 fighting men a week. They appear to be massing for attack, at points from which they might slash in two, the United Nations-proposed Jewish state.

In Jerusalem there has been talk the Arabs have set February 15 as "D-day." At Arab troop concentrations no talk is heard of any fixed date.

Four Arabs and five Jews were killed today in Palestine.

Two Jews were killed by snipers in Holon and a third in an Arab attack on a convoy near Hartuv. An Arab wounded earlier died. The unofficial death toll rose to 1098 since November 29.

Arab League Talks Of Organized Invasion

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—The powerful Arab League is meeting currently to transform Arab resistance from guerilla warfare into an organized invasion of the Holy Land by the "Army of Liberation," Arab sources said today.

Last night Haj Amin El Husseini, the exiled Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, arrived here and said: The "situation in Palestine is satisfactory."

Pensions Of Officers Face Slash

Legislation Would Bar All in Good Jobs From Drawing Disability Pay

By the United Press

The House Armed Services Committee is drafting legislation to stop Army and Navy officers from drawing tax-free "disability" retirement pay when they are still healthy enough to hold down lucrative jobs in private business, it was disclosed yesterday.

Members of the committee said a sweeping revision of present laws governing disability retirements probably will result from a House investigation that was touched off when Maj. Gen. Bennet E. Meyers was revealed to be collecting a $550 a month untaxable pension.

Representative LeRoy Johnson (R., Calif.), chairman of a permanent subcommittee on disability problems, said that one of the bills being drafted would provide "partial" pay for men who are only partially disabled. Others, he said, will take some of the "red tape" out of the retirement system.

75 Per Cent of Base Pay

Army and Navy officers now can be retired for disability without regard to percentage of handicap. They draw 75 per cent of base pay, tax-free for life.

Representative Charles H. Elston (R., Ohio), who headed the investigating subcommittee, said the hearings had emphasized the need for legislation which would require officers to submit to more frequent physical examinations.

Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, deputy director of Army personnel, has testified that the Army itself believes the present system is wrong and wants Congress to change it. He said the Army is merely administering laws which Congress passed.

"Very Old" Red Tape

Johnson said that present laws are "very old" and must be simplified and modernized. As an example of the red tape involved in some disability cases, he said it is possible for an officer up for retirement to go through five boards before it is established whether he is eligible for disability pay.

Johnson noted that present disability laws were drafted at a time when there was little demand for former military men in civilian industry. Now, he said, men with service-acquired technical training are highly valuable to many industrial concerns.

He said this fact should be recognized when it comes to setting up the retirement pay an officer or enlisted man should receive.

Italy Releases List of Warships Allies to Receive

Rome, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Italy today released the list of warships to be divided among Russia, France, Yugoslavia, Greece and Albania under the Italian Peace Treaty. Russia gets the largest share, 45 ships, including the only battleship, the 35-year-old Giulio Cesare, and a cruiser.

France will receive 43 ships, including 3 cruisers; Yugoslavia, 17; Greece, 2, including a cruiser, and Albania, 2. The Uinted States originally was assigned 26 ships and Britain 28, but both will allow Italy to scrap their share.

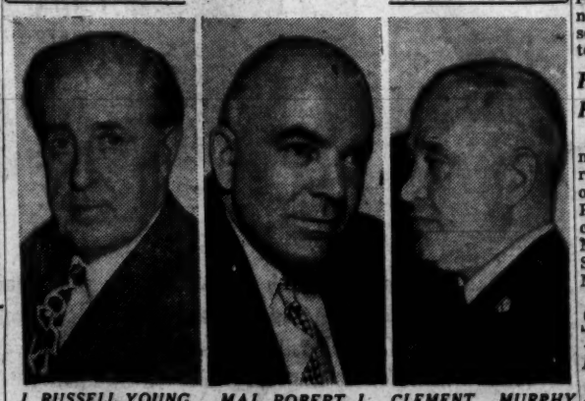
Many Residents Unfamiliar With Officials of District



J. RUSSELL YOUNG, D. C. Commissioner — MAJ. ROBERT J. BARRETT, Chief of police — CLEMENT MURPHY, Fire chief

Many District residents are unfamiliar with their city officials.

The Washington Post poll finds that 31 per cent of District residents do not know the jobs held by any of these three: John Russell Young, Robert J. Barrett and Clement Murphy. Just 18 per cent could identify one of them; 24 per cent correctly identified two of them, and 27 per cent knew all three.

Forty-five per cent of residents are unaware that John Russell Young is District Commissioner.

Thirty-eight per cent cannot identify Robert J. Barrett as superintendent of police.

Seventy per cent are unable to identify Clement Murphy as fire chief.

These findings are based on per-sonal interviews with a representative cross-section of adults.

Residents were asked:

Here are the names of some prominent men in the District. Can you tell me what job J. Russell Young has?" (If correctly identified) "Do you think he is doing a good, fair or poor job?"

Replies were as follows:

Fists Fly When Cugat Finds Wife Dancing With Cassini

Xavier Cugat — Mrs. Cugat — Oleg Cassini

Hollywood, Feb. 8 (AP).—Hollywood's glittering Sunset Strip—scene of many a movieland fight—was the arena early today for a brief and wild fistic exchange between band leader Xavier Cugat and Oleg Cassini, former husband of actress Gene Tierney.

The short—and by all descriptions, inexpert—battle started in the lobby of the Mocambo, one of the strip's swankier spots, and continued outside before spectators broke it up.

Cugat, the Rumba king, said he stepped across the street (Sunset Boulevard) from Ciro's—where he is currently playing—to inquire about his wife.

"I found her dancing with that dress designer," said "Cugie."

[The United Press said Cugat declared: "I don't go for that Hollywood wolf stuff. He was acting cute. I asked him as a gentleman to stop fooling around. Then he swung."]

Cugat invited Cassini to step outside, he said, but the dress designer "started scuffling with me" in the lobby.

Neutral observers said that each landed one punch outside before the fracas was halted.

Cugat said he hurt the little finger on the left hand and "I don't think I got it hitting a wall." He said he was going to have a doctor determine whether it was broken.

The damage, if any, to Cassini was not determined. Cassini's phone was disconnected and his agent could not be reached.

One observer, however, said Cassini had the better punch.

But, declared "Gugie," "I don't think he even hit me."

Asked whether he and Mrs. Cugat are separated, the bandleader replied, "Not yet."

Royall Slips 'Quietly' Off To Panama

Unannounced Trip Reported to Irk State Department

Army Secretary Royall made an unannounced departure by air for Panama yesterday, leaving behind him reports that the State Department took a dim view of his trip.

It was understood Royall would inspect United States bases in the Panama Canal Zone. He was accompanied by two engineer officers and one officer from the plans and operations section of the general staff.

While a State Department spokesman denied any dispute with the Army Department over the tour, he said it had been "discussed." The trip was being made, he added, without State Department objection and with its help.

"Quiet" Departure

But an Army source said Royall made no announcement before leaving because the State Department had asked him not to go at this time, and he had promised to depart as "quietly" as possible.

This source said State officials felt the trip might better be postponed until political feeling in Panama, which recently refused to permit United States bases to remain there, had quieted down.

Earlier in the week an Army press release announcing Royall's tour had been prepared, but suddenly was called back without explanation.

Mexico City Stop

The Army said Royall would stop at Mexico City, and would pay the usual courtesy calls on Mexican officials. He was scheduled to arrive in the Canal Zone February 10, and to call on the President of Panama February 14.

After joining Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan at San Juan, Puerto Rico, February 15 to witness naval maneuvers, Royall was scheduled to return to Washington February 18.

Royall at Mexico City, First Call on His Trip

Mexico City, Feb. 8 (AP).—Kenneth C. Royall, United States Secretary of the Army, arrived today on an inspection tour of Mexico, Panama and Puerto Rico. He will confer tomorrow with President Miguel Aleman, Mexican Defense Secretay Gilberto P. Limon and Mexican army staff officers.

Scientists Find Porpoises Just as Smart as Monkeys

Montreal, Feb. 8 (AP). — McGill University scientists have made a 10-year study of the life of the porpoise and come up with two important facts.

Porpoises are as smart as monkeys—and they have as much fun as people.

However, they won't say porpoises might be smarter than people because they don't know how to find out how smart porpoises really are.

The scientists found:

The propoise could tell at a glance whether a fish dropped into the water was dead or alive. When two porpoises fell in love with the same female they didn't settle it by biting each other to pieces. They just kept a close watch on each other and waited for the female to make up her mind.

16 to Testify Today on Home Rule

Joint Congressional Hearings on Plan Are Scheduled to Conclude Tuesday

Sixteen witnesses are slated to testify today on the Auchincloss-Ball bill for home rule for the District as hearings go into their second week.

The hearings are scheduled to be concluded after additional testimony tomorrow.

Strong support for the plan has come from President Truman, who on the first day of the hearings urged Congress to give the District home rule at this session, and to give local residents the right to vote in presidential elections.

Views on Plan

On Saturday, 24 witnesses representing all types of political beliefs told Congressmen they favor home rule for Washington. Additional approval of the plan has come from Donald C. Stone, Budget Bureau aide, who said the bill would give the District "a sound charter," and from Dr. Louis Brownlow, a former District Commissioner, who called the bill "a charter as good as any I've ever read, if not better."

The District Commissioners early in the hearings had told Congress they liked the idea of home rule, but did not like the plan now under study. Principal objection was their fear that the plan might have unsound financial features.

So far, crux of citizen objection to the home rule plan has been that it did not go far enough.

Both the Washington Board of Trade and the Washington Junior Board of Commerce have voiced their objection to home rule without national suffrage. Another argument advanced against the measure was that of Louis F. Frick, secretary of the Federation of Business Men's Associations, who objected to nonresidents being allowed to vote either for the city's officers or to increase its bonded indebtedness.

Hearing Resumes Today

Many of the witnesses due to testify today when the hearings resume at 9:30 in the House Caucus Room are expected to approve the home rule plan.

Those expected to testify in morning sessions are:

Richard Wilmer, Elmer Davis, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Frank Jelleff, Edward H. Foley, jr., J. Bernard Wyckoff, Mrs. C. D. Lowe, Dr. Paul Douglass, Merlo J. Pusey, Charles C. Glover 3d and Samuel Spencer.

When the hearings reconvene this afternoon at 2 o'clock those scheduled to testify are Albert Atwood, G. F. Bowerman, Miss Agnes Winn, Mrs. Henry Gratton Doyle and Don B. Goodloe.

Corporations, Film Stars Top Tax Refunds

U. S. Steel's Share, $63,580,904, Biggest On Treasury List

Scores of large corporations and a galaxy of Hollywood stars were named yesterday among the big-time income taxpayers to whom the Treasury made refunds in the fiscal year 1947.

Biggest single refund went to United States Steel Corp., which got $63,580,904. Runner up was the Westinghouse Electric Corp., which received $57,398,182. More than 100 other business concerns received payments of one million dollars or more, mainly because of the carry-back provisions of the wartime excess profits law.

The Treasury is required by law to give Congress an annual report of all persons receiving tax refunds of $500 or more. The list submitted to the House Executive Expenditures Committee yesterday covered $2,882,735,904 in refunds during the 12 months ending last June 30. The committee chairman, Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.) was on the list for $1445 in income tax refunds.

A Treasury spokesman said about half of that total went to small taxpayers who received refunds averaging about $50. They were not listed.

Price Drop Pictured as U. S. Crisis

Moscow, Feb. 8 (AP). — Russian newspapers gave big play today to the drop in United States commodity prices.

Soviet readers could get the impression the American depression forecast by Russian economists was possibly coming true.

Leading Russian newspapers carried predictions by American economists of a major crisis. (The dispatch did not indicate that the newspapers devoted any space to United States economists with opposite views.)

(In Berlin Soviet-controlled newspapers declared the break in the Chicago grain market and sinking in values on other exchanges foreshadowed a serious economic depression in the United States.)

Prominent mention was given President Truman's declaration there is danger of an economic crash if Congress does not regulate prices.

Izvestia, the government newspaper, said the President's statement was principally a political maneuver to put the blame on the Republicans for any coming economic crisis.

Izvestia said the price decline increased what it called the hope of American business to use the Marshall Plan as an antidote for the nation's economic difficulties.

The Soviet news agency Tass in a New York dispatch declared:

Mercury Drop To 16 Forecast; 28 to Be High

Temperatures Near Zero Due Today in Many Parts of East

The mercury will take a nose-dive this morning, plunging to 16 in the city and 12 in the suburbs.

It's all because of an Arctic-brewed cold wave that pushed down from Canada Saturday night and enveloped the Middle West in its icy embrace, and then stretched eastward to the Atlantic Coast.

Temperatures were expected to drop close to the zero mark in many parts of the East early today. Metropolitan New York was warned to expect a low of 5 degrees above zero.

Washington's weatherman predicted the temperature would reach a high of 28 today. The weatherman, incidentally, was credited with a winning forecast yesterday, thus hiking his forecast average for the first eight days of February to .625 with five out of eight forecasts right.

The weatherman erred slightly in calling occasional rain or snow, in the early morning and clear in the afternoon. He forecast brisk winds. There were. He said it would be colder. It was.

Yesterday's low mercury mark was 25 at 4:14 a. m. The thermometer bubbled up to 39 at 9:36 a. m.

Businessmen Had Warned U. S. Experts Of Price Fall

Group Forecast Market Break Week in Advance At Federal Parley

Government economists were warned that inflation was near its peak a week before the recent market break, it was reported yesterday.

A number of prominent businessmen, it was said, met at Government request with the economists and said President Truman had "considerably overstated the inflationary danger." They forecast a price drop at that time.

Meanwhile, Agriculture Secretary Anderson yesterday declared the Government never had used its export purchase program to drive prices up and would not do so now. His statement answered charges by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) that Anderson apparently had tried to bolster slumping prices and by Representative Hope (R., Kans.) that he was permitting them to slump too far.

Buying Plans Uncertain

"I can't very well pay any attention to the latest Republican complaints on that score," said Anderson, "because we obviously can't push prices up and down at the same time."

He agreed with Hope that commodity prices could be stabilized now by Government buying, but said this was not the time for the Government to buy. Asked if that meant the Government would buy no more grain until the market stabilized itself or prices fall to the mandatory support level, Anderson said:

"We have no plans at present to do any buying."

The business-Government meeting was disclosed by Prentiss L. Coonley and Ernest A. Tupper, private business consultants who arranged it as one of a series of such conferences. They are held at business centers outside of Washington and the participants are not identified.

The meeting at which Coonley and Tupper said the market break was predicted was held January 26 and the businessmen gave the economists these views:

1. A peak in inflation was near, if it had not already been reached.

2. Inventory buying in anticipation of further price increases had subsided for some months.

3. Business was pursuing a "cautious" purchasing policy.

4. Prices in an increasing number of situations were reflecting supplies equal to or exceeding demand.

The businessmen expressed disbelief that any business decline would be sharp but concluded that "enough recession would have to occur to induce business, labor and Government to adopt sensible attitudes." They agreed that labor was showing a desire to cooperate to restrain inflation.

Government Expert Differs

One of the Government economists who attended the meeting said it would be "a grave mistake for businessmen or others to assume lightly that the inflation danger is past." He agreed with much of what the businessmen had said but described the current of inflation as "still very strong."

Senator Buck (R., Del.) predicted yesterday that the grain market break would take some of the pressure off demands for rationing grain to distillers. He said also that he felt grain prices would go down still more before leveling off.

Buck is a member of a Senate-House subcommittee which is due to act today on President Truman's plea for power to ration grain for whisky making.

2000 Pacific Area Soldiers' Bodies To Be Returned

Tokyo, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—The bodies of approximately 2000 Americans who fell in battles in the Marianas-Bonins island area will leave Saipan for San Francisco February 26 aboard the United States Army transport Walter Schwenk.

These will be the first World War II dead from the Far East command returned to the United States.

The bodies are of soldiers, sailors, air force men, marines and merchant marine veterans who fought at Tinian, Guam, Iwo Jima and other islands.

Last October the first 3000 were returned to the United States from Pacific battlefields.

South's Governors to Demand Concessions On 'White Supremacy' Issue From Truman

Ban on Segregated Travel Arouses Most Resentment

President Truman may move to appease rebellious Southern Democrats by modifying his controversial civil rights program, a highly placed Senate source said yesterday.

This official said Mr. Truman's request for bans on racial segregation in interstate transportation was the chief factor in the Southern blow-up which has ranged from demands for party secession to threats to form a rump Democratic party.

He said it is almost certain that within the next few weeks the President will issue a statement reiterating his request for anti-lynch, antipoll tax and other equal rights laws.

But he will omit any reference to segregation in travel. He added that Mr. Truman will make no public reference to the omission but that Southern Democratic leaders will be informed well in advance that segregation will not be emphasized.

Neither White House spokesmen nor Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath were available for comment on the reported plan.

The United Press informant said that if President Truman had discussed civil rights with Southern Democratic Congressmen in advance of his recent message, the "offensive" paragraph would have been omitted in the first place and the Southern outburst would have been far less violent.

He said the plan for the presidential harmony move was formulated before the Southern Governors' Conference voted Saturday night to give the National Democratic Party 40 days to reverse Mr. Truman's stand or face a se-

Group Named to Voice Protests at Washington

Wakulla Springs, Fla., Feb. 8 (AP).—The Southern Governors Conference named its own political action committee today to demand concessions on "white supremacy" from President Truman.

Headed by Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the committee will go to Washington to voice the South's displeasure over Mr. Truman's recommendations for new "civil rights" legislation. Governor Thurmond said it would speak "in the strongest possible language."

The conference adopted yesterday a resolution by Governor Thurmond setting 40 days as the limit for a new meeting of Governors to review developments. Thurmond said that meeting would decide whether further "joint and common action" would be necessary.

Thurmond and Gov. M. E. Thompson of Georgia said they hoped the 40 days would provide a cooling-off period for both sides in the controversy over civil rights. But all Governors expressed continuing resentment over Mr. Truman's proposals for antilynch and antipoll tax legislation, and his demands for Federal guarantees against racial discrimination in employment and against Jim Crow segregation.

The 40-day waiting period apparently removed the threat of immediate anti-Truman action in the South. However, Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi, declared he reserved the right of independent action. He was beaten yesterday in an effort to have the governors call a Southside convention of "true Democrats" in Jackson, Miss. He said:

"I did not vote for Governor Thurmond's motion because I may

Sunday Sermon

Civil Rights Talk Solace To Truman

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

President Truman, opposed from many quarters for his stand on civil rights, yesterday found solace for his views in his church.

Truman, who paid an unexpected visit to early morning services at First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., heard Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor, declare:

"Some of those who oppose most vigorously social pioneering indicate by their very intentions that they are just a little bit afraid that there is some truth in the things they are opposing, and they make up for their lack of logic by the volume of their protest."

Dr. Pruden's sermon topic was "In the Night Christ Came Walking," and referred to his appearance among men "in the midst of history's darkest hour."

In those days, the pastor noted, social conditions were characterized by slavery and the "dignity of man was not generally recognized." He observed that human-

Army Gives In

N. J. Upheld On Negroes In Guard

By The Associated Press

The Army gave in yesterday to New Jersey's demand that it allow Negroes to serve in the State's National Guard without segregation, but said it is not changing its national policy.

Secretary of the Army Royall wrote Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll that "for the present" it will continue to give Federal recognition (which means Federal money and equipment) to the New Jersey Militia.

Royall made plain that in doing this the Army made three reservations:

1. It applies only to New Jersey.

2. It does not change the policy applying to the Regular Army, under which Negro manpower is used by small units with no mixing of individual Negroes into white units.

3. The concession was made in recognition of State sovereignty: New Jersey's new State constitution prohibits segregation.

Governor Driscoll last week ordered his National Guard officials to ignore an Army order requiring segregation by units for both the Regular Army and its civilian components, such as the National Guard. Earlier, Driscoll had written Secretary of Defense Forrestal asking if the Federal Government would refuse funds to his State because of the constitutional provision.

9 Governors Sign Specialized School Pact in South

Wakulla Springs, Fla., Feb. 8 (AP).—An agreement for interstate operation of colleges for specialized and professional training of the South's youth was signed today by the Governors of nine Southern States.

Educators and governmental leaders hailed the plan as potentially one of the century's most significant developments in American higher education.

Underlying theory of the regional education system is that while no single Southern State can afford to provide adequate training in highly specialized fields, the States working together can finance outstanding colleges.

The plan contemplates both white and Negro regional schools.

The compact will not become effective until it is ratified by the Legislatures of at least six States. In the meantime, congressional approval also must be obtained.

An interim interstate board of control will be named to give further study to educational fields that should be brought under the plan.

The board will include each Governor and two members he will name. It will meet in Gainesville, Fla., March 4.

The Governors signed the pact at the end of a two-day meeting that was punctuated by a brief round of verbal attacks on President Truman's proposal for Federal "civil rights" legislation.

cession threat by the traditionally Solid South.

This official believed the plan will, if carried out, go far to end the rebellion. He pointed out that the late President Roosevelt had advocated the same civil rights measure without similar violent reaction but Mr. Roosevelt had been careful not to stress the segregation issue.

Confirmation thatt that issue was uppermost in Southern minds came in a statement by Representative Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.). He said the President's stand amounted to a declaration of war on segregation.

"They (Mr. Truman and his advisers) have put the odorous issue squarely under the nose of every Southern leader of the Democratic Party," he said. "We either live with the stench or we don't."

But Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) said the threats of revolt were nothing new within the Democratic Party and predicted the differences will be settled as they have been before.

The Supreme Court recently overturned State laws requiring segregation on interstate transportation facilities. But only a few private concerns have attempted to enforce the ruling.

feel that it is better to proceed with a conference of Southern people rather than await action by the conference of Southern governors."

However, most of the governors expressed hope that a united South could wring concessions from the National Democratic leadership.

Said Governor Thompson, a leading opponent of any party bolt: "The Democratic Party should settle its differences within the party and present a united front during the campaign . . .

"Much of the resentment against the Democratic Party came from the fact that leaders of the Democratic Party in the South were not even consulted before policies were announced.

"The South demands and expects to receive greater participation in fixing policies of the Democratic Party, in writing its platform, and in selecting its candidates."

Governor Beauford Jester of Texas declared President Truman would have to accept a more moderate program, or risk rebellion in the South.

"The State of Texas went Republican on one occasion on a religious issue," said Jester. "It could happen again. There is a great deal of resentment on the race issue, and on the question of State control of tide lands."

Governor Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland, the conference chairman, said Governor Thurmonda's political committee would include Governors Jester of Texas, Laney of Arkansas, Gregg Cherry of North Carolina and William Tuck of Virginia. Cherry and Tuck did not attend the conference.

Transportation To Be Discussed

Transportation problems in Montgomery County will be among topics to be discussed at a meeting of the Montgomery County Civic Federation at 8 p. m. today at Bethesda Elementary.

Creation of a commission representing the suburban areas of Maryland and Virginia adjacent to the District of Columpia to handle transportation problems will be recommended in a resolution to be presented by Dr. Harold Morris of Woodside Park Civic Association. Other reports will be on apartment and industrial land use, water and sewer connection problems and the adequacy of the school building program.

Sermon Gives Truman Solace

ity had made little progress in reaching Christ's idea for human relationships.

Dr. Pruden declared that there is nothing new in the President's plan that can't find support in the New Testament or in the Constitution.

Mr. Truman's civil rights message last Monday called on Congress to see that guarantees of individual liberties and protection are not abridged in the United States. Part of these proposals were assailed by Southerners as unduly raising racial issues involving Negro segregation.

Like many fellow-pastors, Dr. Pruden yesterday urged his flock to observe annual "Race Relations Sunday," sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches, New York City, representing 29 Protestant denominations.

At the close of the service, President Truman greeted the pastor and asked: "How is your mother? Give her my kindest regards."

The pastor's mother is Mrs. J. R. Pruden of Chase City, Va. She is 71. Mr. Truman met her about two years ago.

Support of Christians Asked for Marshall Plan

The Rev. Charles K. Gilbert, Episcopal Bishop of the New York Diocese, yesterday described the Marshall Plan for aiding the recovery of western European nations as "an issue of supreme importance" that should have the support of Christians everywhere.

He said the proposal, now being debated in Congress, "is a plan that would bring new life and hope to vast multitudes of God's despairing children," and added:

"It is designed to rebuild our broken world upon a basis of brotherhood and cooperation. It would enable the stricken nations to help themselves and lead to that peace and security for which men everywhere are pleading."

Bishop Gilbert was guest speaker at the Washington Cathedral.

Area-Wide Services

Meanwhile, Ash Wednesday services are scheduled throughout the area this week.

Worshipers at Catholic masses will kneel at sanctuary rails to have crosses of ashes marked on their foreheads by priests. There will be communion and other services in Protestant churches.

Dr. Carl Heath Kopf, new minister of First Congregational Church, will speak at 12:05 p. m. at the National Presbyterian Church, 18th and N sts. nw., at the first in a series of daily noonday Lenten services sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches.

Services will be held at 8 p. m. at the Episcopal Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, 16th and Newton sts. nw., where the preacher will be the Right Rev. Noble C. Powell, Episcopal Bishop of Maryland, and one time Washington Cathedral dean.

Jackie Robinson, Ball Player Among 14 Negroes Honored

New York, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Five organizations and 14 persons, including Dodger First Baseman Jackie Robinson, were named today to the 1947 honor roll of race relations.

The selections were made on the basis of a Nation-wide poll of editors, college presidents, labor and industrial leaders and other prominent citizens as a feature of Negro History Week.

These 12 Negroes were named to the honor roll:

Jackie Robinson, for "achievement, restraint and sportsmanship"; Dr. Ralph Bunche, head of the secretariat of the United Nations Commission on Palestine; Willard Motley, author of the best-seller "Knock on Any Door"; Margaret Harris, 3-year-old child prodigy of Chicago, for "ability and personality"; Theodore Ward, author of the Broadway play, "Our Lan' "; Oliver Randolph, who led the fight against racial segregation in New Jersey's institutions, which resulted in an anti-segregation provision being incorporated in that State's new constitution; Ensign John Lee, first Negro to receive a commission in the Regular United States Navy; Paul Williams, who received the largest commission ever granted to a Negro architect; Ulysses Kay, who won four musical awards in 1947; Judge Herbert E. Millen, of the Municipal Court of Philadelphia, the thirteenth Negro judge in the country, and Sadie Alexander and Channing Tobias, the two Negro members of the President's Committee on Civil Rights.

Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter, who opened the parochial schools of the St. Louis (Mo.) Diocese, to all students regardless of race, and the late Charles E. Huberich, author of "The Political and Legislative History of Liberia," also were listed on the honor roll.

Organizations honored were: The American Heritage Foundation, for insisting that the Freedom Train stop only at places where all citizens could view its documents without segregation; the President's Committee on Civil Rights; Actor's Equity Association, for its stand against segregation in the theaters o Washington, D. C.; Southern Methodist University, "for cheerfully playing in Texas against the Negro stars of the Penn State football team," and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The honor roll was announced by Dr. Lawrence D. Reddick, curator of the Schomburg collection of the New Yo.k Public Library.

Cain Bill Would Retain Some Room Rent Ceilings

By the United Press

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) said yesterday that he was drafting a revised rent control bill which would keep rent ceilings on rooming houses in areas "where it is unsafe to decontrol them."

He also said he would not insist on a provision which would remove rent ceilings immediately in at least nine major cities.

Cain is chairman of a Senate Banking Subcommittee on rent control. The subcommittee submitted a bill to the full committee Friday extending controls for 14 months beyond the present expiration date of February 29. The bill also had several provisions which would permit sizable rent increases or remove ceilings entirely in many areas.

But strong objections to some features were raised in the full committee and the measure was returned to the subcommittee with instructions to report it back on February 16.

Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.), of the full committee, said committee members would use the intervening time to "consult with our consciences and our friends."

Cain revealed that he is now drafting a complete bill based on the proposals he submitted to the full committee. He said there are "one or two items" he hopes to "improve on" to meet objections raised in the full committee.

One of these was the proposal to remove all rooming houses from control.

Cain said several committee members had pointed out that college towns and other localities would suffer from such a provision.

Mother, 5 Children Die as Home Burns

Mount Pleasant, Mich., Feb. 8 (U.P.).—An explosion and fire killed a young mother and her five children today at their home. The father got out but was burned critically.

The victims were Mrs. Margaret Wohlsheid, 27, and her children—Roy, jr., 10; Beverly Jean, Richard, Dale and Patricia Ann, ranging in ages down to 2 years.

Firemen said explosion in a living room coal stove spread flames so rapidly the family was trapped in their beds. Wohlsheid managed to stagger out of the house.

Farmer Uses Cider To Put Out Fire

Cortland, N. Y., Feb. 8 (AP).—When fire broke out in a gasoline pump engine, farmer Frank Harris grabbed for the cider barrels.

"I hated to have the cider go to waste," he said, "but I didn't want to lose my house. The cider was really good, too."

He said he used 70 gallons to douse the flames.

hide deep concern in connection with the situation. The fall in stock and commodity exchange prices constitutes a sharp turn in the economic situation."

Tass said many American experts believe the inflationary rise in prices "perhaps completely ended, and a new turn in the American economic position is approaching."

Tass reported several branches of American industry producing mass consumers goods have been forced to slash operations considerably below those of a year ago.

Coffman Heads Ticket of Press Group in County

John W. Coffman, jr., publisher of the Takoma Journal, has been nominated without opposition for election as president of the Montgomery County Press Association. He will succeed Phillip J. Austensen of The Washington Post staff, who has headed the group since its organization more than 10 years ago.

Other candidates without opposition are: Miss Helen M. Cooper, Maryland News, vice president; Mrs. Mary Crowley, Silver Spring Post, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary Kanagy, Maryland News, corresponding secretary; Garrett Waters, Takoma Journal, treasurer.

Three members of the executive committee are to be selected from the following nominees: Blair Lee, 3d, Maryland News; Byron Sedgwick, Maryland News; Robert Denny, Washington Times-Herald; Mrs. Marian Clark, the Evening Star; Mrs. Gertrude Bradley, Bethesda Record; Joseph L. Brechner, Radio Station WGAY, and Joseph M. Mathias, Bethesda Tribune. Austensen automatically becames a member of the executive committee.

Elections will be held March 5 at the Stone House Inn, Four Corners, Md.

Capper Says He'll Vote Against Any UMT Bill

By the United Press

Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.) yesterday said he would vote against any bill authorizing universal military training.

In a radio address, he said "There is a real danger, as I see it, of universal military training courses being used to indoctrinate our boys and young men with the militaristic spirit—and perhaps with the political and economic philosophies of the Administration in power—as the youths of Germany were indoctrinated under the Hitler program."

In Korea

Army Keeps Troops Out Of Rioting

Seoul, Korea, Feb. 8 (AP).—Army headquarters acted today to keep American troops from getting involved in Korean political disturbances which yesterday cost the lives of 22 Koreans in the United States occupation zone.

The wave of demonstrations and sabotage opposing the United Nations Commission was attributed by American sources to Leftists.

United States Army authorities reported 18 civilians and 4 policemen were killed and 150 persons were arrested.

A mob attacked an American sentry post in Seoul last night, headquarters announced.

The military alert was described as intended to hold American troops in their quarters so as to avoid involvement.

U. S. to Demand Completion of Task

Lake Success, Feb. 8 (AP).—An American spokesman said today the United States will demand the Korean Commission complete its task regardless of Leftwing and Russian opposition.

The Little Assembly will consider the Korean situation February 24.

He acknowledged Russia's refusal even to admit the commission in the northern (Soviet) zone barred any action there. Nothing has occurred in the southern zone which would prevent the commission from expediting the creation of an independent Korean government as ordered by the U. N. Assembly last November, he said.

Cugat Mixes With Cassini

Mrs. Cugat, the former radio Actress Lorrain Allen, said:

"I can't figure it out. It was the first time I had ever talked to Mr. Cassini. He came up to our table and we were introduced. Then he asked me to dance.

"We were dancing, and Mr. Cassini was saying nice things about "Cugie," when all of a sudden I was pulled off the floor."

Mrs. Cugat said she didn't see the fight. In fact, she said, "I don't think there was much of a fight."

The "whole thing is silly," she said, but added, "I'll do anything 'Cugie' says if he'll only tell me beforehand."

They were married in Philadelphia last October 15. It was the second marriage for both.

2 Moslem Groups Outlawed by India

Athens Hears:

Vast Stores Of UNRRA Goods Found

Athens, Feb. 8 (AP).—A newspaper dispatch from Patrai said today American representatives uncovered a huge amount of UNRRA stores which had been in the customs house there a year or more.

The liberal newspaper Eleftheria said the stores included 18,000 pairs of shoes, 20 tons of sugar, 500 tons of canned milk, 150 tons of wool, 1300 cases of fruit juice and 250 cases of cheese.

[Press dispatches reported 28 persons executed in five Greek towns for rebel warfare, the United Press said.]

League Guard, Khahsars Called Hatred Fomenters

New Delhi, Feb. 8 (AP).—The Indian government outlawed two Moslem organizations today on the ground they contributed to poisonous hatreds and communal violence.

They were the Moslem League National Guard and a rival group known as the Khaksars.

This was the first such action taken by Hindu India against Moslems. It followed the banning of the Hindu RSSS (National Volunteer Corps) in the investigation of the assassination of Mohandas Gandhi.

There was no new word on the inquiry in Alwar, whose Maharajah Tej Singh and Premier N. B. Khare have been summoned to New Delhi.

(The Associated Press erroneously reported Saturday the Maharajah is a Sikh. He belongs instead to the Rajputs and his state is predominantly Hindu.)

tion. Some Republicans had suggested that dismantling be stopped until Congress could investigate.

Marshall's letter and memorandum will be placed before the Foreign Relations Committee today when it meets in executive session to begin rewriting the Administration's request for $6,800,000,000 for aid to 16 nations beginning April 1.

Marshall reminded Vandenberg that the British and French governments had been asked to supply detailed information of the status in their areas of the dismantling program. However, he added, no detailed replies had been received though both governments had promised to make every effort to furnish the information.

Referring to the attitude of Soviet Russia, Marshall conceded that "the Soviet Union has refused to follow in practice the principles of German self-support and capacity to pay, and of economic unity laid down in the Potsdam agreement." Nevertheless, he said, "it would be obviously unwise to abandon the Potsdam reparation settlement merely by reason of Soviet malfeasance."

Nordic Trade Unions Approve Marshall Plan

Stockholm, Sweden, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Nordic trade unions today expressed approval of Marshall Plan aid for western Europe.

Jap Cabinet Decides on Resignation

Tokyo, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Premier Tetsu Katayama's coalition cabinet has decided to resign because of Diet (parliament) criticism both within and outside his Social Democratic Party, Cabinet Secretary Suehiro Nishio told a news conference today.

Nishio said the government "saw no alternative but to resign in the very near future." It was reported the step would be taken after Tuesday's Diet session.

Nishio said the Social Democrats, who control 124 of 465 votes in the House of Representatives, will function as the opposition party after the Cabinet has resigned.

Diplomatic sources said it was "not likely, but possible" that Katayama would head the next Cabinet himself. He is known to have Gen. Douglas MacArthur's support.

Symphony Gives Cost Estimates For Next Season

The board of directors of National Symphony Orchestra yesterday released an itemized estimate of operations' costs and probable receipts for its planned 24-week, 1948-49 concert season.

Campaigners are now soliciting contributions of $165,000 to cover the expected deficit between the estimated costs of $411,700 for the new season and estimated earned income of $246,700.

Estimated major expenditures included $200,500 for salaries of players, the conductor and guest conductors; $16,650 for assisting artists; $18,400 for hall rentals; $20,100 publicity and advertising; $17,500 administration, box office and ticket sales; $18,500 program expenses, and $76,800 tour expenses.

Major esitmates on earned income included $91,400 for the tours; $73,000 regular series season and single tickets; $33,800 tickets in the Baltimore series; $22,000 extra home concerts, and $21,000 program ads.

Moscow Papers Say 'Imperialists' Are After Finland

Moscow, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Izvestia, the government newspaper, and Pravda said today the imperialists were after Finland.

Finnish reactionaries are "sharply resisting" nationalization and the country's reconstruction "on healthy democratic foundations," Izvestia said, under pressure of "dollar diplomacy."

Pravda said the reactionary Finnish press had found a way to print "Anglo-American propaganda" without getting into trouble by publishing under "objective headlines all those wild anti-Soviet ravings which are fabricated day after day by the mercenary press of Anglo-American monopolies."

Mardi Gras Ball Tomorrow; Nine Queens Expected

Not one, but nine queens will attend Washington's Mardi Gras Ball staged by the Louisiana Society of Washington at 9 p. m. tomorrow at the Washington Hotel.

They include Miss Alisia Tosso, queen of the 1947 rice festival at Crowley, La.; Miss Celia Mount, queen of the sugar cane festival at New Iberia, La., and Miss Elsie Winters, queen of the "yambilee" (sweet potato) festival at Opelousas, La.

A former Louisiana girl now living in Washington will be chosen "Queen of the Ball." Representative Henry D. Larcade, jr. (D., La.), society president, said yesterday.

Engine Disintegrated, Killing Steward

6 Fishermen Saved; 5 Die In Pacific Gale

Astoria, Oreg., Feb. 8 (AP).—The Coast Guard today snatched to safety six fishermen caught in a howling southwester that took the lives of five other seamen.

The six were aboard the sinking fishing boat Fearless, towed here by the Coast Guard cutter Balsam after a night-long battle to keep afloat in the Pacific amidst a gale that reached 65 miles an hour.

Tugs pulled off a sandbar at Coos Bay, Oreg., the freighter Colorado, the only other vesel still reported in trouble from a storm that pounded a 700-mile stretch of the north Pacific shipping lanes.

Two other fishing boats, the Oakland and Captain Ludwig, were caught off Astoria, but successfully rode out the storm.

Three of the five dead were Canadians, drowned when a fishing boat sank 350 miles north of Victoria, B. C. An unidentified seaman was swept away by a giant wave on the tanker Tidewater, near Neah Bay, Wash.

The fifth victim was Peter Anderson, Astoria, drowned when a dinghy capsized at the mouth of the Columbia River.

Costa Rica Vote Reported Heavy

San Jose, Costa Rica, Feb. 8 (AP).—Heavy voting was indicated throughout the country today in an election to pick a successor to President Teodoro Picado.

Rafael Angel Calderon Guardia, Government Party candidate, and Otilio Ulate of the Union Nacional, were reported running a close race. Humberto Gaonzalez, a laborer backed by the Communist Vanguardia Popular, appealed to be receiving only scattered votes.

All domestic airlines were grounded, and bus service between towns was suspended. Road blocks were set up on all highways leading into the capital.

Engine Remnants Examined For Cause of Air Accident

Bunnell, Fla., Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Investigators today sought in remnants of a powerful engine the reason for a near-disastrous accident that killed one man and threatened the lives of 68 other persons aboard an Eastern Air Lines constellation plane yesterday.

The engine apparently exploded while the plane, en route from New York to Miami, was 80 miles from shore over the Atlantic. A part of it, said to be the propeller blade, killed a steward, who was the only casualty.

The 63 passengers, including four small children, were in their Florida resort destinations today while crewmen told their stories to inspectors of the Civil Aeronautics Administration here.

Capt. Henry T. (Dick) Merrill of transatlantic flight fame, and veteran pilot W. H. (Billy) Johnson, said it never was their actual intention to put the plane down in the Atlantic.

A "preparing to ditch" radio message had set off a mass rescue effort by Coast Guard, Navy and Army air and surface craft.

Johnson "just meant we were getting ready in case we had to," Merrill explained. The plane's normal radio power was cut off by the accident, leaving a small unit with only two or three minutes of power. This explained the failure to send further messages after the "ditching" one.

Johnson said there was no question of the plane's ability to fly. He circled Daytona Beach but it was closed in by fog. On the way to Daytona the Bunnell airstrip was visible through a break in the fog.

"We went back and the break was still there," Johnson said. "We came in without event."

Cries Reported Heard In N. C. Crash Area

Saluda, N. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—Unidentified cries reportedly heard near the scene of a crashed Air Force C-47 plane led to belief today at least one of four men thought to have perished in the impact might have survived.

One of six men injured in the crash died today. He was S/Sergt. S. F. Holmes of Maxwell Field, Ala.

The accident occurred as the C-47 was en route to the Greenville air base from Bolling Field, Washington, D. C.

80 in Pa. Town Put 'on Wagon' By 1872 Law

Bedford, Pa., Feb. 8 (AP).—Five women and 75 men in this mountain community have been forced "on the wagon" by a half-forgotten law of 1872.

Under the ancient Pennsylvania statute they have been banned from buying beer or liquor as persons of "known intemperate habits."

Each of the community's 11 bars prominently displays a list of the 80 offenders. The tavernkeeper who sells them a drink is subject to a fine of $25, 30 days in jail, and possible suspension of his liquor license.

Borough officials invoked the old law to cut down drunkenness.

"We just decided we'd put up with these people long enough," explained H. A. Clark, assistant police chief. "We got tired of helping them home at night. If we brought them in and fined them, we were working hardship on their families. This will work better."

Clark said the list would be bruought up to date every 90 days. If any of the listed offenders "have improved their habits," their drinking privileges will be restored.

Last night was a quiet Saturday night in Bedford.

Searchers Find 2 Dead In N. M. Plane Crash

Cloudcroft, N. M., Feb. 8 (AP).—State Republican Chairman Gerald D. Champion and his brother-in-law, H. M. Denney, were found dead today in the wreckage of their light plane, ending a five-day search.

The two men disappeared on a flight from Carlsbad last Tuesday.

Pilot Identified In Jet Explosion

Mount Clemens, Mich., Feb. 8 (AP).—Selfridge Field authorities today said the Air Force pilot killed in the explosion of a P-80 jet fiighter plane yesterday near Champaign, Ill., was First Lieut. Henry M. Straub of Detroit, assigned to the Sixty First Fighter Squadron at Selfridge Feld an done of the first pilots to fly a P-80 "shooting star" fighter.

Postwar Lack of Contact Baffling to Clairvoyants

London, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—The realities of the postwar period have caused an astonishing decline in psychic powers all over the world, the Society of Psychical Research reported today.

Mediums, telepathists, clairvoyants and other psychics all have been reporting an inexplicable difficulty in "getting through" since 1945, said the society, a scientific body which investigates supernatural events.

Dr. G. N. M. Tyrrell, past president, said the decline has been very marked in England.

The postwar world, Tyrrell said, "is too matter-of-fact for psychic function."

"After the first World War we were inundated with reports from people who had seen apparitions of their soldier dead. There has been nothing like that at all this time."

Tyrrell said as a result there are no immediate plans to open the secret message left with the society by Sir Oliver Lodge on his death in 1940. Lodge promised that if there is life after death he would come back from the other world to duplicate the message.

Firms Seek to Produce Scented Snow, Rain

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 8 (U.P.).—A Connecticut perfume company will try to enhance this town's aroma Tuesday by making scented snow or rain fall on it.

The Angelique Perfume Co. of Wilton has readied a plane to fly over the city sowing perfumed dry ice crystals in clouds which it hopes will produce rain or snow smelling like its latest perfume, "Black Satin."

Collective PARALYSIS on Palestine

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

Last spring the situation in Palestine appeared desperate enough to necessitate a special session of the United Nations Assembly. A committee was appointed to investigate and report; the regular Assembly session debated the question and, after a bitter fight, adopted a plan calling for the partition of the Holy Land. The British refuse to bear sole responsibility; the Arabs are in arms—and the Jews remain, for all practical purposes, in the same position as when this lengthy U. N. process began nearly a year ago. That is to say, they have no legal defense organization, no legal method of acquiring (or even possessing) arms, no legal method of increasing their strength through immigration. To be sure, they do have a paper promise of statehood from the U. N., but the international organization, apparently exhausted by the effort required to produce this document, is now striking attitudes of languor and embarrassment, waiting for Palestine to explode, or for someone to take the initiative in averting tragedy.

The position of the United States at this juncture is one of peculiar responsibility. Officially and unofficially the United States took the lead in urging a change in the conditions of the British mandate, and later in promoting partition. If Palestine collapses into anarchy upon the withdrawal of the British it will be a terrible reflection upon American policy no less than upon the prestige and authority of the United Nations. It is necessary, therefore, that this country take the initiative in securing U. N. action to implement partition.

The most obvious procedure would be to give the Jews of Palestine the legal right and the means to defend themselves, Mr. David Ben Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency, is confident of the ability of his people to protect their interests if they are allowed to form a militia and are armed by the U. N. Such a program, then, should be the first order of business for the Palestine Commission and the Security Council, and the United States could well exert every legitimate influence to secure the adoption of a definite plan toward this end.

If the Jews of Palestine can be armed and organized in time, there may well be no occasion for further U. N. action. But as a matter of insurance the world organization should canvass other methods of enforcing its decision. Palestine could be defended by contingents from U. N. member states. This would involve, in all probability, a Russian unit, as well as American troops. Another method would be through the formation of a distinctly U. N. constabulary, recruited from volunteers who would not represent individual states, but the organization as a whole. Such a force would take time to form and train, but it would be open to fewer objections than any other means of U. N. military intervention.

The U. N. is looking to the United States for some light and leading on the enforcement of partition, and this country cannot afford to withhold it. The keynote of American policy must be collective action; it should not involve unilateral measures that would impose the entire burden on the United States. But the present state of collective paralysis on the Palestine issue is too dangerous to endure—too dangerous for Palestine, for the U. N. and for the United States.

Diners to Get Safe Driving Hints at Table

Safety driving campaigners will invade the dinner table this month to emphasize careful winter driving. The program is part of a year-round drive in the District.

During the month, table cards will be placed on restaurant and hotel dining room tables expounding five steps for accident-free winter driving. The rules are:

1. Use tire chains on ice and snow.
2. Keep windshield wipers in good working order.
3. Drive slowly and carefully on slippery streets, particularly on curves.
4. Keep clutch engaged as long as possible and don't jam brakes in slowing or stopping the car; pump brakes gently.
5. Don't follow other cars too closely; signal your intentions of stopping or turning well in advance.

The cards are being placed through the cooperation of the Washington Restaurant Association and the Hotel Association of Washington with the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board and the District Department of Vehicles and Traffic, sponsors of the entire campaign.

Medical Education Deterioration Feared

Chicago, Feb. 8 (AP).—The Association of American Medical Colleges today said the quality of medical educatoin "is in danger of deteriorating for lack of sufficient funds."

The association's executive committee, which concluded its annual midwinter meeting today, said "All medical schools are experiencing great difficulty in finding funds for the adequate training of physicians."

Million-Gal. Supply Of Fuel Due Here

Prediction was right . . .

Oil and Kerosene Are Scheduled to Arrive This Week

More than a million gallons of fuel oil, Diesel oil and kerosene are scheduled to arrive in the District this week with the first shipments expected here by this morning.

A Standard Oil official stressed, however, that the situation here still is basically "hand-to-mouth", and District Fuel Oil Coordinator J. Thomas Kennedy said withdrawals from the emergency pool continued yesterday.

While the coordinator's office remained closed yesterday for the first time since the fuel shortage began, Kennedy said he received calls for emergency oil from the Blue Plains and Camp Simms areas in Southeast Washington, and arranged for 5000 gallons to be sent there during the day.

In Emergency Pool

The Coordinating Committee's emergency pool, from which allocations are made for emergency cases after investigation, contained about 60,000 gallons of fuel oil and not more than 20,000 gallons of kerosene as of Saturday night, Kennedy reported.

Standard Oil officials expected two barges to arrive here late last night, bringing 650,000 gallons of No. 2 fuel oil and kerosene, and 650,000 gallons of gasoline.

R. L. Scarborough, plant superintendent, said he thought the general situation was no better than 10 days ago, particularly in view of threatened cold weather.

A spokesman for the Petrol Corp. said a 500,000-gallon fuel oil shipment, expected here by barge, had returned to Baltimore. It will be sent by tank truck instead, he said, as soon as transport could be obtained. As much as 100,000 to 150,000 gallons can be shipped in a 24-hour period over the road if the trucks are available.

Also due here today or tomorrow is a Navy loan shipment of 420,000 gallons of Diesel oil. The loan was arranged at a conference of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Mark E. Andrews.

Kennedy said he had been assured by oil men that Diesel oil could be used for home heating.

John Manyette, 16, of 4631 G st. se., suffered cuts and bruises of the thighs when his sled hit a tree in front of his home. He was treated and released at Gallinger Hospital.

Tankers Sold Abroad Must Bring Back Oil

Tankers sold abroad from now on must bring back at least one cargo of oil to this country, the Maritime Commission has announced.

This condition was applied to the sale of 10 tankers to Italy, and a similar clause will be included in sales agreements with other foreign buyers. The Italian tankers will bring oil from the Caribbean.

New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, warning that the State faces a critical fuel oil shortage within two weeks, has appealed to the Government Office of Defense Transportation for 300 railroad tank cars to move emergency supplies into hard-hit upstate areas.

With the upper Hudson unsafe for barges, the Governor declared, emergency supplies must be moved by railroad for about a month.

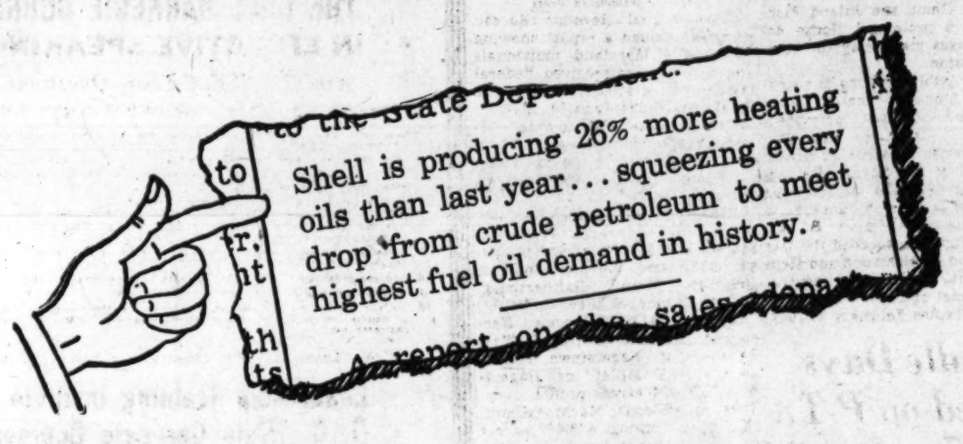
How to stretch a Barrel

Shell is pushing fuel oil production to record capacity



Shell is producing 26% more heating oils than last year . . . squeezing every drop from crude petroleum to meet highest fuel oil demand in history.

Wizardry has limits:

To get more fuel oil, why not cut down or eliminate less needed products—make all of the barrel of "crude" into heating oils? That won't work because there is a limited percentage of heating oil "components" in a barrel of petroleum. To get at the fuel oils, you must first remove a certain amount of gasoline and other products.

Delivery—by every possible means:

To get kerosene and heating oil to you fast, Shell runs transportation facilities day and night. This includes use of pipelines, river barges, tank cars, trucks, and ocean-going tankers. For efficiency in the use of these distributing facilities, Shell won the 1947 A.S.M.E. award.

But a barrel can be stretched:

Shell is using all known methods—and thinking up new ones—to get you more fuel oil. Under conditions of maximum operating efficiency, every possible drop of heating oils is being extracted from the "crude." Compared with a year ago, Shell refineries are processing 11% more crude, but producing 26% more fuel oil.

Less flame—more heat:

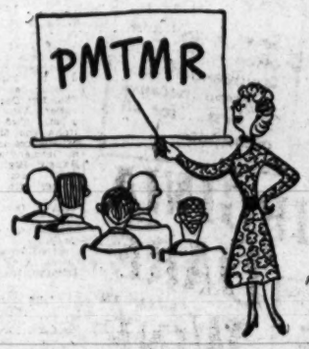
Supplementing refinery production and distribution is Shell's Fuel Oil Laboratory—foremost of its kind in the world. Here, scientists work to get more heat from less oil . . . work with oil burner manufacturers to get top efficiency from fuel and burners.

Demands do skyrocket:

Because petroleum is so useful, demands for all products are now 33.8% above the pre-war record—9.1% above war peaks! Industrial requirements are up 18% . . . farm demands have doubled . . . diesel needs are up 182%. Requirements for kerosene and heating oil are now exceeding the pre-war high by 45%.

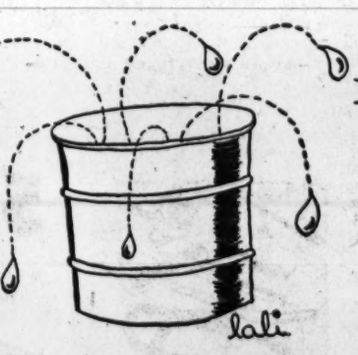
PMTMR spells oil:

Ever think of the teamwork necessary to deliver a gallon of fuel oil? At Shell it means thousands of people in Production—to find and produce more "crude"... Manufacturing, to squeeze out every drop from "crude"... Transportation, to move oil to refineries and products to distributing centers . . . Marketing, to get them to your door . . . and Research, to add to product quality and operating efficiency.



"Bouncing off the bottom":

One way to get more fuel oil to your door is to keep it "bouncing off the bottom" of the storage tanks. This means getting the fuel oil from the refinery into the supply pipe line, and on its way to the consumer, about as fast as it is made. That's being done!



68° by day—60° by night:

Despite record output, unprecedented demands for kerosene and fuel oil have resulted in a tight supply. That's where you can help. Don't overheat your house. Don't set your thermostat higher than 68° . . . and at night never above 60°. You can save up to 15% on your fuel oil bill by this single common-sense step.

Today, the oil industry's production of heating oils is the greatest in history—but demands are even greater. If everyone saves a little, there'll be enough for all.

Assembly Tackling Biggest Problem Of Current Session

Richmond, Va., Feb. 8 (AP).—Back from its session at Williamsburg, Virginia's General Assembly will turn again tomorrow to wrestle with its biggest 1948 problem—to tax or not to tax.

Before the lawmakers are five or six bills by which Governor Tuck proposed to raise tax rates to yield an additional $21,700,000 in the 1948-50 biennium.

The bills will be before the House of Delegates as a special and continuing order of business, beginning at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow. If Friday's first House skirmishes are a reliable token, House debate will continue for several hours.

The bills call for increases in personal income tax rates through all brackets; in corporation income tax rates; in licenses for retail and wholesale merchants; in recordation taxes and in beer excise rates. A sixth bill, still in committee, would hike the rates on gross receipts of public service corporations.

The tax debate probably will prevent the House from taking up the Richmond charter bill, reported favorably Thursday by the Committee on Counties, Cities and Towns, and which will be on tomorrow's House calendar for the second reading — the crucial, amendable stage.

A hearing on legislation to increase hunting and fishing license fees has been scheduled for 2:30 p. m. tomorrow by the House Committee on Game and Inland Fisheries, but a prolonged House debate on taxes may delay the committee session.

Another public hearing is scheduled for Monday evening, when House and Senate committees jointly will take up bills permitting women to serve on juries.

As part of its duties, the Assembly this week also will face the election of an attorney general to succeed the late Harvey B. Apperson, a judge to succeed the late Julien Gunn in Richmond and Henrico Circuit Court, and several other judicial officials whose present terms expire February 1, 1949.

500 Jewry Leaders Expected Here for Temple Meeting

Some 500 Jewish leaders from 30 States, including some of the country's leading rabbis, are expected to attend the twelfth biennial 4-day convention of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, opening at the Shoreham Hotel Thursday.

The Federation is designed to help the American Jewish layman to carry into daily life the ideals of the synagogue.

Chairman of the sessions will be Jesse Cohen of Brooklyn, who will lead a pilgrimage to the Lincoln Memorial Thursday at 10 a. m.

Following the pilgrimage and registration, the first session at 2 p. m. will open with an invocation by James L. Magrish of Cincinnati, first vice president, and a welcoming address by Bernard Conn, president of the Washington Hebrew Association.

Keynote speaker on the opening day will be Dr. Modecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, who will discuss the positive role of education in a symposium conducted by Leon L. Berkowitz of Philadelphia, chairman of the Jewish Chautauqua Society. Other participants will be Rabbi Hugo Schiff of Alexandria, Va., and Rabbi Abraham Shusterman of Baltimore.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES!

well-prepared nurse has innumerable fields open to her.

The Profession of Nursing offers you a well-paid lifetime career!

Whether you choose a career or marriage or whether like so many modern girls you want both, your nursing education will enrich your entire life.

If you are looking for a profitable career that will give you poise, teach you how to handle people, educate you and develop all your potentialities—then find out today what nursing has to offer you:

Education: You will receive one of the finest three-year scientific educations, for far less than the cost of four years at college. When you have successfully completed your studies, you will be qualified to become a professional Registered Nurse. In some schools, you can also receive a Bachelor of Science degree.

In addition, you will enjoy life in a dormitory, and all the fun that goes with it, recreation, time off every week, occasional week ends and, of course, a vacation.

Career: After thorough training under physicians and nurses, there are innumerable fields open to you. You may become a staff or private duty nurse in one of our fine hospitals. You may work in industry, psychiatry, child or public health, Veterans' Administration, U. S. Public Health Service, Army or Navy.

You can stay in your own home town or you can easily find work that will take you to any part of this country or to any corner of the earth. That's another of the many advantages you may enjoy as a graduate nurse.

Marriage: Most nurses do marry. When you do, you will find that your nursing education was an ideal preparation for family life and for leadership in the community where you live.

You: The knowledge of human psychology, the confidence you gain from your rich experience working with fine professional men and women will help you in every type of work you undertake.

THERE ARE MANY OPPORTUNITIES OPEN TO YOU—IF YOU QUALIFY

To qualify for this profession, you must be under 35, a high school graduate, or a college girl.

Fall classes are being filled now, so go or write today to the hospital where you would like to enter nursing. A friendly adviser is waiting there to talk confidentially with you.

FORMER SERVICE WOMEN
Wacs, Waves, Marines and Spars!
If you qualify as a student nurse, your allowance under the G. I. Bill of Rights may cover your entire nursing education.

Library Exchange

For more than a century the Library of Congress has been one of the foremost American intellectual contacts with other nations through the exchange of books and information. In a sense the library, on its own, has been the embodiment of one of the fundamental aims of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. It is especially fitting, therefore, that the Congressional Library should be the locale of an exhibit, opening tonight and continuing through March, depicting the various ways in which cooperation with UNESCO has been carried out.

Aside from the library's own part, the scope of UNESCO's activities will be depicted in a State Department presentation showing the organizational structure as well as the current program approved at the Mexico City conference last fall. Many original international treaties and documents from the National Archives will provide background. What many persons will find most interesting are the library's particular historical contributions to UNESCO's purposes. These will include displays of books and similar materials available to other nations and illustrations dealing with the bibliography service, the publications of foreign learned societies and the exchange of technical personnel. As evidence of the work being done to further the most lasting of all international ties, the sharing of knowledge, the exhibit is well worth seeing.

Prices And Politics

Secretary Anderson's announcement that the Government might purchase an additional 50 million bushels of grain for export brought a quick comeback from Senator Taft. He charged the Secretary with attempting to boost sagging grain prices, and declared that the Administration is afraid prices actually will come down. Although Secretary Anderson denies that his announcement was intended to affect market movements, his timing was certainly maladroit. At any rate, it laid him open to a suspicion of inconsistency, following his eloquent appeals to consumers voluntarily to ration their food dollars to bring down living costs. Last week, too, President Truman chose an inopportune moment to reiterate warnings that a crash would follow failure to halt the rising spiral of prices. Since prices of foodstuffs were sliding while he was speaking, his political foes suspect that he is preparing to shift the blame for a possible price debacle to the shoulders of the Republicans who have rejected his anti-inflation control program.

All this political jockeying unfortunately obscures the importance of straight thinking about the price problems that confront the Nation. As a matter of fact, the great majority of people are happier when prices are rising. For inflation produces a state of mind favorable to expanded business activity and full employment, so long as the public expects prices to keep on rising. That optimistic frame of mind sows the seed of disaster by causing inflation to feed on itself and produce more inflation, until the top-heavy price structure eventually collapses.

A glance at any price chart shows that the price structure is already dangerously unbalanced, owing to the fact that increases in food prices have far outstripped advances in other living cost items. The more people have to spend for food, the less they have to spend for other things. Consequently, runaway food prices constitute a major threat to economic stability. It would be playing with dynamite for the Administration to gamble on the chance of being able to support this distorted price structure in order to improve its chances of victory in November. For food costs have already soared to heights that have forced millions of consumers to ration their food dollars without any prodding from the Secretary of Agriculture. Other millions will be faced by the same necessity, if the upward trend is not halted. All these pressures lead to new demands for wage increases that handicap production and bring nearer the day of reckoning.

We believe that the Administration is genuinely impressed by the dangers of letting inflation ride. Such an attitude is not inconsistent with alarm over the developments of last week. For if runaway deflation were to follow on the heels of the current price declines, the crash that the President fears would be inevitable. That fear no doubt accounts for the dismayed public reaction to market news that appeared to be an answer to public prayers. In a previous editorial we gave our reasons for believing that the danger of a catastrophic price break is remote. Indeed, the best insurance against such a disaster is provided by corrective price movements that bring down living costs—especially food costs. If it is possible to arrest the steady shrinkage of consumer purchasing power, while effective demand is still strong enough to maintain business activity at high levels, the danger of later precipitate price declines leading to business paralysis will be greatly minimized.

Mr. Truman's Troubles

It appears that Mr. Truman and the political strategists to whom he has entrusted his campaign for renomination and reelection have been advancing toward November with their wings, so to speak, "in the air." Now they find themselves gravely imperiled on each flank. To the left they are harassed by Mr. Wallace and his pink-coated partisans. To the right they are not only menaced by the heavy dragoons of Big Business in cuirasses of gleaming gold and bristling plumes fashioned from the stubs of innumerable checkbooks, by isolationist ambushes and by the parthian warfare of fanatical Constitutionalists; they are also threatened with the defection of some of their own best disciplined and hitherto most dependable troops, meaning the Southern Democrats.

It has been evident for some time that Mr. Wallace has the Administration leaders badly worried. It is not, of course, that they take him seriously as a competitor for the Presidency; but they fear, not without reason, that in certain important States, such as New York, Illinois, Michigan and California, he may succeed in deflecting enough votes from Mr. Truman to tip the balance in favor of the Republican candidate. This, indeed, is supposed to be all that Mr. Wallace himself is hoping for. His game, according to most students of the matter, is to assure the election of a Republican Administration, which would find itself dealing with a formidable inflationary crisis, a crisis that could be surmounted only by the most drastic and heroic remedies. The widespread hardships which must accompany such a crisis would inevitably be blamed upon the party in power and would thus make the American masses more receptive than they are now to revolutionary doctrines. Thus, it is said, Mr. Wallace may reasonably hope to emerge as the leader of a new radical party, or popular front.

There are some who profess themselves cynical enough to believe that if it were not for the threat afforded by Mr. Wallace's candidacy, Mr. Truman might not have chosen the present moment for asking Congress for fresh legislation against lynching, for the abolition of poll taxes and other limitations of the franchise and for the preventing of discriminatory practices by employers. In other words, it has been suggested that Mr. Truman has been seeking to outbid Mr. Wallace for the support of certain elements among the Democratic electorate of certain populous States.

Unfortunately for Mr. Truman, the candidacy of Mr. Wallace has also created a situation which is tactically advantageous to those conservative Democrats who for many years have been smoldering with accumulated grudges and discontents. Hitherto, the Southern politicians have been held in line in election years by the knowledge that even the little patronage and influence allowed them by the Democratic Administration is preferable to nothing under a Republican Administration. Now, however, they are speculating with considerable interest about what might happen if there were not merely three but four candidates in the field next November.

It seems to them pretty plain that Mr. Truman cannot be elected unless he can count on the electoral votes of the Solid South. It seems to them possible that if these votes could be diverted, not of course to the Republican candidate, but to a Southern Democratic candidate nominated by a rump convention, the day after election might show that not any candidate had received a clear majority of electoral votes. In that case the balance of power would lie with the electors from the Southern States. They would then be in position to throw the election into the House of Representatives where the votes of the Southern States would count for as much as the votes of more populous States. In that case the South would be in a most advantageous situation for bargaining.

Such is the possibility which Senator Overton and some other Southerners are now beginning to explore. There are, of course, many strong arguments against attempting to carry through such a revolt, among them the certainty of provoking at a time of international danger a constitutional crisis scarcely less serious than the economic crisis on which Mr. Wallace and his friends are counting so heavily. All the same, we can expect to hear a good deal of discussion about it in the next few weeks, enough, at any rate, to add considerably to the present worries and apprehensions of Mr. Truman and his managers.

Hidden Dollars

In a letter published on this page today, Representative Sundstrom quotes some of the arguments we advanced recently in defense of the Treasury's decision to help foreign governments to locate concealed assets of their nationals in support of his own plan for locating hidden dollars. However, we emphasized the fact that the Treasury was simply aiding foreign governments to secure desired information without putting pressure on them to convert assets to their own use.

The Sundstrom plan is an entirely different sort of proposal, designed to disclose the location of dollars held here as well as abroad, whether owned by foreigners or Americans. It involves nothing less than the recall and exchange of all outstanding dollar currency issues and their replacement by new issues—the exchange to be forced by depriving old issues of legal tender status after a specified date. Foreigners who are hoarding dollars would be compelled to turn in their holdings to their governments in exchange for local currencies at official values—a proceeding that would result in losses to the nationals of countries whose currencies are overvalued in terms of dollars.

No doubt the Sundstrom plan would bring to light large amounts of hoarded dollars belonging to foreigners—dollars that their governments could use to advantage in financing imports from the United States. It might also help the Bureau of Internal Revenue to locate some American tax dodgers who have cash from undeclared earnings stowed away in safe deposit vaults. However, the gains resulting from the proposal are far outweighed by its disadvantages. Contrary to Mr. Sundstrom's opinion, Secretary Snyder points out that replacement of the huge volume of paper currency now outstanding would be a costly operation. A much more serious objection to the plan is that it might shake the confidence of the American people in their currency. In case of foreigners such fears would be well founded, since this Government would, under the Sundstrom bill be guilty of bad faith in compelling holders of dollars to redeem them in foreign currencies at rates of exchange fixed by foreign governments.

Sniping At The Chest

Considering the flimsy nature of some of its charges, we think the minority report growing out of the Community Chest survey some months ago has been given more attention than it deserves. The report undoubtedly contains some telling points against the Chest as it has been organized and operated in the past. But it is also replete with misinformation and illogical conclusions. The minority members, representing the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Federation of Business Men's Associations, showed appropriate discretion in withholding their report during the recent Chest drive for funds. It is a pity that they did not take advantage of this interval to bring their criticism into line with the facts and to minimize the obvious bias in their judgment.

At numerous points the dissenters challenge the Chest for misrepresentation of facts. Chest officials are taken to task, for example, for telling contributors that their gifts will go to agencies designated on the pledge cards. Under the heading, "The Facts," the dissenters insist that "the contributor's choice was ignored" by the Chest. But Lee D. Butler, president of the Washington Chest, denies that the earmarking of funds by contributors was ever ignored. What Chest officials told the survey group is that in the past not enough donors singled out special organizations to have any effect on appropriations from the Chest. The dissenters had sadly garbled the facts.

"In the entire history of Chest-Council relations," the dissenters complain, only one agency has been dropped from membership through adverse recommendation." But 15 others have voluntarily withdrawn. This fact, replies Mr. Butler, "may indicate diplomatic handling of some problems without an application coming up for official vote of the board of trustees." The president of the Chest readily acknowledges that there is merit in the dissenters' point that "no central group has been in a position to hear grievances or criticisms of any agency." When the Chest takes over the job of raising funds for many organizations, it takes from the public the means of disciplining those agencies. Certainly some other means of airing complaints and exposing inefficiency ought to be adopted. We cannot believe, however, that any reasonable system would result in excluding from the Chest the 22 agencies that the dissenters wish to throw out.

The agencies cited for elimination fall into two categories: 15 would be dropped immediately, including the Animal Rescue League, the Legal Aid Society, the Criminal Justice Association, the Washington Housing Association and the Urban League. Seven others were recommended for transfer from private to public operation within a year. The dissenters admit that the Child Welfare Clinic of Children's Hospital "serves its area well." The Travelers Aid Society and the Washington Home for Foundlings are doing "fine work" with limited resources. Yet they are recommended for transfer. Support of agencies of this sort seems to us the essence of the Community Chest function. The dissenters need to be reminded that it is even more difficult to secure welfare funds from the District purse than from the Chest. Their recommendation seems utterly to ignore the fact of the District's disfranchisement.

Nor can we accept the dissenters' view that a purge of "controversial" agencies from the Chest—agencies now receiving $325,000—would assure sufficient funds for the children, the aged, the sick and the needy. When purging is begun, except for reasons of inefficiency or misuse of Chest funds, there is no place to stop. The "purged" organizations would take vast numbers of contributors with them and the Chest as a whole would be in danger of disintegration. Hope for rehabilitation of the Chest lies, rather, in the amalgamation of its planning and money-raising arms. The best part of the news on this subject is the announcement that a merger of the Chest and the Council of Social Agencies is to be announced this week.

Foreign Investments

Your editorial February 5, "Hidden Assets," interests me greatly. Although it deals with investments concealed in this country by nationals of foreign governments, to be aided under the Marshall Plan, the editorial applies with equal vigor to the proposal made in my bill H. R. 5239. In the editorial, you say:

"American taxpayers are being asked to make large contributions to European recovery. Consequently it seems only fair to assist the efforts of foreign governments to obtain control of dollars concealed by their own people in defiance of the laws of their several countries—dollars that would, to a limited extent, relieve the burden imposed on the American people. The plan finally devised will at least propitiate, though it will not satisfy, critics who insist that all American assets belonging to the nationals of Marshall Plan countries should be surrendered by their owners for the use of their governments as a means of cutting the cost of American taxpayers of the European relief program."

My bill would recall outstanding United States currency and replace it, dollar for dollar, with a new issue. My plan is simple. Its cost is negligible. Time is no factor. Instead of releasing the relatively few millions hoarded in investments, it would put to work—in the cause of humanity—literally billions of hoarded dollars. This one act would make our European relief more effective and it would, as you so aptly point out, be "a means of cutting the cost to American taxpayers."

Democracy's Meaning

To some, democracy is a great deal more than a mere word or a vague term because, down deep in their hearts they know, when it is pronounced, it means very definite and agreeable things, the most vital among which is the inalienable right to pursue our own personal happiness in our own good way, as long as our way does not deprive our fellows of the same equal right or impede their efforts to obtain it.

To others, democracy is merely an empty word or term which has no positive reference to precise and palpable things. To them, it is a word with which they are quite familiar, but, in reality, it is evident they do not know what is meant by it. Democracy, as I see it, signifies social objects which, because they are chosen by the people, give perfect freedom to the peoples' energy, intellect and virtues. Therefore, democracy is a government by all the people and is, beyond doubt, the most precious thing in the world today.

I am at a loss to understand, in view of the simple but clear definition of democracy which can be found in all standard dictionaries, how such a positive and definite word possibly could be mistaken to mean so many vague, different things to different people. There are certain people who know better; however, their rotten lives are dedicated to the purpose of misleading as many fools as possible to believe that democracy is a vague term which means anything from soup to nuts, with a pound of the Soviet regime, a half-pound of the Fascist regimes, a quarter of a pound of liberal socialism and a quarter of a pound of democracy.

Democracy, first and last, is a government of all the people, for all the people, by all the people, not a government of the people by politicians, for cartels and other pressure groups. In other words, the essential authority of a democratic government is in the people and not in the President, nor the Congress. Otherwise, democracy is just a vague word, without meaning anything at all.

Corporation Taxes

It is my hope that corporation taxes may be lowered, whether or not small income taxes are lowered. We in the low wage brackets can't hope to gain more than a pitiful few dollars leniency, at any rate. On a Grade IV salary, one eats and pays some kind of rent; buys a very few clothes; can't pay much in the way of medical or dental fees—or if one has to, the answer is more and more debt. Those few dollars would not remedy this much; they would be lost in a single thing, such as the recent increase in telephone rates and the projected transportation increase.

If, on the other hand, the corporation taxes could be sizably reduced, it would be a first step against inflation. It would also be a first step in good will.

The corporations feel that they are turning over great shares of their due profits to the Government, and demand larger and larger backlogs of profit to safeguard their financial status. The corporations are vindictive against cost-of-living wage adjustments; when prices have risen five times, and union wages three times, and Government employes' wages once (about the actual ratio)—the corporations blame the high prices on these wage increases.

Relieve the corporations of their taxes. Let them feel that they keep most of what they make in profits from the prices they charge over the wages they pay plus raw materials and maintenance costs. They will be content with the large profits they are making—even with smaller ones more like they used to make. There will be relief to the consumer everywhere, who will be relieved of the necessity of paying indirectly the corporation taxes (for who else actually does pay them?).

Circle Trisection

A newspaper has a responsibility to educate rather than mislead the public and should not hasten to give space (as did The Washington Post of February 2) to the rantings of a Texas carpenter on mathematical questions involving circles, including the important problem of the number "pi", which we single out for discussion here.

The true understanding and exact evaluation of this number requires a deep knowledge of mathematics far beyond the ordinary college level. For example, the ancient Greeks were expert geometers, but "pi" stumped them because they did not know calculus. And on that famous Saturday afternoon when Sir Isaac Newton sat down at his desk and invented calculus, while a giant forward step was taken, there remained much yet to be done.

The final theoretical solution was not obtained until 1880, when the German alegbraist Schmirhaus showed that "pi" is precisely that unique element of the Cantor nowhere-dense perfect set which is a topological invariant of the Cauchy-Riemann partial differential equations. Fifteen years later Skrobotov, applying the powerful Fourier transform to this result, was able to demonstrate that "pi" is congruent to 5 modulo 12. It may be pointed out that many prominent mathematicians have since attempted to improve upon this, but without success.

Medical Insurance

In a letter published February 4, "Patient" expressed a plea for "some insurance scheme to enable the average man to afford doctors' services." Since "Patient" lives in Washington he might be interested in Group Health Association, Inc., a medical cooperative. We have been thankful for the insurance aspect of GHA membership and have been well pleased with the quality of the service. Dues $36 a year for adults, $24 per child) cover doctors' services and hospital bills. Further information can be obtained by telephoning the business office at EX. 8000.

Removing Europe's Barriers

If there is one lesson we learn from history it is that we learn so little. Any one at all familiar with the development of Europe since the decline of its landed patriciate and the rise of machine production cannot but regard with skepticism plans which envisage its reconstruction in terms of blocs, east or west.

While the financial community supports the ERP on principle, they do so, congressional hearings indicate, without illusions. With careful insistence they stressed the hazards of partitioning the Old World into spheres of influence.

What is transcendentally momentous in the solution of this crisis is an appreciation of the essential homogeneity of the Old World. And by the Old World modern scholars mean not merely its western confines but the totality of its territory from European Russia to the Atlantic. This unity is an historic process accompanying the flowering of science and technology in the Western Hemisphere.

The compulsions of this phenomenon are inexorable and, as in the past, are fated to override all nationalist illusions. The burden of its great influence was noted by John Maynard Keynes when, in his Economic Consequences of the Peace, he wrote: "Europe is solid with herself. France, Germany, Italy, Austria and Holland, Russia and Romania and Poland, throb together, and their structure and civilization are one."

The political divisions of Europe are hopelessly archaic. They are not less responsible for its present chaos than the devastation wrought by the Second World War. Unless removed they may be germ of World War III. The submarginal standard of living which prevails in Stalinland and in the West are the bitter fruit of its artificial customs barriers — precariously sustained by social mysticisms, left and right. The current jockeying between the blocs is merely tactical maneuvers prolonging between them the peace which is not a peace but at best an uncertain armistice.

The rehabilitation of Europe is manifestly conditioned upon the recognition of her economic solidarity. Designing diplomats inspired by a reckless nationalism impede this recovery. This is seen in the recent devaluation of the franc which jeopardized the fiscal stability of Britain.

Commenting upon this aspect of nationalism, Anne O'Hare McCormick (New York Times, January 31) wrote, "The economics of European nations impinge so closely upon one another, like the franc and the pound, that they can hardly function at all any more except in the broad framework of a common plan. The clash between Britain and France on devaluation has done more than anything to explode the idea that the interests of one country can be protected against the interests of its neighbor. The division between countries desiring the same end shows up the futility of division."

Poetry And Despair

ON THE ILIAD, by Rachel Bespaloff. Translated from the French by Mary McCarthy; introduction by Hermann Broch. (Pantheon Books, $2.50.)

These essays are of interest as the first example that has come my way of the application of the new existentialist philosophy to literary criticism. Mr. Broch to be sure tells us that their significance is "rather Kierkegaardian than existentialist," but at this stage of my education in the subject, I confess that the distinction eludes me. In any case an existentialist criticism must be guided by "the tragic sense of life," by the wisdom that is born of despair and by the powers engendered by the knowledge of one's own impotence and isolation. All these paradoxes imply the repudiation of the deceitful comforts of an abstract rationalism. For what is reason, or science, but a clumsy and never successful effort to put together the symbolic fragments of a universal vision that has been broken by blind and brutal nature of history and by the inescapable realities of power? Such a vision, Mme. Bespaloff tells us, is possible only at moments of "radical disenchantment," when "the absence of choice compels us to choose."

Reading the Iliad in the light of her paradoxes, Mme. Bespaloff evolves an existentialist theory of poetry. Poetry, it seems, is the means of preserving the transcendent vision which arises when men, having come to understand the inexorable and tyrannical terms of their existence, and have found courage to repudiate these terms in the one way possible, that is by an heroic acceptance of them. Hector, for example, knowing himself to be doomed, resolves that he will not die without "some high deed, which will reach the ears of men to come." Thus Hector "at a point when justice has been utterly crushed and obliterated," creates it for himself. In opposing mere nobility to the ferocity of Achilles, he is slain indeed, but he achieves in death and in the imagination of Homer "the beauty that outlives force"; and so becomes to later generations the most endearing of the Homeric heroes. But Achilles, too, is beautiful and tragic since he is the embodiment of the self-destructive violence which becomes cruelty because it dares not recognize any limits to its power of destruction. Thus in a sense Achilles is defeated by his victims for "Yycaon's youth will rise again and Priam's wisdom and Ilion's beauty." As for Helen, the cause of all the violence, she is most tragic of all. She is the avatar of all that men and nations fight for in every age and can never possess including "markets, raw material, rich lands and their treasures." She can never belong to Paris any more than to Menelaus, for it is the nature of beauty to forsake "alike those who beget, or contemplate, or desire it." We must exist like the heroes in the world of Becoming, but beauty belongs to the world of Being, which we may enter only briefly and only in those moments of serenity which are purchased with our grief.

We may perceive, then, how Homer replaced the diffused and irrelevant magic of an animistic religion by a new revelation in which nature and existence are reconciled, out of which arose a new ethics. But such a revelation, received in the ecstasy of despair, can be communicated only in its wholeness, that is to say by poetry. Otherwise its ethics are degraded into morality, for Mme. Bespaloff carefully distinguishes the terms, Ethics means the "supreme resources" of the spirit which may be discovered through despair. Morality arises from the effort to make use of these resources in one's day to day existence. "One tries then to obtain, through discipline, a style of life that will perpetuate the memory of these instants of inwardness. But as soon as subjectivity drops from its momentary exaltation to its normal level it loses its capacity for transcending itself and of its transformation remains only a feeble image . . . Thus the bond that attaches ethics to poetry is infinitely more profound and more solid than the bond that shackles ethics to morality."

Accordingly, Mme. Bespaloff strives to show us that there are profounder correspondences between the Iliad and the Bible than between either of them and the abstractions of philosophers and theologians. One book indeed belongs to the religion of fate and the other to the religion of redemption, but each acknowledges "the incommensurability of ethical categories with the action of a just God in history." The prime example is Job. "Job argues and accuses, but God, like Fatum, does not justify Himself." But, again, from the very knowledge that justice is not to be demanded and from the resolution to love God the more ardently because of this knowledge the conscience is illumined and a new justice is born. Thus when God visits his wrath upon the nation, though His punishments fall alike upon the just and unjust, the nation may console iself by the thought of redemption and resurrection. Thus in the poetry of the prophets justice becomes an aspiration, something that may be "hammered out in the great confusion of history." Thus, too, the just man in Zion as in Athens is one who "knows no inner division when he finds himself surrounded by adversaries."

It is easy enough to perceive why such a philsophy as Mme. Bespaloff's has such dangerous attractions for such a generation as ours. By every sign our Western World has entered on what the archeologists calls an "heroic age"—that is to say a sort of interregnum between the breaking up of an old and decadent civilization and coming of historical darkness. And such of course was the world of the Homeric heroes.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

In The Doldrums

IT IS NOW probable that the net result will be a decision to set up the machinery of a European Recovery Program, to provide funds to start it, leaving it to the new Congress next winter to decide whether and how far it is to be carried on. A lot of extraordinary things would have to happen quickly here and abroad to bring about a larger and bigger commitment than that.

Lippmann

The whole project would have to be lifted from the plane of dollar-deficits—cum-Communist-menace to that of European-union - and - general settlement. For only a very big political idea could be the soul, only great political measures could be the life and energy, of so great a material undertaking as the whole Marshall Plan calls for.

FAILING THAT the program can be only what it now is—one item among many which compete for the attention of Congress and the people, one charge among many upon the revenues of the Government and the income of the Nation. Though its wisest sponsors did not intend it, the ERP has been presented as a mixture of relief and anti-communism. As a relief measure it has to compete with relief for China, relief for the occupied areas, relief for many distressed localities and interests in the United States, relief for the taxpayer, relief for the victims of the inflation. As an anti-Communist measure it has to compete with our enormously expensive military establishment, with the proposals for a huge expansion of the strategic Air Force, with universal military training, and with the whole bag of commitments and entanglements in Greece, Turkey, Iran, western Germany, Korea and elsewhere.

If, as is true, Congress and the people are favorable to the Marshall Plan but not passionately favorable, it is because the statesmen of the western world have offered them very little to be passionate about. Mr. Marshall has been told that the way to create a sense of "urgency" is to make another speech, or another two or three speeches, about the horrors and dangers of communism, and to publish some more documents and some more intelligence reports. It would not help the Marshall Plan at all. For if he persuaded the American people that they are on the verge of war with Russia, it would be hard to persuade them to take much interest in rehabilitating the industries of western Europe just before the Russians seized them. The Marshall Plan makes no sense as a war measure; if we are preparing for war, the industries that need our attention are our own, those which can be securely defended.

IT IS ONLY as an investment in peace, as an engine for the settlement of the last war, as the incentive to the unification of Europe, that the Marshall Plan can be justified honestly, or made intelligible, or administered successfully, or promoted so that our people will make the sustained effort that the program calls for. But neither the State Department nor the British Foreign Office has as yet faced up to the basic decisions of high policy, or gone very far towards examining them, much less negotiating about them.

That is why the supporters of the ERP are unable to generate within themselves a conviction of passionate urgency, and to communicate it to Congress. They realize that the decisions have not yet been taken in Europe which will have to be taken in order to support the long program and the large commitment to underwrite the European deficit with this hemisphere and the outer world. That is why Congress will now do no more than to make a beginning, and then we shall see whether in the months to come there is progress towards that European unity which the program calls for, and Mr. Bevin has recently begun to talk about.

For this country will not be able to underwrite the recovery of Europe until Europe in something more than a group of disunited states.

WE MUST NOT underestimate the difficulties which the European governments must overcome in achieving a greater unity. But it is clear enough. I think, where the greatest difficulty lies. It is in Germany. That is where Mr. Bevin's "western union" is going to founder unless he and Mr. Marshall review and revise radically their present conception of the structure of Germany. For there is no way that a centralized Reich can be fitted into a European confederation; it would be too big, too dangerous, and much too unreliable.

A western union which includes a centralized German government in the British-American zones can never be formed. The Scandinavians could not, the French will not, the Italians dare not, join it. But though this German policy will prevent a western union, it will promote and consolidate the eastern union. As long as the English-speaking nations show so little knowledge of the realities of Europe that they promote the re-creation of a centralized German Reich, the Czechs and the Poles will be riveted exclusively within the Soviet orbit.

THESE high matters will have to be faced and dealt with decisively if there is to be progress towards the unification of Europe and a settlement of the war. Lots of very good work has been done on the statistics of European recovery. Now the statesmen might well take over from the statisticians.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Horns Of A Dilemma

THE FIRST MAJOR TASK of the new National Security Council has turned out to be the preparation of an American Palestine policy. Representatives of the service and State Departments are now wading through the vast mass of preliminary studies on this crucial question, with a view to recommending action to the President. The President has given clear signs of regretting his previous practice, of reaching decisions on Palestine on his own hook. It seems likely that the Security Council's recommendations will in this instance be followed when formulated.

It is time, and long past time, that some kind of workable Palestine policy should be prepared; for it is a simple statement of fact to say that catastrophe now threatens. On or about May 15, the last British troops are scheduled to withdraw from Palestine. There will then be no force to hold in check the Arab-Jewish fighting, which has already begun. With the barriers down, the experts are unanimous in expecting that a ghastly general blood bath will ensue. The measure of the blood bath is the common prediction of at least 1000 casualties a day.

EVERY AMERICAN OFFICIAL involved in the problem admits that if this situation is permitted to arise, there will be no way out, short of catastrophe, for if the blood bath in Palestine once gets started, negotiation will be impossible. There will then be only two alternatives.

Alternative one will be inaction. Under this alternative no one will intervene to halt the conflict between Arabs and Jews. The Jews are brave and well organized. But the Arabs are also brave and though disunited are immeasurably more numerous than the Jews. Some expert opinion holds that the Jewish defense will ultimately be totally broken by the Arabs. At best, the experts anticipate that most of the great economic progress achieved by the Zionists will be destroyed; that the Jews will be driven from eastern Galilee and the Negeb strip around Tel Aviv. This is unthinkable.

Unfortunately, alternative two is also unthinkable. For if someone is to intervene to halt the Jewish-Arab conflict, after it has reached the blood-bath stage, that someone must be the United States. United Nations officials have already informed the American policy-makers that it is hopeless, in these circumstances, to try to recruit a small nation Palestine force. If the blood bath begins, no force will enter Palestine without American (or Russian) troops at its head.

It is unthinkable that American troops should be sent to Palestine for two quite different set of reasons. First, and most obvious, there are reasons of hard national self-interest. It is currently fashionable to dismiss national interests as beneath contempt. But it is a practical fact that the oil of the Middle East constitutes the only American reserve in a time of dwindling domestic supply, and that western Europe is completely dependent upon the Middle East for this lifeblood of its economy.

THE MARSHALL PLAN actually includes 500 million dollars for exploitation of Middle Eastern oil resources, as essential to western Europe. But already pipeline construction in the Middle East has been halted by the present limited disorders. If American troops are sent to Palestine, the disorders will become a holy war involving the whole Moslem world.

President Truman now has on his desk a letter from President Jinnah of Pakistan, warning that even this distant state in India will plunge into the struggle. The American service departments accept as a matter of course that no American oil or other installations in the Middle East, not directly defended by armed forces, will survive the arrival of an American force in Palestine.

In short, if we send troops to Palestine, either on our own or on behalf of the United Nations, the whole Middle East will go up in flames. The loss of the oil resource will destroy the economic underpinnings of the non-Soviet world. And we shall be on the eve of the third World War. For the Soviet Union could never resist the temptation of such a disaster.

On the whole it does credit to the American policy-makers that the above considerations have weighed rather less with them than the second set of reasons against sending of United States troops to Palestine.

ANY HONEST MAN, who faces all the facts of American life, good and bad, noble and ignoble, knows that the most sordid of all these facts is the presence in this country of a considerable strain of racial hatred. It is doubtful whether the Congress would agree to a Palestine expedition, even in obedience to the United Nations. But a mere serious proposal to send troops, let alone the actual sending of them, would fan the flames of racial hatred in a dangerous and terrible manner. This is the real reason why the second alternative of American military intervention in Palestine is as unthinkable as the first alternative of letting Palestine blood bath run its cruel course.

If a blood bath in Palestine will confront us with only two alternatives, both of which will be utterly unthinkable, the only sensible course is obviously to try to prevent the blood bath from occurring. No more difficult task has ever been imposed upon American policy-makers.

Indorsement Seen for Pay Guarantees

By The Associated Press

Official indorsement of the guaranteed wage as a buffer against depressions is expected in April or May from the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Already in use by a few large concerns, the system guarantees workers a fixed yearly income regardless of seasonal or temporary layoffs.

A foretaste of the council's judgment was given yesterday by Chairman Edwin G. Nourse.

"The guaranteed wage doesn't lend itself to Federal legislation," he said. "However, if it can become a part of American industrial practice, it will prove a highly desirable stabilization device."

Pope Urges Atom Use for Peace Only

Rome, Italy, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Pope Pius II, calling the atomic bomb "the most terrible arm which the human mind has thus far conceived," urged today atomic energy be used only for peaceful purposes.

In an address to the pontifical Academy of Sciences, the Pope warmly praised the men who harnessed atomic energy, and those extending back for 100 years whose pioneer work made this possible.

"What catastrophes must humanity await from future conflict if it should prove impossible to halt or curb the use of always new and always more surprising scientific inventions," the Pope asked.

He expressed the hope atomic energy would be used solely for peace and to "give to the progress of civilization its rich resources of energy."

The Pope described the scientific advance as "a marvelous conquest of human intellect, that studies and investigates the laws of nature, bringing humanity with it through new roads." He added: "May it give more noble conceptions!"

Natural laws fill scientists with enthusiasm and also with humility, he said. This was so, the Pope declared, because of inabilities to penetrate and exhaust "the riches of the conception of the divine construction and the laws and rules which govern it."

One on the Aisle—

It's Marshall's Habit

It's 'Blossom Time' At the National

By Richard L. Coe

MEN ABOUT TOWN: Franz Schubert came back to the National last night in the person of Everett Marshall, a disguise that has become a habit . . . The means, of course, is "Blossom Time," now in its twenty-seventh season under the banner of the non-c Shuberts, Lee and J. J. . . . The production is much as usual, with Marian Stevens as Schubert's partner for the melodic "Song of Love," Anthony Blair and the veteran comedy team of Harry K. Morton and Zella Russell . . . Zella, off stage, is Mrs. Morton and besides playing Mrs. Krantz in the current revival, also staged the piece . . . This, you may remember, is the year the Shuberts were NOT going to revive "Blossom Time," but, like all resolutions, that one went overboard . . . If the operetta is a habit with the producing brothers, it's also one with Marshall, who first played Schubert 10 years ago and has been going back to him periodically ever since for winter tours and open-air performances in summer theaters throughout the Nation . . . Marshall first earned his living in an engineering firm, but struck out for opera, making his debut in Sicily . . . He sang with the Metropolitan for five seasons, then switched to George White's "Scandals" and the Broadway musicals, thus reversing the career of the late Grace Moore . . . Now he's back in the square spectacles of Schubert, which, he says, is one of his three favorite roles . . . The others: Scarpia in "Tosca" and the elder Germont in "La Traviata."

"BLOSSOM TIME." The Messrs. Shubert present the operetta with book and lyrics by Dorothy Donnelly from the original of A. M. Willner and H. Reichert, music from the melodies of Franz Schubert and H. Berte adapted by Sigmund Romberg. Settings by Watson Barratt. Staged by Zella Russell. At the National.

THE CAST:

Guests—Dorothy Hirth, Geraldine Delaney, Marilyn Hoffman, Helene Kelley.

HENRY FONDA—the screen's Henry Fonda, that is—is only 40 miles from the old Wardman Park stage, where he used to act before he hit Broadway, "The Farmer Takes a Wife" and Hollywood success . . . Fonda's in Baltimore this week, opening at Ford's tomorrow night in "Mister Roberts," Thomas Heggen's and Joshua Logan's adaptation of the Heggen novel . . . During its tryout weeks in Philly, scalpers were getting $25 a pair for seats and the Broadway crowd expects it'll be a hit . . . Via the "party-booking" system, the New York performance of April 21 already is sold out, so all augurs well for Fonda and "Mister Roberts" . . . Now the problem is to see if Ford's has any seats left . . . Note: Instead of a Monday night opening, the play opens tomorrow.

JERRY ROSS is a lean, wiry type, who went to Tech High and then on to G. W. . . . But he always wanted to dance . . . Now he's visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rosey, 2939 28th st. nw., after dancing plenty . . . He went from the Navy into Vera Zorina's ill-fated "Dream With Music," Fritz Kreisler's similarly ill-fated "Rhapsody" and after a brief tour with Katharine Dunham, wound up in the Chicago company of "Call Me Mister" . . . This turned his luck and he stayed with the revue over a year, till its recent closing . . . Back home for a visit, though, he can't stay away from dancing and is joining his original teacher, Evelyn Davis, for a dance concert Friday night at Lisner Auditorium . . . Miss Davis and her Dance Playhouse Group are working hard for the one-performance program and vow that they'll prove the Lisner stage is a worthy ballet home . . . Jerry, like all other dancers, doesn't know what comes next, but you never know when another "Call Me Mister" will come along.

WALTER KERR of Catholic University's speech and drama staff will be making a talk Friday night at the Mayflower that probably will lure the Washington critics, whose usual job is criticizing his work. . . . He'll probably be alluding to some of theirs when he speaks on "The Future of the American Stage and Screen" for the Charles Carroll Forum at 8:15. . . . We're even planning to give up our favorite radio program to hear him. . . . The program? . . . "It Pays to Be Ignorant," most sensible thing on the air.

BURL IVES, always a local favorite from the days he used to live here, will be autographing records of his ballads at Hecht's tomorrow afternoon at 2. . . . And he'll be singing them in the flesh that night at Constitution Hall.

FIREMEN around town shouldn't miss seeing "This Is America's" fine tribute to their work, "Smoke Eaters." This is the short at the Trans-Lux. (It played Keith's a recent week) and it certainly couldn't be a timelier subject for Washingtonians.

A CAPITOL HOLDOVER: Not often does the big theater on F street continue a picture for a second week, but Spencer Tracy and Lana Turner have turned the trick with "Cass Timberlane," the Sinclair Lewis story on the Loew screen

500 Honor Retiring Pastor, Wife

More than 500 persons—including Prince Georges County and District religious, civic and business leaders—yesterday honored the Rev. and Mrs. Charles H. Frick, retiring pastoral couple of Mount Rainier Christian Churchc.

Mayor Floyd B. Mathias, of Mount Rainier, speaking at the reception in the church at 33d st. and Bunker Hill rd., said Mr. Frick has always been in the forefront for civic betterment.

"His leaving will be a distinct loss to the community," he added.

Given Plaque by Club

Carl E. Nordeen, president of the Mount Rainier Lions Club, of which Mr. Frick is a charter member, presented him a testimonial plaque on behalf of the club. A basket of flowers and a resolution came from Oscar T. Harlow, chairman of the official board of Mount Rainier Methodist Church. Wilbur Smith handed Pastor Frick a sizable "purse" on behalf of the Mount Rainier Christian Church's official board, of which he is chairman.

Also joining in the program were Dr. J. Warren Hastings, president of the Disciples Ministerial Union of Washington; Mrs. Bernard L. Teelyea, president of the Women's Civic League of Mount Rainier; James L. Harrison, president of the Washington Christian Church Council; Mrs. George M. Anderson, representing the Christian Ministers Wives Association of Washington; James Davis of the Rattlesnake Patrol, Troop 203, Boy Scouts; Carroll Zimmerman of Troop 59, Girl Scouts, and the Rev. Clarkson R. Banes, president of the Mount Rainier-Brentwood Ministerial Union and pastor of Mount Rainier Methodist Church. Mrs. Ruby F. Laughton headed the program committee, assisted by Miss Leona T. Rider.

To Conduct Bpatisms

Mr. Frick's last act as pastor will be conducting baptisms next Sunday at 7:45 a. m. and preaching at 11 a. m. He and Mrs. Frick will move to his 30-acre family farm at Sweet Valley, Pa. Shortly after Easter he will begin the ministry of the Christian Church of Huntsville, Pa., where he served about 20 years before entering the Army chaplaincy in World War II.

Library to Mark Anniversary

The Library of Congress will observe the 215th anniversary of the founding of Savannah and of Georgia with an exhibit of books, pictures and manuscripts opening next Saturday.

The exhibit, which also honors the tour of the Georgia Heritage Train, will be formally opened at 3:30 p. m. with a historical address by Senator Walter F. George of Georgia in the Coolidge auditorium, Dr. Luther M. Evans, Librarian of Congress, said yesterday.

The exhibit is the sixth of a series of State exhibits and the first to honor one of the original 13 States. As in previous State exhibits, it will consist of two parts. One, mounted in the ground floor gallery of the main building, will include more than 100 enlarged photographs of Georgia life and scenes. The other, in a second floor gallery, will feature rare books, prints, water colors and other material pertaining to the State's history.

The exhibit will continue until May, and then be sent to Georgia as a traveling show.

School to Pick Queen

"Miss Hyattsville High School" will be selected at a bazaar at the high school Thursday at 7:30 p. m. The candidacy of each of the 25 girls entered is sponsored by a local firm.

Officer Visting D. C. Area Units

Lieut. Commissioner Albert E. Chesham, recently appointed Salvation Army territorial commander of the District and 15 Southern States, is visiting the organization's installations here.

Chesham

The commissioner, a native Englishman who spent his youth on a Canadian cattle ranch and has served 40 years in the Salvation Army, will participate in religious services of various units of the organization in the Washington area today.

Tomorrow he and Mrs. Chesham will address the Washington board and ladies' auxiliary at 12:30 p. m. at the Evangeline Residence, 1330 L st. nw., and be honored with a reception at 2:30 p. m.

Tuesday he will be guest of honor at a luncheon in the Senate dining room given by Senators of the States in his territory. Senators Walter F. George (D., Ga.), Spessard L. Holland (R., Fla.) and Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) will be acting hosts.

Swim at Jewish Center

The fifth annual Jewish Community Center invitational swimming meet will be held next Saturday night at the Center, 16th and Q sts. nw., with all D. C. swimming clubs entered.

Douglas to Head Section of Drive

Capt. James S. Douglas, jr., of 913 Cameron st., will head the advance gifts division of the 1948 Red Cross fund drive in Alexandria, Drive Chairman Charles M. Jones announced yesterday.

The advance gifts drive will begin February 15, with the general fund drive beginning March 1.

Livingston to Talk At Admen's Luncheon

J. A. Livingston, economic writer of The Washington Post, will discuss the business outlook at the Washington Advertising Club's lunch to be held Tuesday, at 12:30 p. m., at the Statler Hotel.

8 Meetings on Suffrage Bill

Parliament to Get State Medicine Plea

Government to Seek Support in Fight With Powerful British Medical Group

London, Feb. 8 (AP).—The government will ask Parliament tomorrow to support its refusal to yield to the powerful British Medical Association's opposition to Britain's new state medicine plan.

It will be the first time in recent years the government has gone back to ask another indorsement of a bill enacted into law less than a year earlier. Approval appeared certain because of the government's large majority in the Commons.

The BMA threatens to boycott the National Health Service Act when it becomes effective July 5, unless it is revised.

The act provides a salary for every doctor and free medical and dental care for every Briton.

All 56,000 physicians in England, Scotland and Wales have received BMA ballots asking them if they will join a boycott. Results are to be announced February 18.

BMA wants court appeals from health ministry's rulings. It also protests the ban on selling practices, and objects to a basic salary for doctors in addition to payment per patient.

Atom-Made Metal Sought As Yardstick

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Rods of purest gold as controls of the heat in atomic power plants were suggested today by a Government scientist.

The rods would change, in part, into a new form of pure mercury, which would serve as the world's standard of length, the meter. A certain number of mercury wave lengths equal 1 meter, and nothing else is as unchanging as this particular man-made metal. Each wave is 21 millionths of an inch long.

The proposal is made by Dr. W. F. Meggers of the National Bureau of Standards, Washington, in the Journal of the Optical Society of America.

Metal rods do the same thing for atomic piles as drafts controlling air for stoves. When the rods are pushed far in, the atomic fire goes out. The distance they are pulled out determines exactly how much heat the nuclear fire will give.

Such rods are made of metals that absorb neutrons, which in turn are the sparks that light and keep a nuclear pile going.

The present standard of measurement is a platinum-iridium bar kept near Paris. Two scratches show the length of a meter.

Backaches Blamed on Weight By California U. Researchers

San Francisco, Feb. 8 (AP).—Most backaches are due to the forces which make a person a half to three-quarters of an inch shorter at day's end than he is in the morning, two University of California medical researchers reported today.

The main source of trouble is the telescoping effect of body weight and motion on the shock absorbers in the spine, Dr. J. B. DeC. M. Saunders, anatomy specialist reported in the Journal of Bone and Joint Surgery.

The shock absorbers are the layers of cartilage between the vertebrae called discs and the ligaments.

Normal pressure on a disc in the lower back amounts to about 30 pounds even when a persons is lying down, the researchers reported. When upright the body increases this pressure to "astounding figures."

The compression shortens the spine. Under high pressure the ligaments may bulge here and there. The result is pain.

The experimenters reported doctors should look oftener at the discs for the cause of back pain.

Johns-Manville Reports Increased Production

Expansion Program Brings Results In Helping Meet Nation's Needs

GREATER production of building and industrial materials was the big accomplishment of Johns-Manville in the record year 1947.

Production of badly needed items was 1½ to 5 times that of pre-war 1940.

Two new plants were completed and put into operation.

Two other plants were started and will be producing in 1948.

More than a thousand separate improvement and expansion projects were completed in 16 plants across the country.

Record Sales

Sales were $134 million compared with $92 million in 1946.

Profits were 7 1/10 cents per dollar of total sales.

More Employes

Employes numbered 18,500 compared with 15,800 in 1946.

Higher Payrolls

Expanded Research

Additional buildings were rising at the new J-M Research Center, biggest of its kind in the world.

Moderate Price Increases

Moderate price increases were required to help offset skyrocketing costs of production.

But average prices of J-M building materials since 1941 have increased less than half as much as has the average for building materials in general.

J-M's Annual Statement

Here are the highlights of Johns-Manville's annual statement for the year 1947:*

TOTAL INCOME	$134	million
For all costs (except as shown below)	$ 63	million
To employes for salaries & wages	$ 53¼	million
To government for taxes	$ 8¼	million
To stockholders in dividends	$ 4¼	million
Reinvested in the business	$ 5¼	million

EARNINGS AFTER TAXES were $3.23 per share of common stock after adjustment for a three-for-one split of the common stock in May, 1947.

TAXES were equivalent to $2.87 per share of common stock.

Johns-Manville will continue to do everything possible to meet the demands for building and industrial products and to provide greater value for the consumer dollar.

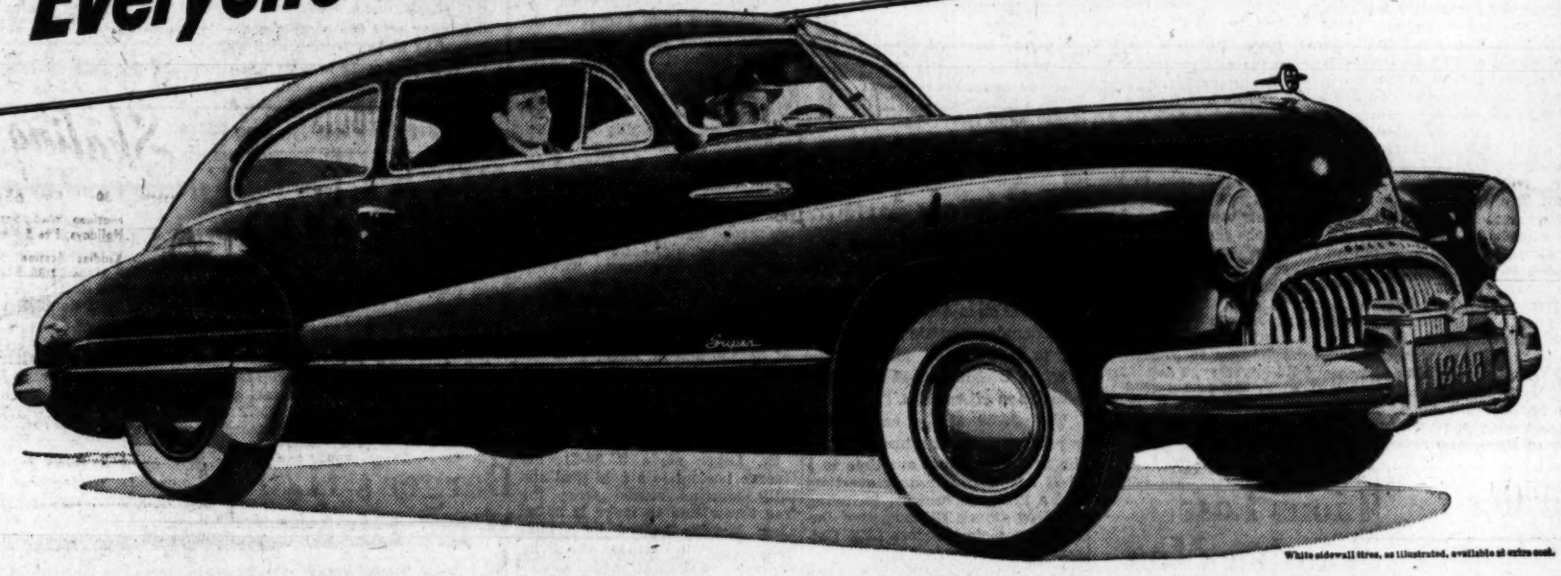
Everyone knows where this one's going



White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

No, it hasn't always been easy, here of late, to be absolutely sure just which way automobile design was heading.

So it's a refreshing thing, people tell us, to see one car that quite clearly knows where it's going – and shows it inside and out.

You can't mistake this poised and ready fashion plate for anything but a Buick – you're sure from a glance that you'll find it steady as a battle cruiser and full of ginger as one of Grandma's cookies.

Your eye tells you it's big – you step in and find this bigness carried out in usable room as well as measurable inches.

A broad bonnet promises plenty-power – and you get it with such velvety new smoothness that you need to check the battery-charge needle to make sure the engine's running.

No gears ever shift in DYNAFLOW DRIVE*

In Buick's new Dynaflow Drive, sliding gear transmissions and complex gear-changers are made unnecessary. You simply set a selector lever and step on the gas. The power plant does the rest, adjusting itself to varying driving conditions with utter smoothness. You start up – accelerate – climb hills – cruise – stop – start up again – all without touching the selector lever.

You size it up as comfortable. The road's verdict is that it's the most tireless car on the market, what with four coil springs, pillowy low-pressure tires and a wholly new attack on car vibration keeping you fresh and relaxed through the longest day.

You find quiet here – quiet that encourages conversation – quiet from Sound-Sorber top lining that invites conversation in normal tones.

And if it's a Dynaflow Roadmaster you're handling, here you can sample driving ease that is near magic in its simplicity.*

You set a lever, press the gas treadle – and simply steer. The power plant does all the rest – swoops you up from standstill to full pace, accelerates, climbs, slows to a stop, starts up again – all without any gearshifting, either manual or automatic!

So it's pretty plain where this one's heading – it's going even higher in the regard of the motoring public.

Why not see your Buick dealer now and get your order in?

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ANY DAY NOW, Buck Newsom will announce that he has signed a contract for the greater good of some major league club, probably the Giants, but meanwhile he is coldly heedless of the fate of the Cleveland Indians. They arouse no compassion in Bobo. He says he can forgive error, but not stupidity, like the Indians' decision that they can get along without Newsom in 1948.

POVICH

The Cleveland Club, it sems was not enthralled by the availability of Bobo as a free agent given his release by the Yankees the other day. President Bill Veeck did toy with the notion of signing Newsom, but Manager Lou Boudreau clumped down emphatically with the brush-off statement that "Bobo will lose more than he'll win this season."

It wasn't the kind of a crack that Newsom ordinarily would take lying down, but Bobo did. He didn't stir from the divan at his Washington apartment yesterday where he was stretched out in easy comfort. "Oh, Boudreau, I remember him," yawned Bobo. "He's the genius who has finished better than fourth only once with the Indians in the last six years.

"Now he's come up with a crystal ball, too. Why doesn't he let Bobo worry about Bobo. Just say for me that Boudreau has the Indians to worry plenty about."

GETTING A JOB ON a major league pitching staff has never been one of Newsom's problems. In fact, he's been the best job-getter in the big leagues in the last 15 years. He's the only ball player in history who can lay claim to being an alumnus of eight different major league clubs. His longest period of unemployment to date has been 24 hours, the time it took him to sell himself to Clark Griffith for a fourth term in 1946 after getting his release from Connie Mack.

Bobo has talked variously of endowing other professions with his talents, such as radio, and the stage, and some times he fancies himself as a magnate in the sports goods business, but he always winds up on somebody's ball team. "They won't have to cut the uniform off me," said Newsom. "When Bobo is through pitching, Bobo will announce it, not Boudreau."

Lest there be any misapprehension of what happened to him and the Yankees, Newsom pointed out grandly, "I asked 'em for my release so I could make a deal for myself and they did the nice thing in getting courtesy waivers on me. I could re-sign with the Yankees tomorrow, you know."

BOBO ALWAYS HAS been a fore-handed guy, knowing where his next job is coming from. Obviously he didn't ask the Yankees to release him in order that he could become a public charge. He knows the Giants, with the best hitting club and the worst pitching in the National League, could use him. And there's always Clark Griffith who can always recoup at pinochle with Bobo whatever he might over-pay him as a pitcher.

At a time when he is job hunting, Newsom doesn't have to blush about his pitching record of last season. Even after spending most of the season with the seventh-place Washington club, he finished with 11 victories and 11 defeats. After he joined the Yankees, he came up with seven wins and five defeats and was the club's best pitcher against the Red Six.

"The Red Sox were the only club we had to beat," Newsom pointed out. "Boudreau's Indians, incidentally, were making a game struggle to get out of fifth place against the Athletics. I made four starts against Boston, and in the four games they got four runs off me. I think I impressed the Red Sox. You know, I could end up in Boston next season."

BUT BOBO'S PITCHING always has been more reliable than Bobo's speech-making. What Newsom may say on any given day could be something less than gospel. When he was sold to the Yankees last July, he said he wouldn't report unless he got part of the purchase price. One day later, he reported without any part of the purchase price.

A few years ago when Newsom was making positive hold-out gestures against the Washington club that, to hear him tell it, was asking him to sign for a large bag of peanuts, Bob Considine stopped at Bobo's Hartsville, S. C., home en route to Florida to interview the Great Man. "Just tell my public old Bobo won't sign at the Washington Club's terms until hell freezes over," orated Newsom.

Considine quoted him verbatim and continued on to Florida to glean Clark Griffith's side of the Newsom hold-out story, a day later. Griffith exhibited a telegram in which Newsom had just agreed to terms, the temperature in Hades notwithstanding. Or it could have been a really penetrating cold wave that year, the extent known only to Bobo, who always has his pipelines out.

Lions Lose Another Man

The weary Washington Lions lost another man yesterday.

Scotty Mair, rapidly proving himself one of the best wingmen in the league, has departed for the Pittsburgh Hornets.

It happened this way:

The Toronto Maple Leafs, from whom the Lions had acquired Mair, yesterday repurchased him and sent him to the Western Division's leading Hornets.

When the Lions got Mair it was with the understanding that the Leafs could repurchase him in the event the Lions failed to qualify for a playoff berth in the American Hockey League.

All of which leaves Scotty in the position of opposing his old mates tomorrow night when the Hornets invade Uline Arena.

Snead Wins, His 264 Ties Club Record

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 8 (AP).—Sam Snead had the shots down the stretch today as he tied the 72-hole record in the Texas Open with a last round 68 that gave him a total of 264 and $2000 first money in this oldest tournament along the winter golf trail.

Sammy fought a thrilling battle against the mighty challenge of Jimmy Demaret, the links' troubadour from Ojai, Calif., as he swung through bitter cold and over soggy fairways to leave a string of birdies on the last nine.

Demaret was second with 266 and Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kans., finished third with 269.

Snead's total 264 was 20 under par for the 6400-yard Brackenridge Park course.

Slammin' Sam and Singing Jimmy were one stroke apart at the start of the final nine and Demaret was the leader. Then Snead, who has been known to blow up when the chips are down, started shooting for birdies. He made the first four and came close to several others.

On hole No. 17 he missed a 12-footer that would have broken the tournament record of 264 set by Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., in 1946

Metz closed out with a 70.

Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., was fourth with 271, his last-round 65 shooting him up with the leaders. Tied for fifth were John Palmer of Badin, N. C., and Bobby Locke of Johannesburg, South Africa. Each with 273, while E. J. Harrison of Little Rock, and Toney Penna of Cincinnati tied for the next spot with 275.

The money winners:

Stags Whip Philadelphia

Chicago, Feb. 8 (AP).—The Chicago Stags staged a rally in the second half to tie Philadelphia, then went on to defeat the warriors in a double overtime today, 80 to 74, to take second place in the Western Division of the basketball association of America.

Tied 59-59 at the end of the regulation game, the teams played the first five-minute overtime to a 71-71 deadlock. Another overtime and a flurry of baskets, including three by Chuck Gilmur, gave the stags the victory before 5295 Chicago stadium fans.

St. John's And Gonzaga Win at Armory

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Jack George's basket with 20 seconds to play gave St. John's a thrilling 38-37 victory over Towson Catholic High School of Baltimore before 1250 fans yesterday at the National Guard Armory.

In the opener of the twin bill, Gonzaga defeated Calvert Hall, 51-36. The Eagles led all the way and had little difficulty with their Baltimore rivals.

But the second game was a different story. Although St. John's moved out to a 21-16 halftime lead, that margin was short-lived once the second half began.

Paced by big John St. Leger and Rich Getzendanner, Towson, went ahead, 26-25, but by the end of the third quarter St. John's had pulled even, 28-28.

Three quick baskets by Ed Shue, Ed Bermel and St. Leger gave the Baltimore lads a 34-28 lead. George flipped in a pair of baskets and a foul and with two minutes and 45 seconds left, the Johnnies trailed, 34-31.

St. Leger made it 36-31, but George hooked in a field goal and Billy Martins scored from the free throw line to make it 36-34. Then Martins heaved in a midcourt basket to deadlock the game at 36-36.

St. Leger's foul shot put Towson ahead again, 37-36, with but 45 seconds to play. Then George, who scored 17 points, picked up a rebound under the Towson hoop and banked it in 20 seconds before the final gun.

It was St. John's fifteenth vic-

District Skaters Win Title in N. Y.

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Washington and Baltimore pairs today won the final two events of the Middle Atlantic figure skating championships at Iceland Rink.

The silver (senior) dance title was annexed by Anne Davies and Carleton Hoffner of the Washington Figure Skating Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Hanson of the Washington FSC finished third in the bronze dancing.

Here's to the Memory of 15 Hounds: Fox Who Side-Steps Seldom Drowns

London, Feb. 8 (U.P.).—Fifteen prize hounds worth $4000 plunged to their deaths Saturday in a water filled mine shaft while racing in full cry after a canny fox, Mrs. R. Sturgess, hunt secretary, said today.

The hounds, including a bitch worth $600, dropped one after the other into an old shaft near Helston, Cornwall, after the fox cleverly circled the top of the shaft.

Former hunt Master W. Benney, lowered down the shaft on a rope, was able to rescue a sixteenth hound in his arms but was nearly unconscious and unable to risk a second attempt.

Benney said the hounds probably drowned each other as they struggled in the bottom of the shaft.

"This loss of 15 hounds has struck the hunt a most crippling blow," Mrs. Sturgess said.

Hoyas Play on Same Bill

Now It's Terps Favored Over GW and all Because of W & L

In a shift as sudden as the latest commodity quotation, Maryland finds itself a favorite in the Southern Conference test with George Washington in the first game of Wednesday night's doubleheader at the Armory.

Georgetown entertains Penn State in the second game.

The Terrapins became the surprise choice over GW after their convincing 64-38 victory over Washington and Lee on Saturday night. The previous night the Generals humbled George Washington's third-place Conference team in a 73-72 upset.

The Colonials boast a much more impressive record for the season. They've won 15 in 20 and have chalked up 10 of those victories in 13 Conference starts.

But Maryland, now playing its best ball of the season, not only trounced W. & L. but handed South Carolina a 68-54 setback in a recent game. The Gamecocks turned right around and beat G. W., 70-64.

Flucie Stewart's Terps obviously aren't missing Bill Wanish much. Their high scorer recently left school when he developed an acute case of homesickness and went back to Allentown, Pa. Spence Wright, another Pennsylvanian who recently became eligible, was supposed to take Wanish's place.

In his debut, Wright scored 5 points. Little Ed Crescenze, Maryland's mighty mite, took over high-scoring honors against W. & L. The 5-foot-4 dynamo raced around for 17 points.

Colonials Won 10

It's obvious that Bill Cantwell & Co. are going to have to move some to halt Maryland. Incidentally, in the series that started in 1916 George Washington has won 10 of the 13 games.

Penn State, victor over Syracuse in its last game, comes here with a 6-6 record. Most notable triumphs were scored over West Virginia (50-46) and Colgate (36-35). West Virginia more than got even in a return match, though, beating John Lawther's Nittany Lions, 60-32.

At any rate, Georgetown will be playing a team in its own class after disastrous efforts against Holy Cross and North Carolina State, two of the Nation's top clubs.

Barger's 1120 Wins Dixie

Elizabeth "Toots" Barger, rolling brilliantly in the clutches, captured first place in the seventeenth annual Dixie Classic Bowling Tournament last night at Kalorama alleys with a 9-game score of 1120.

The Baltimore star, taking the title and prize money of $125 for the second time, was a mere two pins ahead of Norfolks Ida Simmons at the end. In third place was Washington's Lois Gladding with 1108.

Share of the prize distribution went to two other D. C. girls, Betty Bainbridge and "Bing" Moen with totals of 1088 and 1072, respectively.

High individual game of the night was a toss-up between Louise Fuller and Evelyn Fuller, each with 151. A total of 42 bowlers took part.

Carl Loveday, Helen Gibson Win Two Titles

Carl Loveday of the Montclair (N. J.) Athletic Club, second ranking player in the United States, came up with two titles yesterday at the National Capital Invitational Doubles Badminton Championships at the Kensington Armory.

Teamed with Helen Gibson of the Westport (Conn.) Badminton Club, he captured the mixed doubles tourney defeating the husband-wife team of Clinton and Patsy Stephens of the Gilman Badminton Club of Baltimore, in the big upset.

Stephenses Ranked 2d

The Stephenses, second ranking mixed doubles team in the country, had won 16 consecutive tournaments and had beaten the Loveday-Gibson combination six straight times. Yesterday's score was 15—10, 17—15.

Miss Gibson was also a winner in the women's doubles. She teamed with Mrs. Wanda Bergman, also of Westport, Conn., to beat Mrs. Zoe Yeager and May Hellwig of the New Rochelle Badminton Club, New Rochelle, N. Y., 13—18, 15—8, 15—6.

Taught at Friends

The Gibson-Bergman team has been playing together almost uninterruptedly since 1938. They've won the women's national doubles once and have been runners-up three times. Last year, Miss Gibson taught at Sidwell Friends School.

In the men's doubles match Loveday paired with Frank "Pop" Hines of the Central Badminton Club, New York, to defeat the son-father-in-law team of Clinton Stephens and Frank Roberts, 15—11, 15—6. Mrs. Stephens is Roberts' daughter.

Mrs. Fraser Tops Yanks In Scoring

By Ted Smits

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 8 (AP).—The United States finished third in the turbulent fifth winter Olympic games which closed today with all the informality of a country church picnic.

The games were won by Sweden, Switzerland was second, passing the United States on the final day by taking third in the trouble-pocked hockey tourney.

The hockey championship wasn't decided until today. Canada defeated Switzerland, 3 to 0, and gained just enough points to edge out Czechoslovakia on a goals-average basis. The United States Amateur Hockey Association sextet, center of all the controversy, lost to the Czechs, 4 to 3, in its finale.

AHA Team Fourth

Although the AHA team finished fourth in the hockey tourney, the three points thus gained were not added to the United States total because the International Olympic Committee would not recognize the AHA.

That produced this table of points:

Sweden 82, Switzerland 77, United States 73¼, Norway 69½, Austria 51, Finland 49, France 39, Italy 25, Canada 24¼, Belgium 18, Great Britain 15, Hungary 10, Czechoslovakia 10, Holland 6 and Poland 1. Thirteen of the competing nations did not score.

Even if the American hockey points had been counted, the United States would have remained in third place by a fraction of a point—the best showing of a red, white and blue team on this side of the Atlantic.

Although the AHA team has been disowned by the United States Olympic Committee, the Swiss said today they would award Olympic participation certificates to the players.

Despite the tempers of the past 10 days, pleasantries and informalities marked today's closing.

Fans Pelt Officials

Barely 5000 spectators perched themselves on mountain ledges and pelted the officials with snowballs during the final hockey games. When decisions went against the Swiss in the vital game with Canada a chorus of shrill whistles would echo through the Alps.

Gold, silver and bronze medals were awarded to athletes who won first, second or third places.

Although the American team included some 250-pound bobsledders and big, tough skiiers and skaters, it was a 5 foot 4 inch, 115 pound bride from Vancouver, Wash., who led the United States with 15 points.

Mrs. Fraser Point Leader

Mrs. Gretchen Fraser, 28, with rosy cheeks, pig tails, and a shy smile, was the darling of the squad. She won the women's slalom event and placed second in the Alpine combination—a gold and silver medal. She was the first American ever to win a skiing medal.

This was also the first time an American ever won a figure skating championship. Dick Button, 18, of Englewood, N. J., captured the men's title. The third champion was Francis Tyler of Saranac Lake, N. Y., pilot of the four-man bob.

The Olympic Torch, a 2-foot high flame springing from a bowl atop the modest tower in the main stadium, was extinguished and the games were over.

Legion Bowlers Win

A five-man bowling team of the American Legion yesterday defeated a Veterans of Foreign Wars team, 2773-2664, in a match at Chevy Chase Ice Palace.

Jockey Haight Turns Tables on Flying Discs

Walter Hopes for Encore—Sidesaddle

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

DOWN THROUGH THE YEARS, I've secretly envied the jockeys—jealous of their trim waists and of their ability to leap into the saddle, in contrast to my Bassin's Bulge and my difficulty getting in and out of an auto.

Haight

Although they hardly would trade their 110 pounds for the 250 I tote around, I have found jockeys envious of me. I've heard them mutter, "You lucky stiff," when I was putting a piece of hot mince pie on top of the guaranteed 2-pound sirloin, while they were cleaning up the leavings of their lone course, a vegetable salad.

When I think of their diet I shudder, but I'm back in a jealous mood when I see them take down weekly checks of $500 and $800.

I take a lot of wisecracking about my weight, like being called "Fatso" by strangers who don't smile. But the jockeys also come in for ribbing, like a babe saying, "Well, half a man is better than none."

As I squat in the pressbox, adding to my sportswriters' spread, I see the boys in the post parade wearing those multi-colored shirts, skin-tight pants and shiny, trim boots and I have a yen to be a jockey.

But when I watch horses fall, jockeys thrown among the flying hoofs and see the ambulance carry them away, I wonder if I'm not fortunate.

Truth is, I've been afraid of horses all my life—a surprising confession from a guy who has made his living (not betting) off them for years. Every time I get close to a horse I get hurt.

The only time I felt safe was when Walter Haight broke down at Charles Town. I led him around the ring, cooling him off after the race. He had split a hoof and was limping so badly he didn't have energy to act up. Owner Alan Clarke remarked, "There's the blind leading the blind—a dead heat if I ever saw one."

Well, anyway, I was sitting around the sports department early last week, ready, as I generally am, to look busy if the boss comes in, when the phone rang.

A sweet, strictly "new-look" voice asked, "Mr. Haight, how would like to be a jockey?"

For a split second I thought of answering, "I'd love it," but I replied, "You might as well ask if I'd like to run for president or match odd man for Fort Knox."

I continued, "I know we are going to have trot racing around here as well as the usual flat racing. There'll be midget auto racing, too, and I understand somebody is trying to get dog racing. But I didn't know anything about jockeys being wanted for elephant racing."

She interrupted with, "This is Station WEAM. We want you to be a disc jockey. Weight doesn't count in this sort of work. Our station is lining up guest disc jockeys in a drive to aid the American Red Cross. We'll send a car for you and take you back and, besides, the boss says if you don't fit in the automatic elevator, we will raise and lower your head by crane."

Well, for a laugh like that, plus the Red Cross, I just couldn't refuse.

I went through with it, too—a half hour in which, I'm told confidentially, I almost cut WEAM a new wavelength.

During my request program I received only one call—from a fellow with a deep voice who said, "Please play Stanley and Dr. Livingston—and you be the guy who got lost."

I'd like another opportunity, however, because with time limited, I could only dedicate records to my close relatives and my mother's sister's husband's daughter by his first marriage is the only one with solid money, if you know what I mean.

Although I'm too heavy for horse racing and too light for radio gumming, I may get another jockey chance next summer.

Who knows, perhaps strange things will appear in the sky once more. Along about August, wouldn't it be something if you looked at your Washington Post and saw in headlines—"HAIGHT RIDES AGAIN—SIDESADDLE—ON FLYING DISC."

Police Bowlers Beat Firemen In Benefit Tilt

Winning all four matches, the Police Department bowlers yesterday won the "grudge benefit" match from the Fire Department at the Lucky Strike alleys. All proceeds went to the infantile paralysis fund.

Inspector Floyd Truscott, acting superintendent of Police, and Fire Chief Clement Murphy tossed out the first balls to start the action.

The Police won both team matches, 1634 to 1591 and 1723 to 1692. Jack Varney bowled a 368 to Joe Brown's 315 and Bob Carey and Norman Richardson, of the Bluecoats, took Zeke Slagle and Bill Moore, of the Firemen, 873 to 646 in the doubles. Slagle's 180 was tops in individual scoring, with Saunders' 170 high for the police.

McKee Wins, 63-48

McKee Pontiac defeated Greenbelt, 63-48, yesterday at Greenbelt.

But Things Could End In Muddle

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The stretch drive for the four interhigh basketball playoff berths begins Friday with a pair of doubleheaders, one in the afternoon and one at night, in the National Guard Armory.

It could be a neck and neck drive with the outcome in doubt even after the last regularly scheduled game two weeks hence, or the holders of all four first division spots could be decided in one stroke this Friday.

The afternoon Friday doubleheader finds Roosevelt facing Anacostia and Wilson playing Coolidge. At night, Tech meets Eastern and Western tackles Central.

INTERHIGH STANDINGS

	W.	L.	Pct.		W.	L.	Pct.
Central	4	1	.800	Western	2	3	.400
Roosevelt	4	1	.800	Tech	2	3	.400
Anacostia	3	2	.600	Wilson	2	3	.400
Eastern	3	2	.600	Coolidge	0	5	.000

On past performances, this is the way the games stack up. Roosevelt should nose out Anacostia. Wilson should lick Coolidge, Eastern should nip Tech and Central should have no trouble with Western.

It could be that by next week at this time, Central, Roosevelt, Anacostia and Eastern will be assured of their participation in the championship elimination tourney.

Central and Roosevelt have already won four games, but their playoff berths won't be secure until the four second division teams have lost four.

For Central, Roosevelt, Anacostia and Eastern to clinch playoff berths this week, Anacostia and Coolidge would have to spring upsets of not too startling variety, and Eastern and Central win as expected.

The Records

Then the team records would be: Central, 5-1, and Anacostia, Roosevelt and Eastern, 4-2, each. Tech and Wilson would have each dropped their fourth game. Coolidge has already lost five and is out of the running.

Should the games go to the favorites, only Central and Roosevelt would clinch playoff positions Friday. There would also remain the possibility that the regular season would wind up a week from Friday with as many as four teams tied for third place.

In that case, an extra playoff for third and fourth place would be necessitated.

Irish Have Tough One

NYU Gets Scare But Keeps Unbeaen Pace With Columbia

By Murray Rose

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Undefeated New York University has moved past the Temple jinx, and now St. Louis U., one of the finest teams in the Nation, will try and buck one of the toughest hoodos of them all—Notre Dame, in South Bend.

The NYU Violets (15-0) just squeezed by Temple's record busters in Philadelphia, 55-54, last night to keep their perfect record going along with Columbia. Columbia (12-0) won comfortably over Fordham in the Rams' gym, 58-46.

The two New York teams are the only major quintets in the Nation with unbeaten slates.

St. Louis (14-1) playing a rugged schedule, lost 33-30 to Oklahoma A. and M. January 10 and hasn't been licked since. Tomorrow night the Bills will invade the lair of the Fighting Irish and try to do what 18 straight teams have failed to accomplish—beat Notre Dame (11-4) at home.

While Columbia and NYU kept their streaks alive, the last two minor unbeaten fives fell during the week. Potsdam (N. Y.) Teachers capitulated after seven victories, losing to Plattsburgh (N. Y.) Teachers, 51-40, Wednesday. Rocky Mountain College, which had captured 25 straight, dropped before Montana State, 67-46 last night.

It's Cassidy Night As Hoyas Oppose Lafayette on Ice

"Shure" and the four Cassidys won't be neglected tonight at Uline when the Georgetown University hockey team opens its season against Lafayette.

The four brothers from Watertown, Conn., are going to be honored by still another Cassidy, George (no relation), national commander of the Irish War Veterans who will present a trophy for "outstanding contribution to the Irish race and to the sports world."

In the ceremony will be the color guard of the Irish vets wearing their appropriate green uniforms.

Pantos Gains In Interhigh Point Race

Jimmy Pantos, Central's 5-foot 10-inch guard, who tallied 14 points against Anacostia last Friday moved up from third to second place behind Wally Warner in the interhigh scoring race. Pantos has 69 points to the Anacostia star's 87.

Warner, who chalked up 15 points Friday, also leads in field goals with 36 and average points per game, 17.4 for five games. Warner also has the best percentage on field goal attempts with 36 out of 91 tries for a record of .396.

Wayne Brizendine of Western, second in the scoring race last week, made only three points against Tech and dropped into a third place tie with Wilson's Jack Whitcomb, who netted 16 against Eastern. Each has 60. Brizendine, who has had the most foul goal chances, 40, is tied for the most made from the charity line with Pantos. Each has made 17.

Roosevelt's Billy Paugh, who made three out of three against Coolidge, leads in foul goal percentages with eight out of nine. Coolidge's Jess Houston and Brizendine have committed the most personal fouls, 19 each.

Anti-Rat War Council Set In Md. Today

County agents from southern Maryland will meet today in Upper Marlboro to discuss ways of ridding the State of its rat population.

The rats, believed to equal human population in urban areas and exceed it in rural areas, is costing Maryland residents an estimated 40 million dollars annually.

The Maryland Emergency Livestock Feed Committee and the county agents have designated the first week in March as "Dead Rat Week." They plan to use "Antu," a poison discovered in World War II by Dr. Curt P. Richter of Johns Hopkins, in the rat eradication.

Assistance also will be given by John C. Jones of the Fish and Wildlife Service of the United States Department of the Interior. Control as high as 90 per cent has been attained with one baiting in areas where proper eradication methods were followed, it was reported.

During "Dead Rat Week," emphasis also will be given to long-term eradication and prevention measures designed to curb spread of the rodents. Dr. R. B. Corbett, associate director of the University of Maryland, has estimated that one rat can eat and destroy at least 100 pounds of feed a year.

The meeting will be held in the office of Prince Georges County Agent P. E. Clark at 10 a. m.

Telephone Service, too.

WE WANT to give some service to the people who are still waiting for telephones. That's why we're having to limit most new installations to party lines.
Party lines mean more service for more people sooner.
If you're on a party line, you can help yourself to better telephone service by observing these few simple suggestions:
1. Try to make your calls reasonably brief.
2. Whenever possible, allow an interval between calls so that others can use the line.
3. Try to answer the telephone as promptly as you can.
4. Please don't interrupt when the line is in use, except in case of emergency.
5. Ask the children to follow these good-neighbor suggestions, too.

More War Service, Temporary Workers To Be Unseated Here

CIVIL SERVICE today will move to unseat several hundred additional war service and temporary employes in this city.

It will order all Federal agencies to fire by April 5 most nonstatus employes who are serving in jobs that can be filled by eligibles on registers for administrative technician, junior professional assistant, and junior agricultural assistant. These exams were given more than a year ago.

The 22 jobs affected are all in Grade P-1, except for administrative technicial positions which are in Grade CAF-5 and 6. The positions are:

Archivist, economist, geographer, mathematician, statistician, textile technologist, administrative technician, agricultural bacteriologist, agricultural economist, agronomist, animal husbandman, aquatic biologist, wildlife biologist, dairy husbandman, dairy manufacturing specialist, geneticist, horticulturist, poultry husbandman, farm management supervisor, home economist and soil conservationist.

Some time ago the commission ordered all nonstatus people in these jobs fired who had failed the tests, or had not taken them. The new order requires the firing of employes who took and passed the tests but failed to receive, high enough marks to be reached for competitive status.

Eight types of jobs covered by the three exams aren't included in the ouster order. They are: chemist, physicist, metallurgist, entomologist, plant pathologist, plant physiologist, soil scientist and zoologist. A sufficient number of people didn't qualify for these tests to meet the demand.

New JPA and JAA tests were given several weeks ago. The eligible registers for them will be set up around April 1. Civil Service proposes to take the best people from these tests and give them the jobs of people who made low grades on last year's exams.

Civil Service plans to give the JPA, JAA, and JAT exams annually in an effort to attract the best of the college crop. The eligible registers will be good for one year only.

NLRB: The National Labor relations Board needs additional space. And it would like to have offices in the new RFC building at Connecticut ave. and H st. nw., which is across from its headquarters. RFC employes are in only half of the new building. However, RFC won't release the remainder of the building to NLRB because its officials have a hunch they will need to expand if the Marshall Plan is approved.

MARITIME: The Senate has passed the bill to permit the Maritime Commission to charter and operate its 1300 ships and to continue selling its surplus vessels until June 30, 1949. This means that about 500 Maritime jobs are secure until that time.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES: A new exam for patent examiner will be announced soon. The jobs pay $3397 a year. Patent Office has about 100 vacancies . . . About 650 persons have applied for the Civil Service exam for pharmacist. They won't be given a written test . . . The 1600 applicants for the safety inspector exam will be given a written test on February 27 . . . Commerce Secretary Harriman will speak at a meeting tonight in the Willard of the Federal Club.

PREFERENCE: Full retention credits are to be given Federal workers who were restored to their jobs following service in the Merchant Marine. In other words, they will now receive credit for the time spent in the Merchant Marine the same as they do for civilian Government service.

POSTOFFICE: Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson, told a group of New York postal officials over the weekend:

"In naming me Postmaster General, the President automatically expressed his faith and confidence in the character, integrity, and ability of postal employes everywhere, for like yourself, I am first, last and always a postal employe and have been for 40 years . . . Postal people know he has set a precedent that will be difficult for any one to break and that tonight any postal worker, with interest, loyalty, initiative and application to duty, can aspire to the highest position in our great service."

RETIREMENT: I'm being snowed under by requests for information on the new retirement bill. Frankly, I can't answer the queries until the bill is finally enacted into law. However, I'll be glad to receive your questions and I promise to answer them once the bill is enacted. I'll also have available a small booklet which will explain the new features of the bill. Please write me your questions and requests for the booklets. No phone calls, please.

COLONY: And on this general subject, a retired Federal worker is planning to establish a small colony of retired employes in Deming, N. Mex. His name is: Wallace E. Moessner of 608 Northbrook Courts, 3426 16th st. nw. He's planning to build 50 homes in Deming. See him for details. All I know is this—that he has picked a wonderful spot for his colony. I was there last winter.

DECENTRALIZATION: The House Civil Service Committee wants Postoffice to decentralize its mail bag repair shop which is located here. The dispersing of this operation, the committee says, will save in transportation and repair costs.

SEC: The Virginia congressional delegation has thrown its support behind Baldwin B. Bane for the Securities and Exchange vacancy. Bane is director of SEC's corporation finance division.

GSI Union Again Calls On Truman For Action

Strikers Say U. S. Permits Unfair Labor Practices On Its Property

Striking Government cafeteria workers, charging that the Federal Government is permitting unfair labor practices on its property, again called on President Truman yesterday to act in the 35-day-old dispute.

Meeting in the Shiloh Baptist Church, members of Local 471 United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers (UPW-CIO) in a unanimous resolution said that though they had picketed "early and late, in bitter cold and through snow and slush," they were still confident of victory. The resolution charged that:

1. High Governmental positions held by some GSI officials have been used to fight the union.

2. Strikebreakers "have been encouraged to trespass on Federal property" while pickets have been denied the warmth and restroom facilities in the buildings which our taxes helped to build and maintain."

Charge Discrimination

3. Attacks on the union "have been made because we are Negroes" and were aimed at interfering with the "right of Negroes to belong to a union of their own choice and to bargain fairly" without "the dishonest injection of false issues."

Two of the charges were promptly denied by J. C. Niehuss, GSI spokesman. Niehuss declared flatly that "no pressure was exerted from any source of Government in our behalf. As far as we are concerned the Government has been entirely neutral in this matter."

"United Public Workers have tried to turn this into a racial matter and their charge has no basis in fact. GSI has been the predominant employer of Negro help in the District and the charge of discrimination against the colored race is patently ridiculous," Niehuss said.

Mrs. Randolph in Chair

The union meeting was directed by Mrs. Rose Randolph, former vice president, who succeeded to the presidency upon the resignation of Richard Bancroft last week. The resolution, which was passed unanimously, was supported by Bancroft and Oliver T. Palmer, chief union negotiator, Palmer said.

Book Luncheon

Author's Talk To Be Dip In the Past

Agnes Sligh Turnbull will be talking from the heart when she tells about her book, "The Bishop's Mantle," at The Washington Post book and author luncheon, Wednesday, February 18, at Hotel Statler.

Agnes Sligh Turnbull

"This book is one I have long wanted to write," says Mrs. Turnbull. "Two members of my family were rectors of large and so-called 'fashionable' city churches. I have always been familiar with the sort of drama that goes on behind the scenes in a city clergyman's life."

The average layman, Mrs. Turnbull points out, really knows little of a profession that not only is interesting and most important, but also touches men and women at crucial moments of their lives.

Novels dealing with Catholic priests were an inspiration to Mrs. Turnbull to write one that would deal in a similar manner with a Protestant clergyman. She cites Father Sheehan's "My New Curate" and A. J. Cronin's "The Keys of the Kingdom" as having been of particular interest to her.

"The Bishop's Mantle" was conceived of by the author as the story of "an honest, sincere, brilliant young clergyman who would be a man like other men and yet be completely dedicated to the demands of his profession." Since its publication, Mrs. Turnbull's novel has gained rapidly in public acceptance and is now near the top of the best-seller fiction list.

Mrs. Turnbull wrote magazine stories for many years before turning to longer fiction. She now prefers novel writing as "infinitely harder but bringing much greater satisfaction." Her previous novels were "The Rolling Years," "Remember The End" and "The Day Must Dawn," which was a Literary Guild selection.

Other speakers now scheduled are Charles Hurd, author of "Washington Cavalcade," and Michael F. Reilly, co-author of "Reilly of the White House." Tickets are available at book and department stores.

Five Escape Fire Injury By Removal On Ladders

22d Street Blaze Routs 17 Sleepers; Jump in Another Fire Proves Fatal

Five persons escaped injury early yesterday when firemen carried them down ladders to safety from a smoke-filled building at 602 22d st. nw.

Meanwhile, Eugene Williams, 29, who was injured when he jumped from a fire on the second floor of a rooming house at 203 I st. nw., Saturday night, died yesterday at Freedmen's Hospital of a broken neck and back and crushed spinal cord.

Physicians, who said Williams' injuries caused a creeping paralysis which eventually stopped his breathing, reported he had suffered only slight burns.

Preston Watts, 67, who was injured in the same fire, was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for first and second degree burns and released. The fire, of undetermined origin, gutted the second floor of the building.

Seventeen persons were sleeping in the twelve rooms of the 22d t. building yesterday morning when fire was discovered shortly after 9:30. A driver for the Yellow Cab Co. saw smoke billowing from the building, and drove to No. 23 Engine House nearby to report the fire.

Those rescued were Mrs. Virginia Ferguson, 18, and her husband, Robert, 22, former-GI and a refrigeration student, from the third floor; Miss Ruth Brown, 29, Veterans Administration employe, and Miss Al V. Nunis, 19, a women's apparel store clerk, from the second floor, and Mrs. Ida Fisher, 71, a Walter Reed Hospital employe, who was carried out from the first floor.

Other residents of the building reached safety, most of them clad only in their night clothes. The fire was believed to have been caused by an overheated furnace. Damage was not estimated but firemen said it was not excessive.

Skid, Truck Collisions Hurt 9 In 3 Area Traffic Accidents

Five were hurt about 8:40 a. m. when a car skidded on the icy road between Alexandria and Fairfax, Va., near the Quartermaster Depot, and hit the Holmes Run Bridge.

Passengers in his car and their injuries were Chris Leach, 35, of 1924 Duke st., Alexandria, scalp lacerations; Wallace Lunsford, 25, of Warrenton, a broken nose and face lacerations; Daniel German, 25, of 5401 Columbia Pike, Arlington, concussion and back injuries; and John McCulley, 22, of 214 Franklin st., Alexandria, broken right leg and face lacerations.

Truck and Car Crash

A collsion between a trailer truck and a passenger car at about 9 a. m. on the Crane highway, near Kidwell Corner, in Prince Georges County, Md., sent two men to hospitals.

The injured were Charles Furr, 24, driver of the automobile, and a companion, George Moulden, 29, both of Mitchellville, Md.

At Freedmen's Hospital, where they were taken in the Marlboro Rescue Squad ambulance, both reported in a serious condition. Furr suffered a possible skull fracture; Moulden's right thigh and ribs were fractured.

Prince Georges County police said the truck struck Furr's car as the latter was making a left turn into a parking lot. Furr's auto was virtually demolished. After the crash, the truck careened into an unoccupied car parked nearby.

County Policemen Charles H. Nalley and Vincent S. Free charged Harry W. Biller, driver of the truck, of 4605 Lewis ave., Suitland Manor, Md., with reckless driving. They said a similar charge will be placed against Furr when he recovers.

14th St. Bridge Collision

In a head-on collision between a trailer truck and an automobile on the 14th st. nw. bridge about 7:30 p. m., Mrs. Vera Herrod, of Route 2, Alexandria, Va., a passenger in the car, suffered contusions of the head, an elbow and both knees.

Police said the truck driver was John Neely Page, 27, of New York City. Driver of the car that collided with the truck was Paul Dodson, of Route 2, Alexandria.

Another automobile, driven by Grayson F. Baker, 34, of 1620 Abingdon dr., Alexandria, Va., ran into the rear of Dodson's car. Mrs. Nan Baker, 32, together with her two children were taken to Alexandria Hospital, where Mrs. Baker was treated for leg cuts.

Lincoln's Wisdom, Humility Proposed as Political Creed

Abraham Lincoln's wisdom and humility and his deep moral and religious sense were stressed yesterday as guidance for good citizenship at a program honoring his coming birthday anniversary.

In tribute to the emancipator, Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, offered some of Lincoln's characteristics and words as examples "for us in our desire to be good citizens."

Grant Offers Creed

Grant, grandson of the Civil War general, urged as a political creed, Loncoln't own words: "I am not bound to win, but I am bound to be true. I am not bound to succeed, but I am bound to live up to what light I have. I must stand with anybody that stands right; stand with him while he is right and part with him when he goes wrong."

The program, at 2:30 p. m., was sponsored by the National Park Service and the Washington Lincoln Group. It is held annually the Sunday before Lincoln's birthday anniversary in the Lincoln Museum, at one time the Ford Theater, site of the President's assassination in 1865.

Representative Ben F. Jensen (R., Iowa) presided yesterday. The National Press Club chorus offered several selections, including "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Stamps on Exhibit

A collection of 35 stamps depicting Lincoln and his contemporaries went on exhibit yesterday at the Philatelic Group of the New World Club, New York City.

Another program in observance of Lincoln's 139th birthday anniversary was held at 8 p. m. at the First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw., under sponsorship of the Department of the Potomac Woman's Relief Corps, Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic.

Guest speaker was Col. Robert J. Irish, finance officer of the Military District of Washington. Music was furnished by a detachment of the U. S. Marine Corps Band.

Spanish to Be Spoken

A new class in conversational Spanish for persons with some background for the language will be organized tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring, under the county's adult education program. The class will be conducted Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 8 to 10 p. m., for 12 weeks. Mrs. Katherine Rodriquez will be the instructor. The registration fee is $1.

Elks to Dance Friday

Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) and Montgomery County Commissioners Brooke Johns, Wesley Sauter and Oliver W. Youngblood will be honor guests at the first charity ball of the Silver Spring Elks Lodge, Friday, at the Manor Country Club, Norbeck, Md.

65-Year-Old Man Fights Off Robbers

A 65-year-old former building guard early yesterday fought off twoteen-age robbers with a pocket knife he usually kept to cut plug tobacco.

Julian H. Lewis of 1516 First st. sw., told police he went into action with the knife after being grabbed from behind, yoked and thrown face-down on the sidewalk while walking in the 1300 block of 4th st. sw. He said he believed he had stabbed one of his assailants three times in the body.

Police are checking hospitals for the youths, who fled after Lewis' counterattack. They were described as dark-skinned Negroes, about 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighing about 125 pounds, and wearing dark clothing.

Quads Acquire 'New Look' as Barber Snips

The four little Cirminello quads of 1653 Colonial ter., Arlington, yesterday had a special appointment with their barber for their monthly haircut.

Ted Bocolo, 14th and Park rd., nw., who is a friend of the Joseph Cirminello family, did the job. He describes himself as "strictly special barber" to the quads, and figures he'll have to drop by and trim their hair about every three weeks.

Eileen was first into the chair, and she sat demurely with the long white cloth draped over her while Bocolo wielded the scissors. The clippers, called a "choo-choo train" tickled her neck a bit, but she didn't squirm in spite of the fact that the other three were creating a commotion at her feet.

Next in line for the trmming was Maureen, who had watched the whole operation with curiosity and was anxious not to be left out of the activity. According to Bocolo, she has the thickest and most difficult hair to cut.

Kathleen, whose hair is just like sister Eileen's, followed, and then came Michael. His mother said he was once afraid of the clippers, but he didn't wince once yesterday and even gave forth with a big grin when he got a special treatment with "stickum" to keep his cowlicks in place.

When the job was over all four 3-year-olds trooped to a mirror to glance at their new look before returning to the more strenuous activity of entertaining each other.

The Del Ray (Va.) Baptist Church choir will present a concert at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Mount Vernon Elementary School, 2500 Mount Vernon ave., Alexandria. Admission will be free.

District Man Surrenders To Police on Charge of Rape

Rodney F. Wheeler, 24, of 824 51st st. se., surrendered to District police yesterday on a charge he raped a 14-year-old District girl last Christmas Eve.

Wheeler

Warrant for Wheeler's arrest was sworn out Saturday by the girl's mother.

Wheeler, was released from Gallinger Hospital Friday recovering from injuries received in a fight with Harry H. Kelley, one-time amateur boxer. Kelley said Wheeler had attacked his wife, the former Elizabeth (Betsy) Lyon.

The warrant on which Wheeler now is held without bond was sworn out in Montgomery County. According to police, the alleged rape occurred in a deserted side street of Glen Echo, Md.

The 14-year-old girl, who lives in Northeast Washington, is said to have been attending a Christmas Eve party to which she went with friends. She had known Wheeler for about a year.

Police charge Wheeler took the girl, together with a 15-year-old boy and a man identified only as being "from out of town," to the secluded Glen Echo spot. The boy and other man went for a long walk.

Police said that after the rape occurred, Wheeler picked the two men up and then took the girl home, "early in the morning."

Girl Under Treatment

The girl is now under treatment in a local hospital, although her condition is not serious.

Wheeler, who served with the 121st Engineers, 29th Division, and saw European action during World War II, faces extradition proceedings to Maryland in Municipal Court this morning. The veteran, who gave his occupation as interior decorating contractor, has a warrant pending against Kelley for the assault against him early this month. Kelley's socialite wife was formerly married to Theodore Deutsch, who committed suicide in Chicago last May.

Man Killed in Family Quarrel; Wife Held for Shooting Inquest

Wilbert Tucker of 626 Florence st. ne., was pronounced dead at Casualty Hospital a half-hour after being shot with a .45 caliber revolver. The shooting, police said, happened at about 3:30 a. m.

His wife, Indiana, mother of a 3-year-old child, was held at the police Women's Bureau for a coroner's inquest scheduled for 11:30 a. m. today.

She told Pvt. Irma Smith of the Women's Bureau that her husband of three years had threatened her with the revolver. In a tussle that followed, the revolver discharged as she tried to grab it fro . him.

In another shooting, resulting from an argument over whisky, Samuel Sprouse of 1518 Church st. nw., was shot in the hand with a .25 caliber pistol shortly after midnight in the 1300 block of S st. nw., police said. Sprouse was admitted to Gallinger Hospital.

Police are holding James Landrum, 31, of 2149 N st. nw., for investigation in connection with the case.

After kicking in the front door of his home about 6:30 p. m. Saturday, Reginald Greenfield, 31, of 511 9th st. sw., threatened his family with a .32 caliber pistol, causing them to flee out the window and over a back fence, police reported yesterday.

Wake Forest Wins Intercollegiate Debate Tourney

The Wake Forest team of Henry Huff, Washington, and Daniel Lovelace, Raleigh, N. C., was judged winner over a University of Richmond team of John Chamberlayne, Richmond, and Charles Harvey, Erwin, Tenn.

Richmond's William Chamberlayne was the winner in an extemporaneous speaking contest. Miss Winifred Whitlock of Swarthmore was second and Henry Huff, third.

Robert W. Dickey, University of Pittsburgh, won the after-dinner speaking contest, second place being taken by Caldwell Butler from Richmond, representing the University of Virginia, and third place went to Lik Kin Ding, a Chinese student from Randolph-Macon College.

Students from the United States Naval Academy, University of Florida and Lynchburg College also participated in the event, sponsored by the University of Virginia.

Baltimore Probing Deficient GI Housing

Baltimore, Feb. 8 (AP).—Mayor D'Alesandro will meet with top city officials tomorrow to investigate more thoroughly complaints of veterans that homes purchased by them with GI loans were not built according to priorities specifications nor the city's building code.

Representing 2000 such veterans will be William J. Muth, vice president of the City Council. Muth began a drive against improper housing construction last summer.

D'Alesandro said he will propose that the home of every complaining veteran be inspected by an "impartial" committee of building experts. The committee will decide what is wrong with the houses and what the contractors must do to correct the deficiences.

Rev. Luttrell Accepts Call to Emporia

Emporia, Va., Feb. 8 (AP).—The Rev. Edwyn Luttrell, for the past two years assistant pastor of Second Baptist Church of Richmond, has accepted a call to the pastorate of Main Street Baptist Church of Emporia effective March 1.

Bed Collapse Pins Man, 62, Ten Hours

A 62-year-old man was imprisoned nearly 10 hours yesterday when his bed collapsed, pinning him to the bedroom floor.

The man, Anton Reches, occupant of the third-floor front room at 418 7th st. sw., was finally freed at 10:30 a. m. by police who climbed through a transom to enter his room.

Police said Reches had screamed vainly throughout the night as he lay imprisoned between the mattress and the horizontal metal bar supporting the bed slats.

He was rescued by Pvts. Grover C. Smith and Rodney P. Hableton of Scout Car 41 when his landlady, Mrs. Sally Beacham, who had first thought him ill, called police.

Guard Sets 2444 Goal

The District National Guard, which has increased from 316 to 1502 officers and men since January 1, 1947, hopes to attain a personnel strength of 2444 by June 30.

Last year's enlistment boost was attributed to the "man-a-minute" fall recruiting campaign. Nineteen new ground force units received Federal recognition during the year.

WASHINGTON The Hecht Co. SILVER S

Mrs. Dougherty Hostess; Edward Tomlinson Host

By Marie McNair

When Mrs. John Allan Dougherty gives a party you can count on "old Washington" being there.

Yesterday guests were asked to meet Mrs. Fenton Turck, of New York, who makes an annual visit to Washington to see her old and dear friend, Peggy Dougherty.

Although not exactly newcomers to the Capital scene, Gen. Omar Bradley, new Chief of Staff, and Mrs. Bradley, were definitely the "spike" in the tea. They had with them Mrs. Bradley's sister, Mrs. Wayne Stewart of Oregon, who looks enough like her to be her twin, and they all left much too early because they were going on to a dinner.

Under the glow from the candlelit tea table, Mrs. Francis H. Pope, in Alice blue gown and matching feather hat, was pouring tea, and at the other end of the buffet table a fat and brown turkey was being subjected to the knife for sandwiches with wafer thin slices of brown bread.

Wears Swiss Hat

I saw Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of the Justice, in black and wearing her "conversation-piece" hat—a Swiss bonnet of black starched lace. Mme. Sze, whose husband was Minister of China a number of years ago, was greeting former Ambassador and Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck, and Senator Arthur Capper was surrounded by the ladies.

Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt came in—Sadie Pratt handsome in a claret-colored wool suit and round hat of feathers to match, and I met them again at Edward Tomlinson's party at Wardman Park Hotel. Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner came early to Mrs. Dougherty's afternoon fete, and she, too, turned up at Mr. Tomlinson's fete.

Guests greeting hostess and guests of honor found Mrs. Dougherty at the doorway of the drawing room, her long, simply cut black velvet gown accented with a deep collar of exquisite white lace. Mrs. Turck's gown of gold-colored crepe was covered with gold sequins.

The rose-trimmed hat of Mrs. Omar Bradley was a cheerful note on a cold and wintry day, and Mrs. Emil Hurja brought spring in the door with her when she appeared with pale pink roses on her hat.

Mrs. Claude Beddington and Mrs. Dorothy Ward Lee chatted together over their cups of tea. Mrs. Fred Britten, with soaring birds on her hat, stopped to exchange pleasantries with Tom Morgan.

'Reindeer King' a Guest

Mrs. Sidney Graves came early, found many friends to tempt her to linger. Then there were Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. George Thorpe who said she had walked with the help of a cane across ice sheeted streets from her home on Wyoming ave.; Carl Lomen, "the reindeer king" with Mrs. Lomen, the former Laura Volstead, daughter of the author of the "Volstead Act" which gave us prohibition back in 1918.

Mrs. Julien E. Gilespie was there and others were Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Representative and Mrs. Jay LeFevre, Mrs. Emerson Howe, Charles Mason Remey, Mrs. Frank Morrow, in mink with a beige feather hat; Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross.

In the Madison suite at Wardman Park Hotel, Edward Tomlinson, who's an authority on Inter-American affairs, and broadcasts about it too, entertained in honor of the Charge d' Affaires of Venezuela and Senora de Falcon-Briceno, as a Washington prelude to the inauguration ceremonies of President Romulo Gallegos of Venezuela next Sunday in Caracas. Sharing honors with them was Senora de Carnevali, wife of the Venezuelan Ambassador, who is already in the Venezuelan capital for the event.

Officials Attend

Most of the members of the embassy staff were there to enjoy this pleasant part and among others were Mrs. Charles C. Clark, mother of Gen. Mark Clark, with pale pink wings and a pink flower for a hat; Mrs. Alex Legare, a black broadtail cape over her shoulders and blue ostrich on her hat; William Dawson, United States Ambassador to the Pan American Union; Mrs. George Holmes, in long dress, on her way to dinner.

Also Gen. Harry Vaughan, Military Aide to the President, and Mrs. Vaughan, in a toast-brown dinner gown; Paul Daniels of the State Department and Mrs. Daniels; Richard Post, director of the Venezuelan Division of American Republic Affairs of the State Department, and Mrs. Post, and Col. and Mrs. Douglas Smith.

TOWN TOPICS: Archibald MacLeish, poet, and former Librarian of Congress, will attend the inauguration ceremony of Venezuela's President Romulo Gallegos on Sunday in Caracas as special Ambassador of the United States. The United States will also be represented by our Ambassador, Walter C. Donnelly.

Flying to Caracas on Tuesday from Washington as representative of his country will be Dr. LuraiSlavik, Czechoslavak Ambassador. And the Venezuelan Ambassador to the United States, Dr. Gonzalo Carnevali, has already left, accompanied by Hugo Orozco, First Secretary of the Embassy.

MRS. PAUL LEON BORNET
. . . marries at Shoreham

Delisi—Bilskie

At St. Francis De Sales Church at 4 yesterday afternoon Miss Helen Anne Bilskie, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Bilskie of Girardville, Pa., was married to Philip Frederick Delisi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Delisi of Washington.

The Rev. Walter L. Read read the marriage ceremony and Anthony Moschetto gave the bride in marriage. The bride wore candlelight satin made with a long train, a veil of imported illusion and a tiara of seed pearls. Her flowers were white roses and lilies of the valley.

Paul Pontorno was best man and Marvin L. Ward and Joseph Delisi were ushers.

A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom. After a wedding trip to New York the couple will reside at 1605 Rhode Island ave. ne.

Warner—Butcher

Miss Marjorie Anne Butcher became the bride of Virgil H. Warner at 4 yesterday afternoon at Metropolitan Memorial Church. The Rev. Henry Holyoke of Wellsville, Ohio, brother-in-law of the bride, assisted in the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother, W. Vaughan Butcher of Chicago, Mrs. Warner wore white crepe with a lace yoke and a Juliet cap of seed pearls. She carried a prayer book with a shower of gardenias.

Miss Gail Rowe, in a cinnamon and gold brocade dress, was the bride's only attendant. William Butcher, brother of the bride, was best man and the ushers were George Marshall and Harold Tarvin.

Bornet—Buckoff

Miss Marjorie Lillian Buckoff and Paul Leon Bornet were married at 5:30 last evening in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel, Rabbis Metz and Gerstenfeld officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Buckoff of this city and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Bornet also of Washington.

Mr. Buckoff gave his daughter in marriage. She wore an eggshell satin wedding gown made with a sweetheart neckline and basque waist. Her veil of French illusion was held in place by a sequin-trimmed coronet and she carried a Bible topped with orchids.

Mrs. Jack Rubin, sister of the bridegroom, served as matron of honor, wearing an ankle-length dress of toast-colored lace with a matching hat. Her flowers were blue iris, yellow acacia, and jonquils. Similarly costumed in bronze taffeta and lace was Miss Natalie Lenkin, the maid of honor. Jack Rubin was best man.

A dinner followed the ceremony. The couple was to fly to Bermuda for their wedding trip and will live at 2100 Connecticut ave. nw., when they return.

The bride attended George Washington University and Mr. Bornet attended University of North Carolina and George Washington University.

Cotton Ball To Feature D. C. Maids

Out of Sorts? Your Diet May Be Wrong

By Ida Jean Kain

If on a diet you have a civil word for nobody . . . get off that diet. Contrary to popular belief, a reducing diet will not put you out of sorts—that is, the right diet won't. And if your disposition to start with is nothing to brag about, a scientific diet, high in iron and vitamins, may work a miracle . . . particularly if you lose.

Disposition is only one test of a diet. How you feel is the real test. You should have more bounce, not less. If you feel dragged out, there is something missing from the menu besides calories. Perhaps you are not including enough protein—lean meat, fish, eggs, cheese and milk. These foods are the backbone of a reducing diet. The cheaper cuts of meat furnish as good quality protein as rare steaks, and fish is an excellent food.

What's more, you should not catch a cold just because you stop overeating. A reducing diet must be low in fat to keep the calories low, so butter, cream and whole milk are used sparingly. This cuts down on the vitamin A—the vitamin which helps prevent colds—but the reducer can take a Haliver Oil capsule which supplies 6000 to 10,000 units of vitamin A without adding calories. The vitamins most apt to be lacking in the low-calorie diet are A and B1, so to be on the safe side I suggest one multiple vitamin concentrate. One concentrate a day will supply all essential vitamins in adquate amounts. The concentrates are not a better source of vitamins than foods but they add vitamins without calories, which allows more leeway to vary the menus while reducing.

If you do not wish to supplement the menue with a concentrate, use daily, one egg, a liberal serving of a dark green leafy vegetable plus a yellow vegetable, and one ounce of cheese or two glasses of whole milk as sources of vitamin A; and three slices of 100 per cent whole grain bread, and meat organs twice a week to furnish vitamin B.

Of course, the nicest thing about dieting is getting slim, which is the final test of a diet. On a menu averaging 1000 to 1200 calories per day you should lose between one and two pounds a week. If you are not averaging a half pound loss per week, some extra calories are slipping in somewhere. But a loss of more than 2 to 2½ pounds a week means you are getting too few calories. Step them up a bit.

If you have never tried this scientific way of taking off the pounds, you will be surprised at how well and happy you can feel while reducing.

Miss Muriel Kaufman Engaged to Wed

Miss Muriel Doris Kaufman and Irving Gertler will be married in April, it is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hyman M. Kaufman of Washington.

The bride-elect attended George Washington University where she was a member of Phi Sigma Sigma and was graduated from Benjamin Franklin University. Mr. Gertler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Gertler, also of this city, attended Benjamin Franklin University and Agriculture Graduate School.

Sentimental Valentines In Demand

TIE UP YOUR HEART in big red ribbons, trim it with a froth of paper lace and send it to your beau on St. Valentine's Day.

Don't go out looking for sophisticated Valentines. On Dan Cupid's favorite day, be sentimental as a tinkling eighteenth-century music box—and your man will love you for it.

Remember that this is Leap Year, when custom decrees that women may (in the words of a publication issued in the year 1606 "have the sole privilege of making love unto the man, which they doe either by wordes or lookes, as to them it seemeth proper."

Sentimental Valentines, glowing with satin and gay ribbons and lace, are in heavy demand this year, according to the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers. After years of wisecracking soldier-boy Valentines, there is a strong trend back to the quaint cards of almost a century ago.

The bluebirds, roses, intricate lacy effects and gay cupids are right in keeping with the nostalgic feminine silhouettes of fashion for 1948.

MEN and women adopt quite different tactics when shopping for Valentines, Greeting Card publishers found in a recent study.

Males do everything but wear disguises. Usually they duck in late during Valentine week—and alone. After being shown the cards, they prefer the clerks to disappear, so they can read the verses without either helpful advice or the suggestion of kibitzing.

As a rule they make their selections quickly. Being a bit shy about displaying sentimentality in any form, they want their purchases wrapped hurriedly so they can duck out before any masculine pals appear on the scene to kid them.

Despite all this furtiveness men are by far the best buyers of expensive cards, especially the elaborate creations with plush hearts and satin insets.

Women, however, find Valentine shopping a delightful activity—a refreshing break in the routine of humdrum daily activity. They are not at all embarrassed about being caught at the Valentine counter, and will linger as long as an hour, looking over the colorful cards and reading the verses.

Women make a great ceremony of finding just the right missive to express their sentiments, whether they be true love, platonic friendship or provocative flirtation.

New Process To Make Cotton Rot-Resistant

The Department of Agriculture reported this week that its chemists have found a way to make cotton cloth and yarn permanently resistant to mildew and other forms of rot.

Fish nets and shoe lining made of the new cloth already are being tested for commercial use, the department said. It added that the discovery holds the "promise" of longer life for a wide variety of outdoor fiber products, such as tents, awnings and tarpaulins, and seed-bed covers.

Officials said that cotton clothing also might be made mildew-resistant. "But we would want to test it first to be sure acid in the treated cloth could cause no injurious effects to the wearer who perspires."

In the conversion process, the outside of the cotton yarn or fabric is treated with a new compound known as cellulose acetate. This is done by combining the fiber chemically with acetic acid molecules. Acetic acid is the principal acid in vinegar.

"The treatment causes no discoloration, imparts no odor and does not make cotton sticky or poisonous as some other rot-proofing treatments do," the department said.

"It does not change cotton fabric in appearance, 'feel' or strength. But it greatly improves its resistance to rot and also improves its heat resistance."

This raises the possibility, the department said, that the treated cloth might be used in laminating insulation for buildings.

The process was developed at the department's Southern Regional Research Laboratory, New Orleans.

By prolonging the life of cotton products, officials said, the new process could reduce the cost to the user and thereby improve cotton's competitive position with other fabrics, such as nylon and rayon.

Ask Anne Your Questions on Homemaking

Please give me some suggestion as to what I can do to prevent my curtains from becoming soiled so quickly. We have oil heat and radiator covers, but in spite of this, at the end of a week my curtains are black with soot, or something. Is there any remedy for this? E. J. D.

At this time of year, the dirt which is soiling your curtains so rapidly is possibly sifting in from the outside around your doors and windows. If the radiators are under the windows, the rising heat at this point draws any dust or soot in the air to the curtains. Check all joints around windows, doors and floor boards for open joints which will admit air and dirt. If such are found, these can be filled with putty tinted with color-in-oil to match the paint finish. Of course, if the window doesn't fit tightly in the frame or the joints between the walls and frame are not snug, these openings should be closed. It will depend upon which sort of construction you have, but sometimes these joints can be closed by caulking compound. This compound is best put in by caulking guns by carpenters, roofers or house mechanics who have such equipment. If there are openings at the baseboards, these are best closed by using a molding called quarter-round. This should be attached not to baseboard or flooring, but by long nails passing at an angle through the opening between baseboard and flooring and into the timber behind. If the curtains are washable, starching them very stiffly will help to keep them from absorbing so much dirt. If the above suggestions do not lessen the need for laundering your curtains so frequently, perhaps you should consider choosing a curtain of material which shows the soil less or one of the hard-surfaced materials such as the plastics or glazed chintzes from which soil can be brushed quite readily.

I have been told by a furniture man that paraffin oil is excellent for solid mahogany furniture. However, when I attempt to purchase some of this oil, invariably they ask me what I want to use it for and discourage its use. I understand that it is very oily, but with sufficient rubbing is absorbed into the wood and preserves it better than anything else. Have you ever heard of using this oil for this purpose? V. B.

Paraffin oil is used to apply oil to unusually dry woods during the refinishing process, but there are other oils which are cleaner and more satisfactory for keeping finished furniture in good condition. A good grade of lemon oil is excellent for this purpose. In the case of a very dry piece of furniture, apply lemon oil every day for two months, rubbing in very thoroughly. At the end of this period, apply several coats of wax, buffing well after each coat is thoroughly dry. Another way to prevent drying, if the piece of furniture is a desk or secretary, is to perforate the tops of mayonnaise jars, place water in them and put the jars in the desk drawers.

I have a lovely two-piece black dress. The yoke, which is a light aqua-blue (with sequins), has faded and is a very dull color in places. What is the safest and best way to redye the yoke? Could it be dipped in a tint without harming the black? J. S. T.

Dipping the yoke in a tint without first removing it from the black dress would be risky because the black might fade on to the yoke. If possible, remove the yoke from the dress and the sequins from the yoke and dye it. If the yoke is rayon it might shrink during the dying process, so I would suggest you make a paper pattern of it before attempting to dye it so, if it does shrink, it will be easier to replace the yoke with new material. As a matter of fact, if you are handy with a needle, putting a new yoke in the dress would probably be the best and easiest way to refurbish it. On the other hand, if the dress is made in such a way that replacing the yoke would mean almost remaking the dress, why don't you take it to a professional dyer and discuss the possibility of dying the entire dress black?

I put oil on the leaves of my green plants to make them shiny. Now the oil has become very sticky and has formed a coat on the leaves. I'm afraid it will keep them from breathing. How can I get it off? Soap and water won't do it. J. W. S.

A florish with whom I discussed your problem says that soap and water is the only thing with which you have a chance of taking the oil off of the leaves which will not harm the plant. He suggests that in the future, instead of oil, you use a commercial product designed to give the leaves a shiny appearance. It is milky looking and contains ingredients to prevent lice and mealy bugs also. It can be purchased at most florist shops.

I want to have the initials changed on my silverware. Is there any way I could do this myself or do I have to take it to the jewelers? G. K.

Very special equipment and skill is required to remove engraving from silver and replace new initials. I would surely suggest you turn the job over to a professional engraver.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Happily Married for Eleven Years, Wife Sees Her Attractive Husband Falling in Love With Her Best Friend, Also Married; What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: This is an age-old problem and one that I find impossible to face. My husband and I have been very happily married for 11 years and have three children; and now he is falling in love—if he hasn't already done so—with my best friend, who is also happily married and has three children.

He is extremely attractive and always has been so to other women; and I also have always been popular with other men, but this meant nothing to either of us in our married relationship, as we have always been sure of each other, and completely compatible, mentally, physically and spiritually.

Now he is behaving in a manner completely unlike himself. He makes every sort of excuse to see Myra and in her company he behaves in a really adolescent fatuous way. She is an extremely nice attractive person and this sort of thing is not her usual game, but obviously she is very much attracted by John and also flattered by his attentions.

Would Protests Fuel Romance?

HER HUSBAND appears to be unaware of what is going on, but I find myself in the position of being a "jealous wife." I am terribly in love with John and don't want to be second in his thoughts or emotions. I have tried to be gay and casual about the whole thing so far, but it is hard play-acting and I think he knows I am jealous.

I am confused about what to do. I wonder whether to issue an ultimatum that we shan't see the other couple any more, or whether to close my eyes and hope it is only a temporary infatuation.

I doubt that it would do much good to stop seeing them as a couple, because John sees Myra alone now—for lunch and via frequent calls and stops at her house. —and forbidden fruit might become even more tempting. I am badly in need of, and shall be most grateful for, your sane advice.

E. B.

Two Were Looking For Divertissement

DEAR E. B.: In a sense, John and Myra are playing the fool just to enliven the erstwhile monotony of placid conjugal happiness which each possesses and takes for granted.

In an entranced sort of way at present, I suppose, they are thinking in terms of having "discovered" each other, and also wondering—and perhaps marveling in confidence—at how they could have been so blind as not to have recognized their supposed affinity on first meeting, at first glance.

What happened to spark their infatuation—the usual preface to this sort of thing—was that their impulses collided and paused, as it were, for a "double-take," when each was unconsciously casting about for romantic divertissement on a flirtation-basis with somebody charming (but safe!) of the opposite sex,—said divertissement to be the jam on the bread-and-butter of their solid routine domestic contentment

Now they are emotionally invested to some degree in the mischievous game they started; but beyond that they are getting progressively tangled up in the multiplying tensions which subrosa intrigue invariably breeds, and in consequence infer themselves to be spellbound by irresistible mutual attraction—a snare-and-delusion that ordinarily develops in triangle escapades, to become a secondary incitation to mounting folly.

Pair Needs Jolt From Real World

IN THE circumstances, somebody needs to behave with clear head; and in my opinion, you're elected. Given eyes to see and a grain of sense, how could you miss the implications of what goes on? And why be apologetic about your disturbed awareness? The good relationship you've had with your husband is your dearest treasure; and my advice is to meet the challenge of Myra's tacit piracy in head-on contest.

This isn't being jealous; rather it's being adult and realistic in acting to protect your most vital interests. Talk things out with John, stress your absolute love of him now striated by deep distress, and lamenting Myra's coy unscrupulous rivalry—for such it is,—and let him know that having his devotion and being his wife are all-important to your happiness.

When he finds himself between two fires, Myra will hear of it, her ingenue pose will go up in smoke, their dream world romance will crash to a discomfited defensive level and the game will seem far less worth the candle—since in the all-married triangle, it's not the "forbidden" but rather the easily available that seems most tempting.

Symphony Reports Due At Luncheon

Some 300 committee chairmen and volunteer workers, which include the majority of Washington's social and service personnel, will hear the first reports on the results of their efforts toward raising $165,000 for the National Symphony's sustaining fund at luncheon on Thursday at the Mayflower.

At the head table, seated with the principal speaker, Paul Galloway, organist and choirmaster of Washington Cathedral, will be a collection of notables, including Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador; Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice; Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, wife of the General of the Armies; Mrs. Clifford Davis, president of the Congressional Club and wife of the Democratic Representative from Tennessee; Mrs. Robert Hale, wife of the Republican Representative from Maine; Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, honorary vice president of the National Symphony Orchestra Association; John T. O'Rourke, editor of the Washington Daily News, and Frank R. Jelleff, member of the National Symphony's board of directors. Edward Burling, jr, general drive chairman, will preside.

Several committee heads have scheduled meetings of their groups prior to Thursday's report luncheon. Mrs. Paul Magnuson, general chairman of the presidential committee, has invited her subchairmen and their captains to tea on Wednesday. Among those attending will be Mrs. Robert Sher, chairman, unit I; Mrs. Warren S. Ege, chairman, unit II; Mrs. DeForest Van Slyck, chairman, unit III; Mrs. Frederick B. Lee, chairman, unit IV; Mrs. Smith Bowman, chairman, unit V; Mrs. Benjamin W. Thoron, chairman, unit VI. Mrs. Van Sylck will have her unit III captains, Mrs. Theodore Babbitt, Mrs. Alexander Hawes, Mrs. Daniel Partridge 3d, Mrs. Hamilton Robinson and Mrs. Charles Saltzman, to luncheon the same day.

Mrs. Gordon R. Young, Army committee chairman, has scheduled a meeting for her group, which represents all departments of the Army, to follow the report luncheon on Thursday.

Luncheon Is Planned At Fort McNair

Wives of Army Engineer Corps officers will meet for luncheon Thursday, 12:30 p. m., at Fort McNair Officers' Club. Mrs. Raymond A. Wheeler, wife of Lieutenant General Wheeler, chief of Engineers, will preside. Mrs. John F. Conklin is in charge of arrangements. Bridge will follow the luncheon.

On the Club Front . . .

Joseph R. Farrington, delegate from Hawaii, will address the Women's Advertising Club of Washington at the luncheon Wednesday, 12:30 p. m. at Washington Hotel. His subject will be "America's Future in the Pacific."

Mrs. Blake Clark, whose husband wrote "Hawaii, the Forty-Ninth State," will discuss the history and interpretations of the hula dance. Leis flown from Hawaii will be presented as door prizes.

Susan B. Anthony Birthday Celebration

The birthday of Susan B. Anthony will be observed by the National Woman's Party, D. C. branch, at a concert at 8 p. m. Saturday at Alva Belmont House, 144 B st. ne.

Music will be by a women's octette under the direction of Mrs. Willis M. Gault. Mrs. Marguerite R. Voge is program chairman. The program will also include a talk by Dr. Florence A. Armstrong, member of the national council.

Jewish Women's Council Will Celebrate

An all-star cast of council members will present the "Fifty-third Birthday Train" at the February meeting of the D. C. section, National Council of Jewish Women, at the Jewish Community Center tomorrow at 12:30 p. m.

At this meeting, which celebrates the organization's 53rd birthday, luncheon will be served prior to presentation of an old-fashioned variety show depicting the many activities sponsored by the National Council of Jewish Women.

Mrs. Morris Gewirz is in charge of the program and Mrs. Theodore D. Peyser, president, will preside.

Mrs. Carter to Address Women's Action Committee

Mrs. Margaret R. T. Carter, chief of the Division of Public Liaison for the State Department, will speak on "America's Stake in the European Recovery Plan" at the meeting tomorrow of the Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace. This bi-monthly general membership meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Maurice Morris, the Lindens, 2401 Kalorama rd., at 8 p. m. Discussion will follow the speech. Mrs. Lilian T. Mowrer, chairman of the D. C. Chapter will preside.

Tarheel Democrats To Honor N. C. Delegation

North Carolina's Congressional delegation will be honored at the annual banquet and ball of the North Carolina Democratic Club Friday, February 13, in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel.

Toast to the Tarheel Senators and Representatives will be given by James E. Webb, director of the Bureau of the Budget. Representative Robert L. Doughton, senior member of the delegation, will respond.

Speakers will be the three freshmen delegates: Representative Charles B. Deane of Rockingham, N. C.; Representative Hamilton C. Jones of Charlotte, N. C., and Representative Monroe S. Redding of Hendersonville, N. C.

John Lang, new president of the club, will introduce the honored guests and the other new officers. Music will be provided by "The Washington Diplomats," a quarter of congressional secretaries.

The Rev. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of the Church of the Reformation, and a native of Gastonia, N. C., will give the invocation. Other arrangements for the reception and banquet are being planned by Mrs. Mary C. Murphy, 2700 Wisconsin ave., who promises a Southern-style menu and Valentine decorations.

Reservations are being taken by Frank Sanders, secretary to Representative John H. Kerr, NA. 3120, Ext. 590. Following the banquet there will be dancing to the music of Tiny Meeker's orchestra.

Randolph-Macon Alumnae To Hear Mrs. Ribble

"The College Today" will be the topic for discussion when Anne Jeter (Mrs. John Marshall) Ribble addresses the Randolph Macon Alumnae Club Saturday, February 14, at 12:45. Speaking at a luncheon meeting at the Dodge Hotel, Mrs. Ribble will bring alumnae up to date on current curricula and student life in the Lynchburg, Va., college. She will also outline a long-range plan under which the 10,000 alumnae across the country are being groomed to aid in the future development of the college.

Alumnae of Greater Washington area are invited.

Polishes Better! No other toothpaste that you have ever heard about, bought or used can do what utterly new, radically different Lyons Toothpaste does! As the chart above shows, it's the only toothpaste that gets teeth so bright, actually gets them 2½ to 5½ times brighter than any other. And the reason is that it's the only toothpaste that gives you the benefits of its patented cleansing agent and an exclusive polishing agent!
Tastes Better, Too! It stands to reason that a toothpaste made without soap tastes better than one made with soap. And unlike ordinary toothpastes that contain soap, Lyons Toothpaste contains none. Once you try it . . . once you enjoy its pleasanter, cleaner, more refreshing flavor, you'll understand why men, women and children everywhere are saying: "Here's a wonderful new taste in toothpaste!"
The brighter your teeth look . . . the better you look! Naturally, you want to look your best at all times. And that's why it's important that you pay special attention to your teeth. For a bright, flashing smile can do so much to enhance your whole appearance.
So do as so many others are doing—switch to new Lyons Toothpaste, the toothpaste that gets teeth 2½ to 5½ times brighter than any other . . . and does it because it's not just another old toothpaste with an added ingredient, but is completely new and radically different in formula!

Scout Sunday Is Observed In Churches

The Twelfth Scout Law—"I will be reverent"—was stressed yesterday as Greater Washington area churches observed "Boy Scout Sunday."

The observance was a phase of National Scout Week, which began last Friday, commemorating the thirty-eighth anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts of America. The idea of scouting had originated earlier in England.

Highlight of the Catholic observance was a benediction of the most blessed sacrament at St. Peter's Catholic Church, 2d and C sts. se., where Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle presented Ad Altara Dei Crosses to 12 scouts and the scouting chairman of the Washington Archdiocese.

Recipients Listed

The recipients were Marden Brue King, chairman of the Congressional District, BSA, for the Catholic Committee on Scouting; William Bright, Louis Donatelli, jr., Joseph Hartinger, James C. Henderson, Robert Holden, Kenneth L. Miller, Earl Peterson, Robert Taylor (in absentia), and Henry Williamson, of Troop 400, Holy Comforter Church, 12th and East Capitol sts.; William Taylor and Harry Caputo, Troop 606, St. Martin's Church, North Capitol and T sts., and Gerard Cahill, Troop 90, Blessed Sacrament Church, Chevy Chase Circle.

Robert Taylor, who is ill, will receive his award later from the Rev. Gerard A. McWilliams, assistant rector of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Bethesda, and chaplain of the Montgomery County Scouting District and of Troop 288.

The new God and Country award of the Boy Scouts of America was given for the first time yesterday in the National Capital area. The recipient was Malcalm MacCoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce W. MacCoy, who is an Eagle Scout with Bronze Palm, received the honor at a Scout service for Troop 119, sponsored by Calvary Methodist Church, 23d and S. Grant sts., Arlington.

12 to See President

Twelve outstanding Boy Scouts representing all sections of the country will be greeted by President Truman at the White House tomorrow. The scouts will give the President a report on service rendered by Scouts during the past year and inform him about the 1948 program. The 12 are:

James F. McIntyre, 17, Fall River, Mass.; Jack Brader, 15, Stone Church (New Berwick), Pa.; Thomas G. Sage, 17, Wheeling, W. Va.; Joseph E. Melton, 16, Shreveport, La.; John G. Wyatt, jr., 16, Candor, N. C.; Karl Young, 16, Menomonie, Wis.; Dale Gallagher, 15, Montrose, Colo.; Morris Lee Frye, 17, Miami, Okla.; Myron T. Shervheim, 17, Kensington, Minn.; Daniel L. Aldridge said yesterday that he came to Washington in 1899 to work for the Government Printing Office, retiring in 1939. He was born October 24, 1851, in Hudson City, now Jersey City. For many years he led the choir and was church clerk at Summit Avenue Baptist Church there. He lives with a daughter, Miss Edith Aldridge, at 6645 Georgia ave. nw.

Million Worker Mark Hit in Auto Industry

Employment in the auto industry has risen above one million for the first time. The occurred in December, said a report issued yesterday by the United States Employment Service.

The report said there are about six million unfilled orders for cars, and the demand should continue high for several more years, "barring substantial curtailment of buying power."

District Heights Troop Tops In Scout Show at Hyattsville

Boy Scout Troop 227, sponsored by District Heights Presbyterian Church, won first award at the Boy Scout Merit Badge Show which closed yesterday at the National Guard Armory in Hyattsville.

The three-day show was sponsored by the Southern Maryland District of the National Capital Area Boy Scout Council, which includes Prince Georges, Charles and St. Mary's Counties. Its planned to make the show an annual affair.

Approximately 4500 persons attended the show, which included exhibits illustrating the requirements for winning each of the Scout merit badges.

The winning troop used the Indian Lore badge as the theme for an exhibit on Indian history and pageantry, and woodland skills and crafts. Arthur R. Hamilton is the troop's scoutmaster and Arthur Staccy, assistant scoutmaster.

Second prize, a troop first-aid set, went to Troop 203, sponsored by MountRainier Christian Church. The exhibit depicted the camping merit badge. Raymond P. Kelly is scoutmaster and Fred Crook, assistant.

Third prize, a library of merit badge pamphlets, went to Troop 236, sponsored by Ager Road Methodist Church, Green Meadows and Brookside Manor, Md., which entered a photography merit badge exhibit. Scoutmaster is Julian Hoskinson.

Police Boys Club Drive Reaches $91,800 Mark

The Metropolitan Police Boys Club campaign for $125,000 has hit the $91,800 mark with three weeks to go, Chairman Robert C. Simmons said yesterday.

An encouraging sign, Simmons declared at campaign headquarters in the Standard Oil Building, is that Government, special gifts and municipal division figures are not included.

The 13 police precincts, headed by Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett, have collected $80,758, and enrolled 35,000 adult members. Campaign Director Royce Powell said this was a 50 per cent increase since the last report.

Capt. Robert Pearce's First Precinct team leads the police field, followed in order by Capt. Beverly Beach's Seventh, Capt. George Wallrodt's Third and Capt. Walter Storm's Tenth Precinct.

Seaplane Pilot Saves Dog Marooned on Ice

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—A small dog marooned on an ice floe 200 feet out in Gravensend Bay was rescued today by an ice-skipping seapiant pilot after many other persons had tried for six hours.

Ladders, poles, a police launch, a fire truck with an 85-foot extension ladded, a Coast Guard ice breaker and a flat bottomed boat had been used in the earlier efforts.

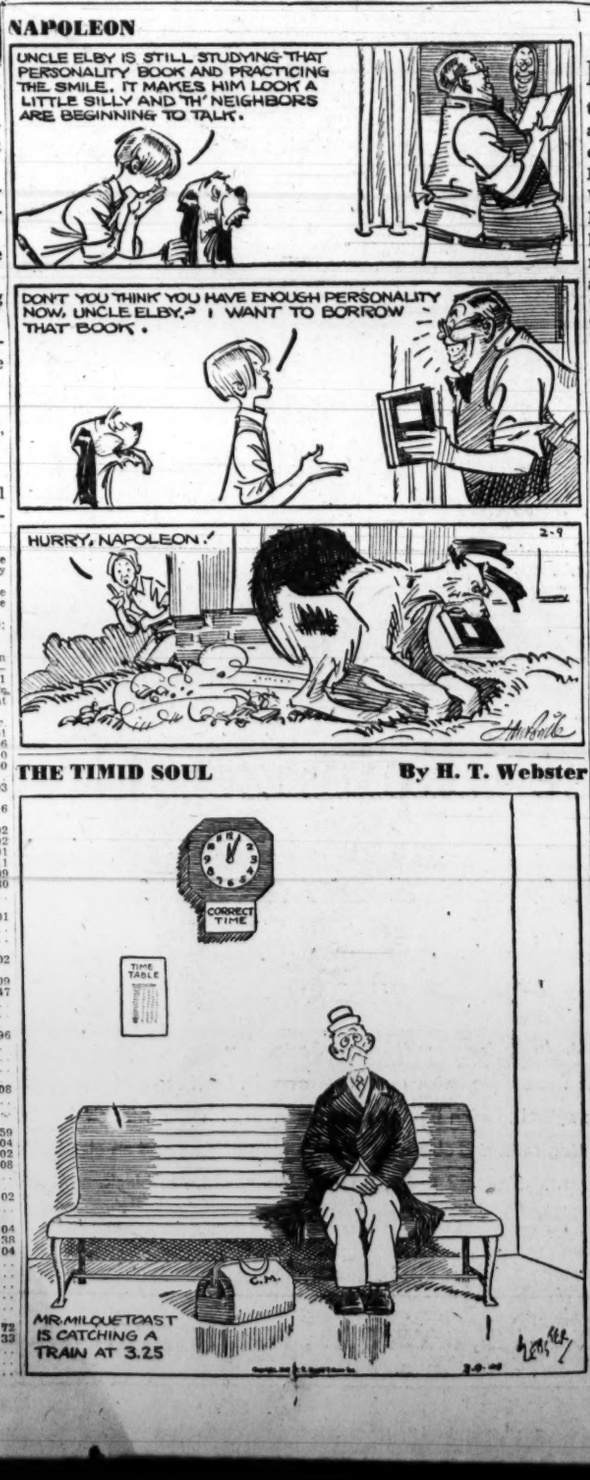
NAPOLEON



UNCLE ELBY IS STILL STUDYING THAT PERSONALITY BOOK AND PRACTICING THE SMILE. IT MAKES HIM LOOK A LITTLE SILLY AND TH' NEIGHBORS ARE BEGINNING TO TALK.
DON'T YOU THINK YOU HAVE ENOUGH PERSONALITY NOW, UNCLE ELBY? I WANT TO BORROW THAT BOOK.
HURRY, NAPOLEON!

Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The front lawn is terraced below street level and supported by a charming red brick retaining wall that encloses a sunken garden along each side of the basement wall. Remaining land slopes away from the house at basement level toward the rear. The house itself has 2 bedrooms and an inclosed sleeping porch on the 1st floor, in addition to the usual living room, kitchen, etc. A full basement contains a recreation room with adjoining bath and toilet. The laundry and automatic hot-water heating plant occupy the remainder. This unusual property is in sound condition and is well adapted to the purchaser who desires an imaginative property for an artistically inclined person who enjoys "doing it himself." The owners are going to Mexico and offer the place completely furnished with the exception of a few personal belongings. The price is $13,750 for quick disposal. Inspection is by appt. only.

New Maps Are Better But They Don't Show Sylvania

Col. Breckenridge A. Day of the Field Artillery Journal levels an accusing finger at Capital Transit.

"Their guide maps show streets which simply do not exist," charges the colonel.

"For example, there is now a movement afoot to have an Arizona ave. here, because Arizona is the only State currenly unrecognized in our street system.

"But the Capital Transit maps already list an Arizona ave. running from the Potomac, just east of 44th st. to approximately 40th and Upton sts.

"If this were the only example, I'd hold my fire. But there are many, many others—and I've been wondering whether this is crystal gazing or wishful thinking on the part of the transit company."

E. C. Giddings, vice president of Capital Transit, has a ready explanation. He says:

"The colonel seems to suspect that we borrowed those streets from Barnaby's Sylvania—but we didn't. We copied them from the big map at the District Highway Department.

"Presumably those pixie streets are 'in the works' and will some day be completed. At any rate, they do show on our old map, and the colonel is right."

"Old map?" I asked. "Do you have a new map now?"

"And how does one get a copy of this map?"

"Very simple. Just drop us a penny postcard and tell us where to send it. Or call us up. Michigan 6363, extension 572."

"The price?"

HONEST AD

Mrs. Seibert Stumbaugh forwards an amusing classified ad from a small Pennsylvania paper. Mrs. Stumbaugh is a former District Liner who now lives at 142 N. Washington st., Greencastle, Pa. The ad says:

FOR SALE—1934 Buick sedan. Must have lost its daddy. It keeps saying "pop, pop, pop."

TREASURER'S REPORT

Mary Lou Smith of 2420 E. 2d st., Little Rock, Ark. (we haven't heard from Alaska yet); Stanley S. Berg, 1100 Mississippi ave. se.; Mrs. Millie Kahanov, 1711 17th st. nw.; Morris Jacobson (check); Nancy Mavis Reiser, 3418 10th pl. se.; A. M. R.; Mrs. L. Shiller, 1614 21st pl. se., and Susan L. Gould, 3507 Minnesota ave. se.

IS IT FASHIONABLE TO BE BROKE?

The cost of living has risen so much that even styles appear to be affected.

David Kandel of 1311 H st. nw. observes sadly that there isn't much "change" in men's clothing this season.

MISCELLANY

When the conductor of a radio forum program invited Congressman Rayburn to broadcast his criticism of the Eightieth Congress, Rayburn replied: "How can I criticize this Congress? It hasn't done anything yet" . . . Toby Saifer of 4036 Georgia ave. nw. tells me that the Burdick Vocational High School wants unused envelopes of any size or shape—for example envelopes left over from Christmas card mailings. (At our house it's the other way around. We spoil so many envelopes with wrong addresses that we always have cards left over when the envelopes are all gone) . . . Mrs. William Cushman of the Shoreham is currently at the Flamingo in Miami Beach and I wouldn't mind being assigned to interview her on how she likes it there . . . Lee Q. Murray, who fights in the main go at Turner's tonight, got his middle initial from the man who gave him his start in the ring—radio's Col. Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle . . . Silver Spring mothers of children between the ages of 3 and 5 might like to know that the Falkland Cooperative (nonprofit) Nursery School has some openings. Mrs. Mary Blackwell at Shepherd 8613 can give you the details . . . The announcement that the New York State Society is holding another dance (Shoreham, Saturday night, 9:30) reminds me of this strange quirk: At last month's affair, the winner of the door prize was a fellow who had never even been to New York.

PERSONAL NOTES

Yea Veritas: I can't ignore anonymous letters when they include money for Children's Hospital. So here's the answer to your question:

Night Baseball is very similar to Baseball, except that all seven cards are dealt out face down.

The first player exposes one card. The second player then turns up one or more cards, continuing until he has topped the first.

The remaining players repeat the procedure in turn, until all the cards have been exposed. Any player drawing a 3-spot must either match the pot or drop out; 3s and 9s are wild; 4s are "bases on balls" and rate an extra card, etc.

I shudder just to think about it.

THE PLAYWRIGHT'S THE THING . . .

One of Noel Coward's friends, who envied Noel Coward's ultra-sophistication, said to him: "Your early background gave no promise of such sophistication. When did the change occur? . . . "I remember the day it happened," Coward replied. He and Gertrude Lawrence had just completed a vaudeville tour which paid them $40 a week. They decided to spend their savings in one big, fancy spree. They bought dress clothes and went to the swankiest cafe in London. "And there I noticed that I was the only man in the room wearing white socks," said Coward. "I discovered that I no longer could trust my instincts, and I decided that I had to find out how sophisticated people think and what they do and how they dress."

Sam Behrman and Robert E. Sherwood, cofounders of the Playwrights Co., have been close friends for many years. Sherwood, who is six feet seven, is the tallest man in the American theater. One day someone asked Behrman: "Do you know Bob Sherwood?" . . . "Of course," replied Behrman, who then climbed up on a chair, raised his hand as high as he could, and said: "I have known Bob ever since he was this high."

Henri Bernstein, the French playwright, was a friend of both Anatole France and Marcel Proust. Once, at Fouquet's he asked Proust what he thought of Anatole France. "Verbs make the writer, not adjectives," replied Proust. "Anatole France is brilliant with adjectives, but a great writer is one who knows how to use verbs"

When William Saroyan first decided to produce his own plays on Broadway he tried to borrow $15,000 from the Chase National Bank. He was turned down. Saroyan announced that he had no ill feeling towards the institution. "After all, I'm in a much better position than the Chase National Bank is," he said. "Has it got a first name? Can anyone tell me—what's its first name? And I'm going to write a poem this afternoon. Can the Chase National Bank, with all its power and money, write a poem?"

Speaking of hair, what are you doing today to keep yours looking virile and healthy? Are you giving it the kind of care and attention that will help it look equally healthy and vital 10 years from now? The Washington Merry-Go-Round

New Version of 'Blind' Flying

By Drew Pearson

The Air Forces have carefully posted a notice on the instrument panels of military planes, reminding pilots of the President's order to conserve gasoline and oil. The President's edict, however, apparently doesn't apply to free flights for certain privileged individuals, such as Former Heavyweight Champ Gene Tunney.

Tunney

An Army C-47, with a three-man crew recently made a double round trip to New York so that Tunney could deliver a lecture on "Sportsmanship" at Bolling Field in Washington. In addition to other expenses, the trip cost the taxpayers about 665 gallons of scarce gasoline.

It would have been a simple process for Tunney to have gone to Mitchel Field, Long Island, boarded an Army plane for the free ride to Washington, and then returned to New York on the same plane after his talk. But the Army doesn't do things simply.

Instead, the C-47 was dispatched all the way from Washington to a small airfield in Westchester County, N. Y., where Tunney was picked up and flown to Washington. After regaling the officers and enlisted personnel at Bolling Field on the virtues of sportsmanship, the plane returned the former champ to LaGuardia Field, N. Y., then deadheaded back to Washington again—thus completing a total of four trips for the sake of exactly 30 minutes of Tunney's talk.

The public may be surprised at this, but Bolling Field personnel assigned to these VIPs (very important persons) flights are not surprised at anything any more after the junketing they witnessed during the last football season.

Crowning Touch

The crowning touch was provided by Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall when the University of North Carolina played Georgia at Chapel Hill, N. C. Royall, a North Carolina alumnus, not only enjoyed a free round-trip flight to the game in an Army plane, but sent a limousine and chauffeur, also supplied by the Government, down to Chapel Hill for the sole purpose of driving him from the airport to the football field after his plane landed.

The chauffeur had to drive at a fast clip all the previous night, narrowly escaping several speed tickets, in order to be on time for this supposedly important assignment. At Chapel Hill he had to wait outside the stadium until the contest was over and then drive his boss back to the airport, following which he drove all the way back to Washington alone.

Note—Secretary Royall's explanation is that the State Department was trying to get Dr. Frank Graham of the University of North Carolina to become U. N. arbiter of the Dutch East Indies dispute, and had asked Royall to persuade the trustees of the university to give Graham a leave of absence. Therefore, he felt that he needed his car at Chapel Hill to call on the various trustees. The Army had no reply to the query as to why Secretary Royall could not have ordered a car from nearby Fort Bragg, N. C., instead of bringing one all the way from Washington.

Palestine Problems

The Army has just sold 215 jeeps to the Iraq government—to be used by the Arabs to fight the Jews in Palestine. Meanwhile Britain, Russia, and the State Department have shut off the sale of all weapons to the Jews . . . Eighteen months ago when Russia violated her agreement regarding Iran, the State Department screamed to high heaven. Now when the Arab states thumb their nose at the United Nations regarding Palestine, the same State Department remains strangely silent . . . British liaison officers at the U. N., headed by Sir Alexander Cadogan, have warned U. N. officials that they will be assassinated within one hour of their arrival in the Holy Land . . .

Too Much Light

When music czar James Petrillo testified before the House Labor Committee on television, the television producers insisted on training a battery of klieg lights on him and other witnesses. The producers have been trying to get Petrillo to ease up on his restrictions enforced by the musicians' union regarding television, and they were especially hoping to get support against Petrillo from Congressmen.

However, when Rep. Ellsworth Buck, New York Republican, was asked his views, he snapped:

"After sitting here under these damnable television lights, I can understand why the musicians want extra money for playing for television. In my opinion they're entitled to it."

Political Chaff

Things look lush for the Republicans. GOP National Chairman Carroll Reece already has four million dollars in the Republican till. The Democrats aren't advertising what they have, but their headquarters staff is comprised of only 50 people, compared to the Republicans' 150. . . . Political sands are shifting in New Orleans. "Little Eva" Talbot, campaign manager for Earl Long, brother of the late Huey Long, has just been elected Democratic national committeeman. . . .

Hoover's Choice

Herbert Hoover tells friends that he intends to remain "strictly neutral" toward all candidates in the race for the GOP presidential nomination.

However, Hoover feels that Tom Dewey, Senator Bob Taft, Senator Arthur Vandenberg or Speaker Joe Martin—any one of them—would make a good President.

Even before General Eisenhower withdrew from the race, the former President expressed himself as dead opposed to the nomination of any military leader.

"With world conditions as they are, it's the wrong time to have a military man in the White House," Hoover recently told a close friend.

Washington is truly an "Evergreen" State . . . a land of magnificent scenery — towering mountain ranges . . . white-capped surf pounding along the seashore . . . a profusion of brilliantly colored wild flowers . . . and forests everywhere. Her beauty of nature is complemented by the beauty created by man. The spectacular fall of water over Grand Coulee Dam is twice as high as Niagara . . . a sparkling blue lake, 151 miles long, is formed behind the dam. The yellow grain of Washington's prolific wheat crop provides a golden blanket for the undulating hills of our "Inland Empire" . . . and Yakima is famed for the pink and white beauty of her apple blossoms. While Washington's Columbia River Valley and her "Inland Empire" are the main source of her great agricultural production . . . the Coast area teems with industrial activity and commerce. Our other great industries are lumbering . . . fishing in the Columbia River and along the Coast . . . and production of minerals from our vast reserves. When we were admitted to Statehood we took the name of Washington, in honor of our first President. During the years since, we have worked to uphold his principles and ideals of democracy. Washington is acclaimed for her progressive governmental legislation. We introduced the direct primary in our State in 1907 . . . woman's suffrage in 1909 . . . initiative and referendum in 1911. We feel that our fine system of State schools educate our people to support good government . . . while our industrial and agricultural enterprises give them a good standard of living in which to enjoy its benefits. As a representative of the State of Washington, I wish to say that this program of The Hecht Company is an outstanding program of education . . . to disseminate knowledge of our entire country . . . and we extend our sincere thanks for the inclusion of Washington in their Salutes to the States of America.

Warren G. Magnuson

Senior Senator from Washington.

WASHINGTON . . . Has progressed with seven-league strides since she became a State in 1889. She is still growing rapidly in population . . . the average estimated population increase in the Pacific Northwest from 1940-47 was 37-38 per cent . . . in contrast to the national average of 9 per cent. Today Washington is the Nation's No. 1 woodcutter . . . and apple grower . . . and her ports are a principal gateway to Alaska and the Orient. Washington's Grand Coulee Dam is the largest structure of its kind ever engineered by man. Among her wonders wrought by Nature is Mount Rainier . . . towering three miles in ice-capped splendor.

WASHINGTON . . . With a vivid and exciting history. Her first settlements were fur trading posts. For 28 years Washington was ruled jointly by the United States and Great Britain. Then, in 1846, her northern boundary was set at the 49th parallel . . . following a tense period when the cry — "54-40 or Fight" — sounded through the land. Washington boomed in size and prosperity during the gold rush to the Klondike . . . when she was on the main line of prospectors starting out for this land of fabulous riches. Latest chapter in this dynamic history was her choice as the site for the manufacture of plutonium . . . basic in production of atomic energy.

WASHINGTON . . . Preserves her natural scenic beauty in State and National Parks . . . Ginko State Park . . . the Olympic National Park . . . and Mount Rainier National Park. 26 separate glaciers inch their way down the slopes of Mount Rainier . . . the Nation's third highest peak of 18,480 feet. In startling contrast with the bleak glaciers, a luxuriant growth of wild flowers stands at the very edge of the ice. The slopes of Mount Rainier and the Cascade Mountains provide excellent year-round skiing.

WASHINGTON . . . A titan of the fruit growing industry. In addition to being the country's greatest producer of apples . . . she is high in peaches and pears, cherries and grapes. Washington is fifth in wheat . . . with her eastern section of the richest wheat areas of the world. The State is also a large cattle and chicken raising center.

WASHINGTON . . . Whose early industries . . . lumbering . . . fishing . . . and mining . . . are still predominant. Coal is her leading mineral . . . with gold, silver, lead, mercury and zinc close seconds. Salmon is still considered King of commercial fishing . . . although sardines head the list in volume. Washington is the country's leading lumber and wood pulp producer . . . has more than 2 million acres of cultivated "tree farms" in addition to the heavy forest growth.

WASHINGTON . . . Heartland of the vast Columbia River Basin which stretches into six other States. Envisioned for the basin is an integrated plan . . . for development in decades ahead . . . which includes 238 projects . . . would provide irrigation for more than 5,000,000 acres . . . add up to 70,000 new farm ventures . . . and provide support for one million people. One segment, already far advanced is the Columbia Basin project . . . one of the greatest reclamation projects ever authorized by Congress . . . with an estimated total cost of $487,000,000. The Grand Coulee Dam, the world's largest concrete dam . . . is a tremendous power dynamo and fountainhead for irrigation . . . and regulates the river for flood control, navigation and recreation.

WASHINGTON . . . With great seaports along Puget Sound at Olympia . . . Everett . . . Tacoma . . . and Seattle. Puget Sound is ideal for pleasure boating . . . with one of the greatest concentrations of pleasure craft of any body of water in America. Seattle, city of spectacular beauty, like Rome, is built on seven hills, and is almost surrounded by the waters of Puget Sound and Lake Washington. The bridge spanning Lake Washington is a concrete highway which literally floats. Spokane, heart of the "Inland Empire," is the second largest inland city in the West.

WASHINGTON . . . Whose interest in education early led to the establishment of Whitman College, in 1859, one of the oldest institutions of higher learning in the Northwest. Among her other colleges and universities are the University of Washington . . . Washington State College . . . and Gonzaga University.
